The U. S. and Cuba.
He Had a $1,000 Diamond.
It Was the Bulls' Turn.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

RECOGNITION of the new Cuban government by the United States will depend on that government's backing by the Cuban people.

There is some indication of a desire to change from President Grau San Martin back to his predecessor, De Cespedes, who for a few days succeeded President Machado.

The desire of the United States, its government and people, is to see the Cubans happily settled under a government of their own choosing on the way back to prosperity.

YESTERDAY, from New York's viaduct, at Riverside drive and 130th street, a man plunged to death on the pavement of 12th avenue, 75 feet below.

Mere plunging and dying would attract no attention, but this man was extremely well dressed and wore a diamond ring worth $1,000. To many it will seem strange that a man should kill himself while owning a ring worth $1,000. That measures part of our civilization.

"TIME AT length makes all things even," according to the poet.

Yesterday in the Portuguese village of Sobral, near Lisbon, ten bulls, penned up to be tormented and killed later for the amusement of the crowd, broke from their enclosure, plunged into a gaily dressed crowd at the annual summer festival, injured twenty, killed several, damaged shops, including china shops.

A local barber, evidently with a career as matador ahead of him, killed one bull with a razor. A sermon could be written about that.

YESTERDAY 1,000,000 children were at work in New York City's public schools and other millions throughout the nation were returning to public schools, greatest of all institutions.

Of these millions perhaps one will be remembered a thousand years hence. To achieve that he must contribute to human happiness, or, like another Napoleon, to human misery, on a big scale.

But that will not discourage any mother, for each will believe that her child will be the one remembered.

Many millions of the children will be useful, constructive, patriotic Americans, and many millions doing their duty are more important to human welfare than any individual standing out in the great crowd.

WORKING IN a restaurant on the Mediterranean, a former colonel of Cossacks knows where $8,000,000 worth of gold and gems are hidden. The treasure was taken to Turkey by a priest of the Russian church, and there taken from the priest.

It includes English gold coins worth $3,000,000. The tale may be one of those "Spanish treasure" stories so familiar to police, and there may be a real treasure.

IN THE excitement of revolution and the fear of confiscation many valuable things were hidden in Russia that will come to light some day, including magnificent works of art, collected by the imperial family for centuries back, and by the Russian grand dukes and nobles.

Where is the Voltaire library that Catherine the Second bought when he died? That would be worth more than the six hundred thousand English sovereigns.

PROF. SHERMAN, of Columbia University, says a scientific, properly balanced diet will enable wise human beings to live ten per cent longer, and postpone that abominable period of old age, in which men, as a clever Frenchwoman said, "look on at life," no longer an important part of it.

After the NRA has adjusted all other difficulties it might turn its attention to cooking. At present, the American plan for cooking vegetables boils all the valuable mineral salts out of them. The mineral salts are thrown away with excess water. The vegetables, lacking the most precious ingredient, are eaten.

THE LEARNED Prof. Sherman says keeping old men alive and vigorous in old age is most important, because wisdom that comes with years will hereafter be active, instead of slowly dying away.

The new diet will realize Plato's ideal of "an intellectual aristocracy," in which "philosophers will be kings, and kings will be philosophers."

NEW YORK CITY tomorrow will have an NRA parade to be remembered. Two hundred and fifty thousand will march, headed by soldiers, followed, all on foot, by members of the NRA committee, including editors "in soft hats, dark clothes." The "stove-pipe" is reserved for funerals.

If all that wanted to march could be accepted, there would be a million in line. The garment workers' union alone offered 100,000.

Gen. Johnson will review the parade.

THOSE WHO consider the Russian experiment entirely a failure will be interested in the following paragraph from a dispatch sent from Moscow by Walter Duranty:

"There is no organized crime in Moscow nor commercialized vice—no racketeering, no kidnaping, no speakeasies, gambling hells nor brothels."

All of the things that do not exist in Moscow do exist in our "higher civilization." How do you explain it?

BANDITS RAID FARRELL BANK

Shotgun Gang Cows Owner, Girl Aides, Flees With $6,000

FARRELL, Pa., Sept. 12.—Masked and armed bandits raided the S. J. Gully State Bank in Broadway today, herded the proprietor and three clerks in a cage, kidnaped an employe of Gully's jewelry store and fled with about $6,000.

The Gully Bank had been doing a heavy business today cashing pay checks of the Cadnegie Steel mills when the bandits entered. Two were left guarding their autos with the motors running.

The bandits covered everybody in the bank with pistols and sawed-off shot guns. The bank is on Broadway near the steel mills.

CLERK KIDNAPED

Gully and three clerks, Irma DeSilvia, Pearl Bowers and Eva Conti, were herded into one of the cages, ordered to keep quiet and held under the muzzles of weapons while other members of the gang ransacked the counters and rifled the vault.

As they completed their work, Carl Wild, 21, employe of Gully's jewelry and sporting goods store stepped through the open archway into the bank. He was overpowered and kidnaped by the bandits.

Warning the bank employes not to move, the gang fled.

After a hurried checkup, Gully said the bandits took $6,000.

HURLED FROM CAR

While those in the bank said there were only six in the bandit party, others who witnessed the escape said there were at least 10 in the party and that they fled in two cars bearing Ohio licenses. Police broadcast the numbers of the two cars.

A short time after the robbery, Wild was forced out of the car in Youngstown, O.

Two customers in the bank as the gunmen entered went out a side door without knowing that a holdup was in progress.

Police said they believed the bandits mistook Wild for Guy Gully, son of the banker, whom they believed was the intended victim of a kidnaping for ransom.

DAVIS LOTTERY TRIAL MONDAY

United States Senator James J. Davis' oft-delayed trial in New York's Federal Court will begin next Monday, his counsel—Charles Margiotti—announced today. Margiotti and his assistant, Sebastian Pugliese, will leave Pittsburgh tonight for New York to confer with the Senator until the trial.

Senator Davis is charged with profiting from lotteries operated by the Moose lodges in defiance of interstate laws. Two of the trial postponements were due to an emergency appendicitis operation he underwent in South Side Hospital some months ago.

Margiotti said today he did not expect to ask for another postponement.

MAINE SWINGS WET; 3 OTHER STATES VOTE

Maryland, Colorado, Minnesota See Repeal Win

Associated Press.

Maine, where prohibition was cradled away back before the Civil War, has voted to strike the Eighteenth Amendment from the national constitution.

Repealists expressed confidence of similar results today in Maryland, Colorado and Minnesota, where elections on the repeal proposal were being held. Prohibitionists, disputing the ground, kept on fighting.

Maine, which passed a state prohibition law in 1851, voted yesterday about 2 to 1 for the proposed Twenty-first Amendment, which would delete the Eighteenth. It was the twenty-sixth state to enter the repeal column. Thirty-six are necessary under the constitution before an amendment becomes the law of the land.

At least 39 states will have voted on the repeal proposal by November 7. The next states to vote after today are Idaho and New Mexico. Both have called elections for next Wednesday.

DRY CRADLE UPSET

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Not one voice will be heard in defense of prohibition when the 80 delegates to this long-time "dry" state's repeal convention meets in Augusta on December 6.

Every one of the organization "wets" won in yesterday's election in which the "birthplace of prohibition" and the home of Neal Dow, pioneer prohibitionist, voted more than two-to-one for repeal.

Although the state-wide vote was know last night, it could not be definitely determined until today just how all the delegates fared.

The delegates were elected by counties and, because of an advisory opinion of the Supreme Court, were not designated on the ballots, their names being arranged alphabetically. This delayed final analysis of the vote.

Taking the high wet and dry candidates' vote in each county, the state total with 57 of the state's 632 precincts missing was: For, 112,249; against, 52,358.

CAIN THWARTS TAX ORDER PROBE

Registration Board Defied by County Treasurer

County Treasurer Robert S. Cain today enlivened Pittsburgh's next-to-the-last registration day before next Tuesday's primary by balking on sending all tax orders for the inspection of the Board of Registration Commissioners.

This occurred shortly after state police, en route to the office of the Registration Commissioners, were called to quell possible registration disturbances and fraud.

ACTION SURPRISES

Cain's action came as a surprise, as about two hours before he had agreed with Chairman John K. Morrow, of the registration commission, to turn over several thousand tax orders.

In a letter sent to Morrow shortly after noon, Cain refused to honor a blanket order, although he said he would provide the orders for tax receipts where the Commissioners would name specific cases.

Cain's letter in part stated:

"After full consideration of this blanket order, I refuse to comply with same. If your board has any evidences of fraud in the procurement of tax receipts or in connection with tax authorizations and name each specific case, I stand ready to turn over the records of my office concerning specific named cases, but will not surrender en masse as per the summons received by me."

The commission had sought to investigate the orders in the pres-

Among the banks listed include the First National Bank of Bridgeville, the First National of McKees Rocks and the First National of Cecil.

Taming the NRA

THE PAUSE in business since July is a matter to be carefully and prayerfully considered.

It is a reminder that prosperity cannot be recreated by a slogan.

As a matter of fact, the well-intentioned NRA drive, accompanied by the impulsive and sometimes intimidating expressions of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, and some of his socialistic assistants, added an element of uncertainty to the calculations of the business man.

As a result the business man stopped, looked, and listened, instead of continuing to move forward at the July rate.

Not knowing the outcome of it all, he restrained his forward operations.

The interruption can prove brief and unimportant if President Roosevelt will reassure the business community.

The intention of Congress should be carried out, and the NRA experiment should be made CO-OPERATIVE, instead of COERCIVE.

It should be properly interpreted as an adventure in raising social standards.

ITS OBJECTIVES are primarily HUMANE, rather than narrowly ECONOMIC.

Its complete achievement will be a matter of years, rather than mere weeks.

The aim should be to establish a partnership between government and business which will assure better pay and shorter hours for workers and improved management through freedom from obsolete restrictions and burdensome impositions upon business.

If successful, the effect will be to stabilize business, and keep it on an even, rational keel.

But an over-zealous hunger for first page publicity on the part of NRA has given the public the idea that it is the chief basis of recovery.

This is unfortunate and false.

THE PUBLIC should be heartened by the knowledge that natural economic factors are making for recovery in other principal countries.

At home, there is immense potential lifting power in the agricultural adjustment administration, which has the authority to bring farm prices to a parity with those prevailing in the great industries and service occupations.

The effect will be to create a balance, under which the vast social classes will be able to exchange among one another the product of their labors.

In the interim, the process can be facilitated—and employment relieved—by more vigorous prosecution of public works and housing projects.

There is accordingly no crisis which necessitates the immediate adoption of remaining codes.

Once the fundamental industries have adopted them, other branches of trades will adjust themselves.

MEANTIME, the self regulatory processes, which in the past have always accomplished recovery, are also vigorously at work.

These other factors, making for economic recovery, should be reinterpreted for business men.

And the business man should be convinced that he too will be a beneficiary from proper administration of the codes.

Under the law, he can trade better social relations with labor for greater freedom to co-operate with competitors in matters of price and general trade practices.

Likewise, the re-employment of the unemployed, and the raising of wages will tend vastly to improve the consumer market in the United States to whom the business man caters.

AS A FURTHER token of the desire to make profit possible in business, the government should further hearten the business man BY GIVING HIM THE BENEFIT OF TAX REVISION.

A general manufacturers' sales tax should be

10,000 QUIT ON EVE OF 'HOLIDAY'

Frick Mines Closed, Lockout Denied By Moses

A general protest strike in Western Pennsylvania coal fields loomed today over the delay in Washington over an NRA code. Developments were these:

1—Ten thousand miners employed at 25 or more mines took a "holiday" today while awaiting word as to outcome of code negotiations.

2—The H. C. Frick Coke Company closes three mines, but denies "lockout" of men.

3—Renewal of the violence which led Gov. Pinchot to declare modified martial law in the coke region some weeks ago feared. Sheriff Hackney, of Fayette, prepares to swear in additional deputies.

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 12.—The threatened walkout of miners in the coke region took on the appearance of a lockout today, as approximately 10,000 men in Western Pennsylvania had already laid down their tools in anticipation of tomorrow's "holiday."

The H. C. Frick Coke Company, apparently expecting a general strike throughout the area by tonight, suspended operations at three of its largest mines. The mines affected include Colonials Nos. 1, 3 and 4.

STRIKE SPEEDS COAL HEARING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Threats of a flare-up of labor disturbances in Western Pennsylvania were added today to the Recovery Administration's problems in its drive to bring the bituminous coal industry under an industrial code.

Both Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, and the National Labor Board have been advised that large groups of Pennsylvania miners expect to take a "holiday" until a code is signed.

Johnson is driving toward an agreement on a code. A public hearing on the administration's proposal was set for 3:30 p. m. The administrator then will institute a new set of negotiations which he expects to result in completing the pact.

Johnson says he expects the code to be on the President's desk for approval before the end of the week.

Negotiations between the operators and the union on labor contracts are understood to be proceeding even more rapidly than either side expected.

Bar Poll Opposes 18 Bench Candidates

For 50 long hours 20 young lawyers toiled hard over the ballots in the poll on judicial candidates conducted among attorneys by the Allegheny County Bar Association.

And the results, although born to blush unseen, were announced today.

More than 1,859 lawyers were asked to tell what they think of the judicial candidates. And 857 came through.

And they were quite frank. The majority voted that 18 of the 28 candidates should not be recommended to the voters. The majority voted further that it did not have confidence in the honesty of six of the 28 candidates.

In only one instance did a candidate receive a unanimous vote for honesty. He was Attorney A. Marshall Thompson, dean of the Pitt Law School. J. Oscar Emerich, who announced the results, explained that when less than 25 voted negatively, the tabulation was reported as "none."

HILL POLITICIAN SCORED BY WOMAN REGISTRATION AIDE

INTERRUPTIONS BY ROBERTS REBUKED

Club Used to Prevent Enrollments as Democrats

Dave Roberts, Hill district politician, alleged to have persuaded a Hill district registration board to change party affiliations at the request of several voters, was rebuked by Mrs. Mary Jane Clark, member of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission, when Roberts attempted to "bully" the board last night.

Roberts' frequent interruptions during the time the members of the commission were questioning the members of the election board, prompted Mrs. Clark to tell Roberts that he "talked entirely too much."

Mrs. Clark also said:

"Are you a commissioner here? You keep quiet."

M'NAIR COMPLAINTS

The Registration Board listened to complaints lodged by William L. McNair, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, and Attorney Robert L. Vann, an assistant United States Attorney, to the effect that certain residents of the Seventeenth District of the Fifth Ward had been threatened with removal from the welfare lists because they had registered Democratic last Thursday.

William Robinson, of 3330 Center avenue, a member of the board, stated that two persons had registered Democratic and later returned to the polling place, in company with Roberts, and asked to change party affiliations to Republican. Roberts denied that he had persuaded anyone to change party affiliation.

Mary Pringle, of 2141 Berthoud street, and Harry Camins, of Center avenue, who changed from Democratic to Republican after leaving the registration place, denied that Roberts had influenced them. The Pringle woman admitted speaking to a Negro policeman in civilian clothes, but only to get advice.

DENY COERCION

Throughout the hearing, members of the board, excepting Robinson, and the persons who had registered, continued to state that they had no knowledge of any coercion and their stories were so much at variance that the commissioners gave up in disgust. Attorneys McNair and Vann were present for a short time but left.

Roberts' many questions to the witnesses, prompted Mrs. Clark to say:

"I want to know whom we are investigating, the board or this man Roberts. He is talking entirely too much."

She later threatened to bring informations against those whose memories had failed them. She accused them all of "hedging."

At the close of the hearing the commission announced that a new board would be appointed today, stating that the old board had changed party affiliations after the registration had ended for the party concerned. This, the commission said, is illegal, as changes can be made only on a court order.

LEGAL ASPECT

Members of the board had admitted previously that they were in doubt about the legality of changing the party affiliations, but said they had done so when Roberts assured them that this was proper.

Roberts admitted he had told them they were acting legally and added that he did not know it was wrong to change the party. He said he believed changes could be made up to any time the board had not closed its books.

This prompted Mrs. Clark to say:

"You mean to tell me, Mr. Roberts, that after all the years you have spent in politics that you did not know it was wrong to tell these people to change the books?"

Roberts' answer was:

"I did not know it was illegal. I was only advising them."

ence of clerks from the Treasurer's office to determine if any groups of 50 or more had been obtained by one man. The orders were subpenaed yesterday.

TROOPERS CALLED

The presence of the state police was requested earlier today by Mrs. Sara E. Braun, member of the commission. Troopers are augmenting 55 local police who are cruising around the registration polls.

Chairman Morrow said that when it is found that any person obtained any large number of receipts, a check will be made to ascertain whether the orders were presented with the consent of the person named on the receipt.

It was through this procedure in 1931 that the Registration Commission cut approximately 16,000 names from the books.

Orders were sent out yesterday to all registration boards, instructing them that tax receipts signed with the initials instead of the full signature of the clerk issuing the receipt, were to be accepted as bona fide. Previous orders had been to the effect that the boards refuse to honor such receipts. It was through a mistake in the treasurer's office that such receipts were issued.

The same arrangement was to prevail today as did last Thursday. In suspected districts the books will be collected at 11 o'clock at the close of the morning registration period and kept in the court house until 5 p. m., the beginning of the night registration period. This is done to prevent any tampering with the books during the recess.

Ten or 12 automobiles, filled with county police and detectives, will patrol the city while the troopers and other county police will remain on call in the court house.

EXCHANGE TAX PASSAGE SEEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(12.)—Hints that the Stock Market might move out of New York had failed today to shake the city administration's support of an emergency tax program.

Newspapers said the program, which includes taxes on brokerage houses and stock transfers, seemed assured of passage at a Board of Estimate meeting today. Mayor John P. O'Brien, after hearing protests, said he had no reason to believe the program would not be passed today.

Mayor Meyer C. Ellenstein, of Newark, N. J., invited the Stock Exchange to locate in the Lefcourt Plaza in that city. He said he might offer the exchange "certain advantages."

ACT TO EXPAND BANK CREDIT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. — With many banks refusing credit to small business, the administration today was considering what action it can take to stimulate credit.

President Roosevelt was advised the banks have plenty of money for credit purposes, but are releasing it only to big manufacturing interests on heavy security, said Jesse H. Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Jones attributed this attitude partly to lack of confidence in the future and mostly to "lack of faith in the borrower."

CUMMINGS RULE UPHOLDS BOND GUARANTEE

U. S. to Pay Interest On Home Loan Issue, Opinion States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Attorney General Homer S. Cummings in an opinion announced today unqualifiedly supports the view that interest on the bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation is "fully and unconditionally guaranteed by the United States."

After reviewing the Home Loan Bank Act of 1932 and the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, the Attorney General stated:

"I find that the form of bond approved by the board of directors has been approved by the general counsel of the corporation and that it complies with all the requirements of the by-laws. It also provides that the corporation will pay principal and interest, when due, at the Treasury Department, or at any government agency or agencies in the United States which the Secretary of the Treasury may from time to time designate for the purpose.

"It is therefore my opinion that the bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, when issued in the form proposed and for the purposes specified in Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, will constitute valid and binding obligations of the corporation; that payment of interest on such bonds will be fully and unconditionally guaranteed by the United States, and that they will be tax exempt to the extent provided in Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933."

DYERS STRIKE SETTLEMENT SEEN NEAR

1,500 Workers Demand Shorter Week With $20 to $45 Pay

Settlement of the cleaners and dyers' strike, affecting approximately all cleaning establishments and 1,500 employes who walked out yesterday, appeared likely before nightfall, in the opinion of Mayor John S. Herron.

Herron, in his capacity of honorary chairman of the local NRA committee, today conferred with representatives of the striking Cleaners and Dyers Local 18300 and the operators' group, the Cleaners and Dyers Association of Western Pennsylvania, at the Chamber of Commerce. Following a four-hour adjournment, the conferees will meet late this afternoon to discuss a new wage scale.

DEMANDS MADE

Selig Morov, president of the union, presented the employers with the strikers' demands at this morning's meeting, including a maximum work week of 35 hours, wage scale varying from a minimum of $20 for silk pressers to $45 for dyers and spotters, and recognition of the union and the closed shop. The demands also ban employment of minors under 17 years and provide a $15 minimum pay for helpers and solicitors.

The union further asks that the piecework system be abolished and full wages be paid for time off on six holidays.

Preceding the conference, Morov charged that some men and women were receiving as low as $4 and $5 a week pay in establishments flying the Blue Eagle.

Another strikers' meeting has been scheduled for tonight at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement to hear reports of this afternoon's discussion.

ATTACK TRUCKS

Violence entered the dispute late yesterday as strikers picketed 40 plants in the Pittsburgh district. A crowd mobbed two trucks of Howards Cleaners, Inc., at Galveston and Shore avenues, and shattered the windshields with missiles. The Howards organization is said to be unaffected by the strike. Picketing will continue until a settlement is reached, according to Abe Ritt, union secretary.

Five trucks owned by Crandall-McKenzie and Henderson, Inc., were surrounded by automobile loads of strike sympatizers and directed to return to the plant within as many hours yesterday, according to Orel McKenzie, president, who said:

"I haven't been approached about the matter. None of our employes walked out—and there are four or five pickets in front of the plant.

"The truck drivers did the right thing when they returned to the plant. No matter what happens, we're not going to jeopardize any man in our employ."

RIPLEY, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Warrants charging Ralph Eddy, 16, with the murder of his stepfather and mother, were sworn out today.

The youth was missing yesterday following the discovery of the bodies of the Rev. and Mrs. A. M. Eddy at Trace Fork. Both had been shot and beaten to death with a rifle, identified as one which the boy had borrowed from a neighbor several weeks ago.

Search for the boy centered in Charleston, where the Eddy automobile was found at the State Fairgrounds. Attendants at carnival attractions identified pictures of the boy as those of a youth who had attended performances last night.

KILLED BY AUTO AFTER CRASH

BURGETTSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Vincent Calso, of 1515 Colwell street, Pittsburgh, was killed by an automobile early today as he stood on the William Penn highway after his car had figured in a minor accident.

Returning from West Virginia with Frank Lucatorgo, of 88 Washington street, Pittsburgh, Calso's car hit a wrecking car driven by George Martin, of Florence. Martin was pulling a machine that had crashed into a ditch.

No one was hurt in the Calso-Martin accident and as the men stood in the road, a machine, said by police to have been driven by James Gardner, 30, of near Paris, hit Calso, killing him instantly. Martin and Lucatorgo were hurt slightly.

SEES M'NAIR 'NEW DEAL'

William N. McNair, as Mayor of Pittsburgh, could cut municipal expenses as drastically and as effectively as did President Roosevelt when he took charge of the federal government, Dr. Marion K. McKay, president of the Civic Club, said today.

Speaking at a noon-day meeting in Democratic headquarters, Fourth avenue, Dr. McKay said:

"In my judgment, the call for a new deal in Pittsburgh is no less distinct than was the national call, and the possibilities for revolutionary changes in our city government are equally as great."

SLEEP MALADY SUFFERED BY ANOTHER HERE

Penn Township Girl Ill With Disease In Hospital

Elsie Margaret Duff, 15, daughter of Russell Duff, of Crab Hollow road, Penn Township, was reported by Dr. A. B. Speer, of Penn Township, to have contracted the strange malady. Tests at Columbia Hospital confirmed the diagnosis.

Her parents said the girl had been in seemingly good health until Saturday, when she complained of pains in her back. Soon she became drowsy, and Dr. Speer was summoned.

CORNING, Ia., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Florence Adair Larimer, 32, died of sleeping sickness yesterday after a short illness. Three other cases have been reported here.

Controversy Rages Over Tests With Rabbits

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Reports in certain St. Louis medical circles that rabbits inoculated with spinal fluid taken from "sleeping sickness" patients had developed symptons of the disease started a controversy today.

Dr. Edward Carl Rosenow, professor of experimental bacteriology of the University of Minnesota, credited in the reports with making the experiment, declined to comment personally.

Dr. Joseph Bredeck, city health commissioner, issued a statement after publication of the report saying Dr. Rosenow "regrets very much the premature and unofficial statements."

Dr. Bredeck explained that "Dr. E. C. Rosenow has authorized me to make an official statement."

No direct denial of the reputed discovery was forthcoming from responsible sources.

As the controversy over the "discovery" developed, the death toll from encephalitis rose to 125 in the St. Louis area. A total of 701 cases have been reported.

The Rosenow discovery report was hailed in some circles as giving additional hope that encephalitis can be communicated to animals with such positive reactions that an immunizing agency for its prevention and a serum for its cure may be developed.

State Prison Quarantined Against Sleep Malady

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The Missouri Penitentiary here was placed under quarantine today as a precaution against possible introduction into the institution of encephalitis, which has taken 140 lives in the state in the last six weeks.

Stephen B. Hunter, chairman of the prison board, announced that no further prisoners would be received nor would visitors be allowed until the epidemic has subsided.

Dr. W. W. Rambo, prison physician, said no cases of the disease had developed at the penitentiary and the quarantine was entirely a precautionary measure.

A survey by the state board of health shows that most of the "sleeping sickness" cases are in the Greater St. Louis area. There have been outbreaks also in Greater Kansas City and St. Joseph, with scattered cases elsewhere in the state.

Court Balks Wholesale Registration Bolting

Wholesale solicitation of electors by party workers to have them change their affiliation was knocked out yesterday in Common Pleas Court on the ground that it "would open the door to widespread fraud and imposition on electors."

Judges James H. Gray and Elder W. Marshall handed down an opinion on the subject in the case of two electors of the First Election District, of Shaler Township, representing 385 others, who had petitioned the Court to direct the registry assessor of that district to change their party affiliation from Republican to Democrat. The decision affects a number of other similar cases.

The opinion recites that party workers presented certificates to the 387 electors who signed them. These were then presented to the assessor of the district, who was asked to carry out the request as represented on the certificate.

The court holds that the act of 1913 contemplates a personal relationship between the registry assessor and the elector or at least with some members of his family. The court held that the registry assessor did right in refusing the request and dismissed the petition.

Hotel Blaze Stirs Row On Safety Inspection

A fireman, fighting a blaze at the New Terminal Hotel, 615 Bigelow boluevard, yesterday, had a narrow escape from death or serious injury when a step fell out of an iron fire escape near the third floor level.

Public Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., said the fire escape inspector had been eliminated in the 1933 budget, but that the work had been taken over by the Bureau of Building Inspection.

H. L. Ley, superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection, declared the Fire Prevention Bureau is also responsible for inspection of fire escapes. Fire Chief Richard L. Smith denied this. He said:

This particular fire escape was in such bad condition, however, with steps missing and the top pulled away from the wall, that, according to Director Denny, it was noted by fire prevention men, and a notice was sent March 16, 1933, to E. L. Kearns, 311 Ross street, owner or agent, that the escape was dangerous.

Ley said that George A. Givens is the building inspector assigned to the district, and that if he had made a report on the fire escape, Ley did not know about it. Director Denny plans a conference with Ley today, he said.

BANDITS SLUG WOMAN, BEAT AND ROB SHOE SALESMAN

FOOTPADS TAKE PURSE FROM PEDESTRIAN

Victim in Hospital From Blow; Leave Man for Dead

A woman who was walking home alone was beaten and robbed in the East End and, on the North Side, four midnight sluggers beat and robbed a motorist, the police reported today.

Miss Pearl Katz, 37, was walking to her home at 1108 Winterton street when, in Wellesley avenue, a footpad stepped from behind a tree, struck her viciously over the head, snatched her purse containing $1.75 and fled.

Miss Katz had been to a meeting in the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association in Oakland.

On the North Side, Lawrence Sadow, shoe salesman, reported that when he entered his auto in Ohio street, the four bandits beat him unconscious. They drove his car across North Side streets to the Watsonia boulevard district, emptied his pockets of $23 and pushed him from the car after binding and gagging him, he said.

Cuba's New President Making His 'Inaugural' Address

PRESIDENT GRAU SAN MARTIN (WHITE SUIT, BELOW CENTER) SPEAKING FROM THE PALACE BALCONY AT HAVANA . . . INAUGURAL ADDRESS, IN EFFECT

OFFICERS DEFY CUBA'S NEW PRESIDENT

Barricaded in Hotel, Group Prepared To Fight

HAVANA, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Defiant army officers, barricaded and besieged in the sumptous National hotel, resisted the new government's demands today that they come to terms immediately.

They scoffed at an ultimatum from President Ramon Grau San Martin that they yield in 24 or 36 hours and made ready for a showdown on their stand that Former President de Cespedes' administration be reinstated.

Backed by the powerful ABC and OCRR secret societies, the erstwhile commanders, estimated from 300 to 500 in number, were armed and prepared for any contingency—continued siege or, as some predicted, battle.

BUILDING GUARDED

Soldiers who arose against them last Monday and toppled over the de Cespedes regime—which was supplanted first by a revolutionary junta and, on Sunday, by Grau San Martin—kept an airtight line about the building.

Capt. Mario Torres Menier, former head of the Aviation Corps, was one who saw trouble and possible bloodshed ahead. He declared:

"This can't go on. We've got to do something, even if it means fight."

Believing Col. Fulgencio Batista, promoted from a top sergeancy after he led the revolt of Monday a week ago, can hold the army behind him, the administration prepared to go about its work.

Secretary of State, Marcus Sterling, former ambassador to Washington; Treasury, Manuel Despaigne; Justice, Joaquin Del Rio Balmaseda; Education, Manuel Costales Latatu; War and Navy, Col. Julio Aguado; Communications, Manuel Moreno.

Previously Dr. Carlos Juan Finlay had accepted the sanitation department portfolio, and Antonio Guiteras took the secretaryship of interior.

CANOE SPEEDS TO AID 'LOST' BALLOONISTS

2 American Entrants In Race Down in Canadian Wilds

Frank A. Trotter, intrepid balloonist, tells his own story of the perilous flight on Page 17.

SUDBURY, Ontario, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Injured and ill from a week of struggling through dense bushes, but considering themselves "mighty lucky," two American entrants in the James Gordon Bennett Balloon Races were ready today to canoe back to civilization.

Ward T. Van Orman and Frank A. Trotter were found yesterday, their clothes in shreds, their shoe soles worn thin from walking, and their stamina undermined by a diet of beans and blueberries, by James Barrett, lineman for a hydro-electric company.

The hydro-electric station at Thor Lake is sending two experienced canoemen to a point six miles from the cabin. Van Orman and Trotter plan to walk to the craft, be paddled three miles to Thor Lake, and be put aboard a freight train for Sudbury.

Van Orman, who suffered hip, face and chest bruises when the basket of their balloon plowed through trees before coming to rest 20 feet above the ground, felt dubious about his ability to walk the distance, and four men were sent on foot through the dense brush to carry him if need be.

Trotter was bruised about the head and hands. Both were ill because of their scanty food, but appeared in fine spirits at the prospect of leaving the wilderness.

QUEBEC, Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Hoping to recover the balloon in which he and Capt. Franciszek Hynek soared 812 miles in the Bennett Cup balloon race, Lieut. Zbygniew Burzynski, Polish army balloonist, today planned to hop northward from here in an airplane.

HARRIS BUYS ALVIN THEATER

The Harris Amusement Companies today announced the purchase of the Alvin Theater, Sixth street, once one of Pittsburgh's most popular legitimate theaters, from Harvard University.

It is the twentieth theater in a new chain which the Harris interests, headed by Senator Frank J. Harris, have organized. At the same time, acquisition of the Alhambra Theater, Penn avenue, was announced.

Purchase of the Alvin theater from Harvard University, which acquired it in the will of Paul Keith, son of B. F. Keith, father of vaudeville, returns the historic playhouse to the fold of the Harris family. Soon after its construction by the late Charles L. Davis, it passed into control of the Harry Davis Enterprises Company, of which Senator Harris' brother, the late Senator John P. Harris, was general manager. Extensive alterations to both theaters have been planned.

SCHOOL LIFTS BARE LEG BAN

MORRISVILLE, Pa., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Bare legs are officially proper again in the Fallsington School and the sartorial "battle of the socks" has been won.

J. Harry Hoffman, Bucks County school superintendent, ordered the Falls Township School Board to repeal the three-year-old rule forbidding pupils to wear socks to school.

Cheers of parents greeted the announcement of Hoffman's ruling at a meeting of the Falls Township Taxpayers' Association last night, for a storm of protest had followed the school board's action last week in suspending three 12-year-old girls from the seventh grade because they appeared in classes with short socks. The girls had been reinstated Saturday night, pending a final ruling from Hoffman.

UNION IGNORES STRIKE VOTE

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 12.—With a ballot being taken to end the strike in the Walworth Brass and Steel Valve plant, both the company and strikers made conflicting claims. Howard Coonly, president of the company, said yesterday's voting showed 375 of 1,088 factory workers and 99 of 110 office workers and salaried foremen voted to end the strike. The balloting, he said, would continue until Wednesday night.

Heads of the Walco local of the Steel and Metal Workers Industrial Union, asking recognition by the company, said the union will refuse to accept the outcome of balloting, claiming the men were coerced by company foremen.

Gas Blast Injures Crafton Woman

An aged Crafton woman was in a serious condition in the Mercy Hospital today with burns suffered in a gas explosion at her home late yesterday, according to police.

Police said the explosion occurred when the victim, Mrs. Mary Emerald, 83, of 18 Creighton avenue, attempted to light a gas oven. She was knocked unconscious and severely burned by the blast, which rocked the neighborhood and shattered virtually all windows in the Emerald home.

Tiny 'Lung Lamp' To Aid in Fight On Tuberculosis

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—A new ultraviolet lamp, so small as to permit being introduced into the bronchial tubes, but powerful enough to help cure tuberculosis, was described to the American Congress of Physical Therapy at its twelfth annual meeting today.

The therapeutic value of the lamp, devised by electrical engineers in New York, was recounted by Dr. M. Joseph Mandelbaum, of New York.

The value of ultraviolet light in tuberculosis has long been known, Dr. Mandelbaum pointed out, but for mechanical reasons and because of the high temperature of the burners, ordinary quartz lamps could not be introduced into body cavities.

With the new device, which is attached to a flexible insulated cable, direct application of the rays to diseased lung tissue is now possible, he said. It is described as emitting cold, ultraviolet waves of 2,540 A. U., using a short wave generator to energize a miniature quartz bulb mounted on the end of a catheter tube through monopolar conductors.

The rays are applied for only three minutes at first, treatments being given every three days and lengthened to a maximum of five minutes. The patient's throat is first anesthetized. The method of application was devised by Dr. Mandelbaum and tried out first on rabbits.

SUNDAY'S FALL PROVES FATAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—George M. Sunday, 40, son of Billy Sunday, the evangelist, died here last night from injuries received in a fall from a window of his fourth-floor apartment Thursday night.

His jaw broken by the fall, Sunday denied in a scribbled note the assertion of his wife, the former Mauryne Reichard, of Hollywood, that they had quarreled.

He wrote:

"I lost my balance and fell out. I had no argument. I had not been drinking."

Mrs. Sunday, who married the evangelist's son after his divorce from his first wife, told police of a violent scene in which her husband struck her in the eye, broke one of her fingers and then threatened suicide.

At the bedside were Sunday's father, who cancellel meetings in Portland, Ore., to come here, his mother and his wife.

'Baby Peggy' Loses Film Damage Suit

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The $501,650 damage suit brought by 14-year-old Peggy Montgomery, film player, and her father, Jack Montgomery, charging breach of contract, was decided yesterday in favor of the defendants, James Gleason and Norman Sperr.

Montgomery charged Gleason and Sperr failed to carry out a contract to star the child "Baby Peggy" in a series of pictures.

Luck Saves One As Seven Die in Mine Explosion

A young miner explained today how a freak of chance saved him from the death which overtook seven other men yesterday in the Hillman Coal and Coke Company's Oakmont mine, at Barking station.

Joseph Payer, 23, of Springdale, a snapper, was riding the rear end of a string of four cars when an explosion occurred. In the Citizens' General Hospital, New Kensington, where he is recovering from burns and bruises, Payer explained:

"The pumps weren't working Sunday. I suppose gas collected in that low spot where the stuff let go. It's a big dip in the shaft, like where a road goes under a railroad.

"We were taking out the first load. There's a switch right there at the low spot, and the trolley pulled out a hot spark as we went over the switch. First thing I knew I was flying through the air and the roof and the pillars was falling."

Coroner W. J. McGregor said he had been informed by Bureau of Mines experts that the explosion had been caused by an accumulation of gas and not coal dust, as at first supposed. He added:

"The mine shaft was not damaged to any extent. The victims had no broken bones or lacerations; only three of them had slight burns. Carbon monoxide was the cause of death. This was proved when we found 90 per cent of it in the blood of two of the dead miners after a test."

AUTOIST FIGHTS OWN LAWSUIT

Donald J. Slusser, of 468 Cascade street, who got himself out of a $30,000 damage suit yesterday, today got himself back into it. And he'll be his own lawyer.

Yesterday, when neither attorney for the complainants, Karl Poppel and Rose Radio, nor Slusser's appeared, Slusser made a motion before Judge James H. Gray to non-suit the case. Judge Gray granted it.

Today, when Attorney Morse J. Keller appeared before Judge Gray and asked to reopen the case, Slusser agreed and said he would defend himself. He explained:

"I think I have a good case. And I think I can win."

LAMSON'S FATE HANGS ON SPOT

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 12.—Dr. Frederich Proescher, noted pathologist for the prosecution, today revealed that the state will base its demand that David A. Lamson be hanged on a tiny blood spot on the inside of the sleeve of Lamson's coat found in the bathroom.

He said that Dr. E. O. Heinrich, defense criminologist, accounted "nicely" for all other blood spots—found on the walls, floor and Lamson's pajamas—but that he failed to eliminate this tiny spot from the prosecution's case.

5 MORE VICTIMS OF GALE FOUND

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 12. (AP.) — The discovery of five more bodies had increased to 29 today the number of fatalities caused by a tropical hurricane which swept the lower Rio Grande valley and adjacent Gulf Coast last week.

Four unidentified Mexicans were found crushed to death in the ruins of a shack. The body of "Uncle Jim" Sumners, veteran fisherman, drowned in the storm, drifted ashore at Red Fish Bay.

Flood waters which coursed down the Rio Grande after the violent wind and rain storm still menaced the valley, but except for a break in the Willacy County floodway levee, the flood control works were withstanding the battering of the swollen stream.

Barking Dogs Don't Bite, Aimee's Dare to Dave

International News Service.

KENOSHA, Wis., Sept. 12.—David Hutton, the portly baritone, is using his divorce threat as a "publicity stunt" to promote his vaudeville career, his evangelist wife, Aimee Semple McPherson, charged today.

Mrs. McPherson—that is the name she said she prefers now—challenged Hutton to make good his threat to divorce her by filing the necessary papers. She complained:

"I am sick and tired of all the threats of a divorce action with no action. For weeks I have begged him, his manager and his attorney to go through with the divorce, but they have so far neglected that important step."

The evangelist flew here from Minneapolis to address the fourth annual convention of the eastern district of the Four Square Gospel Church. She said:

"Barking dogs don't bite, and I rather think he is using this divorce as a publicity stunt for his cheap theatrical adventure. I'm afraid they are not serious about the divorce. If he wants one he can get it any time."

Mrs. McPherson said she would be here until Tuesday night after which she will depart for a short rest before starting a revival campaign in a New York theater on September 22.

WAR ON RACKET REIGN PLEDGED BY M'ARDLE

Declaring rackets had become an outstanding problem in American political life, P. J. McArdle, Independent Republican candidate for mayor, struck at the Pittsburgh police system in an address in Perry High School, Perrysville avenue, last night.

Al Capone's offer to quit all but the beer racket if the government would let him alone shows how far the county has come under the gangster's domination, McArdle said, continuing:

"The thought is spreading that city government is a mere agency whereby rackets may grow and control the destinies of the county.

"Police, under direction, support law violation they are sworn to suppress. Thus all discipline is destroyed.

"The higher-up who gives the police orders to enter illegal partnership with crime will attempt no control over other city departments' excesses."

McArdle promised:

"If elected, I will cure this condition in Pittsburgh. The success or failure of my administration will stand on whether I can accomplish it."

Among other speakers were Mrs. J. O. Miller, of the Citizens' League, and the councilmanic candidates, Edward O. Tabor, Howard B. McNutt, Charles Wolff and Robert N. Waddell.

McArdle and the councilmanic candidates on his ticket will speak tonight in American Legion Hall, 2610 Perrysville avenue.

The Independent Republican candidates also are to speak at the Beacon Club, 5800 Munhall road, at 2 p. m., and at the residence of P. E. Henninger, 548 S. Braddock avenue, at 2:30.

Independence of Herron Opponents Disputed

"No greater deception has been paraded before voters than the pretended independence of the two candidates who are opposing Mayor Herron for nomination. Frequently in the past, in fact every time they could get it, these candidates have had the full support of the regular Republican organization in their quests for public office. They are not entitled to support."

CITES HERRON RECORD

The really independent voters will cast their ballots for Mayor Herron because of his experience and honesty, Dunmire said.

Attorney Leonard S. Levin, chairman of the Republican speakers' committee, praised Mayor Herron for his humanitarianism in an address.

Less than 1 per cent of the tax dollar is spent for recreational facilities, Levin said, yet last year 1,156,973 persons used the playgrounds and 1,780,592 the city swimming pools.

PLEA TO CITIZENS

Attorney M. Leon Tolochko, in an address, called on citizens to show their appreciation of the accomplishments of the present administration by returning its candidates to office.

The record of the administration exposed the weakness of its opponents' cases, he said.

Miss Suzanne Beatty urged support of the Mayor, because, she said, for 20 years he has served the people faithfully and well, with absolute integrity and courage.

Mackrell Raps Machine And 'Silk Hat Allies'

Naming the Citizens' League "silk hat allies of the Mellon-Grundy-Coyne machine," Joseph N. Mackrell, Progressive Republican candidate for Mayor, charged he was the object of a campaign based on lies and deceit, in addresses last night.

Speaking at Frick Teachers' Training School, Sterrett School and Homewood Carnegie Library, Mackrell said:

"Have you ever seen a candidate for Mayor subjected to all the villification, slander, and character assasination they are hurling at me? They surely must be afraid of me.

"The Mellon-Grundy-Coyne machine and their silk hat allies, the Citizens' League, have resorted to the vilest methods known to man. I have denied their charges, and reiterate that denial here tonight."

Predicting his election in spite of all opposition, Mackrell said he would continue to fight for the "clean and constructive principles of my platform." He stated:

"All this campaign rot they have been feeding you, through newspapers, radio and pamphlets, is only to divert your attention from the one and only issue in this campaign—Coyne and Coyneism."

Mackrell, and other Progressive Republican candidates, will speak tonight in Taylor Allderdice High School, Shady avenue; Morningside School, Jancey street, and Mackrell headquarters, 6430 Frankstown avenue.

Henry Warns of School Domination by Machine

Envisions Teachers Forced Into Fight For Votes

Warning that the "machine" would try again to control the school system, John M. Henry, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination, urged voters to smash its power, in an address in Colonial School, Murray avenue, last night.

Henry painted a picture of conditions, should the machine gain school control:

"In such a case, I can forsee the day when machine orders would go down the line that teachers must control the vote as policemen are forced to now.

"School children will be taught that the machine philosophy of government—tyranny and oppression—is right and proper.

"How would you like to have your children forced to believe men like Senator Coyne are statesmen? That the present government of Pittsburgh is a good government? That any progressive thinking is always bad?"

URGES INDEPENDENCE

Asserting Senator Coyne had attempted to drag the schools into politics in the last session of the Legislature, Henry said there could be no more constructive issue in the campaign than guaranteeing the independence of the educational system.

Henry will speak at 8:30 tonight at South Side High School, Tenth and Carson streets. Other speakers are John O'Neil, South Side political leader; Attorney Malcolm McDonald, and Leo Guthrie, candidate for Jury Commissioner.

Henry also was to address a meeting of the League of Women Voters at 2:30 p. m. in American Legion Hall, 2610 Perrysville avenue.

A major rally of the Henry campaign will be held Thursday night in Peabody High School. Speakers, besides Henry, will include former Internal Revenue Collector C. G. Lewellyn and former United States Attorney E. Lowry Humes.

McNair Asks Election To Aid Administration

Discoursing both in English and Italian, William N. McNair, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination, last night praised the national administration for bringing back the principles of Jeffersonian democracy.

Speaking at East End Democratic headquarters, Frankstown avenue, McNair said:

"The principle that all men are created equal is the foundation of the Democratic party. Yet in this city there is one man who can tell you whether you shall work. That man is Andrew W. Mellon. Does Mellon run this government? He might have a year ago, but now there is a man in Washington to tell him otherwise."

ADMINISTRATION PLEA

McNair said the national administration had aroused the people from lethargy to the use of the machinery of government. He urged the election of his slate to support the administration.

Former Police Magistrate Charles F. Papale presided. Other speakers were John Heinz, candidate for Sheriff; John J. Kane, candidate for Council; John M. Huston, candidate for Council; A. Marshall Thompson, candidate for Common Pleas Court, and Congressman Henry Ellenbogen.

Candidates on the ticket headed by McNair will speak at the following meetings tonight:

McNair, Representatives John J. Kane and Thomas J. Gallagher, and Walter R. Demmler, candidates for Council; James L. O'Toole, Jr., for County Court, and Jury Commissioner Thomas A. Dougherty, candidate for re-election, at the Brookline School, Woodburn and Pioneer avenues, Brookline.

McNair, Kane, Gallagher, John M. Huston and George E. Evans, candidates for Council; Dean A. Marshall Thompson, of Pitt law school, for Common Pleas Court; Austin L. Staley, for County Court; John Heinz, for Sheriff, at Liberty Hall, Million street, near Twenty-sixth street, South Side.

John J. Kennedy and Andrew G. Smith, candidates for Common Pleas Court, and Heinz, at Preston School, Rowse Township.

GOLLMAR CITES MORTGAGE AID

Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, candidate for re-election, said he had used his office to relieve those in distress, in an address last night.

Gollmar said he had stopped 400 sheriff sales scheduled for the Monday after President Roosevelt closed the banks, and had then obtained passage of a resolution postponing all sales in the state 30 days.

Legislation enabling an unemployed person unable to meet mortgage payments to delay forced sale until he had an opportunity to protect his interests, was also obtained by his efforts, Gollmar said.

Gollmar's candidacy has been indorsed by Painters' Local Union No. 6, the Central Trades Council, the Walin Order of Mt. Washington; the Italian Republican Organization, of McKeesport; the Laurel Garden Republican Club, of Ross Township; the Roosevelt Civic League, of the Nineteenth Ward; North Side Lodge 76, Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of America; the Third Ward Republican Club, of McKeesport; the Hungarian Club, of McKeesport; the McKeesport Sons of Italy; the Second Ward Republican Club, of Port Vue, and the Polish American Citizens' Club, of McKeesport.

M'NAIR BACKERS OPEN MEETINGS

Democrats supporting the ticket headed by William N. McNair, for mayor, were to open a series of daily pre-primary noon-day meetings at their headquarters, Magee Building, 334 Fourth avenue, today with a speech by Dr. Marion K. McKay, president of the Allegheny County Civic Club.

The meetings will be carried to the street by means of a loud speaker system. McKay indorsed McNair's candidacy Saturday as the best means of bringing good government and the New Deal to Pittsburgh.

Coyne to Receive Award from 80th

Pittsburgh-Made Garb for Police, Firemen Urged

A committee from Local No. 86, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, has approached the Chamber of Commerce with a petition urging that police and firemen's uniforms be made by Pittsburgh firms. The uniforms, the union said, are now made elsewhere.

Israel Cohen, president of No. 86, is heading the campaign for purchase of Pittsburgh-made clothing.

Charges Douglas Took Cost Sheet From File

The missing account of the expenses of John Douglas, Jr., during the 1921 campaign for mayor, said to include $35,000 paid him by Joseph N. Mackrell, in return for his withdrawal, disappeared from the clerk of courts office while Douglas held this office, an aide of Samuel J. Topley, the present clerk of courts asserted today.

Topley made public an affidavit sworn to by William Frank, one of his clerks, in which Frank said he had personal knowledge that Douglas removed the account from the files of the office a short time after it had been placed there.

Frank declared that four weeks ago he met Douglas in the Mayfair Hotel and that Douglas reminded him of the removal of the account from the files and its destruction.

WADDELL URGES M'ARDLE VOTE

Stating that recent unfavorable publicity had "eliminated" Joseph N. Mackrell from the mayoralty race, Robert N. Waddell, councilmanic candidate, today urged independent voters to unite behind P. J. McArdle, Independent Republican candidate for Mayor.

Speaking at a noon meeting at Independent Republican headquarters, Hotel William Penn, Waddell said the slate headed by McArdle was composed of men especially independent of political faction. He asked voters to "pay the price" of real campaign effort in the last days before the primary.

Elected councilmanic candidates will be called upon to face an unparalleled situation, Charles Wolff, Citizens' League candidate for Council, declared.

Wolff advocated a thorough audit of all city departments as a necessary first step toward relieving taxpayers and bringing conditions to normal. An audit would permit taxpayers to know where their money went and furnish Council with an authentic record to work from, he said.

WOMAN SCORES 'BOSS RULE'

The issue of the present political campaign is whether Pittsburgh shall remain under the domination of Senator James J. Coyne, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, of the Citizens' Committee, stated in an address this morning.

Citing scandals in the supply and treasury department, Mrs. Smith said:

"Early in the Coyne-Kline machine administration, supported by Herron, then president of Council, it was evident that the goal of the administration was not efficiency, but the building of an organization that would perpetuate the rule of the bosses."

Praising the record, intelligence, and courage of P. J. McArdle, Independent Republican candidate for mayor, Mrs. Smith presented his platform in full, as one which dealt directly with the problems confronting the community today.

LABOR LEADER LAUDS MALONE

James F. Malone, candidate for City Council, has received from John A. Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, a letter praising Malone for his friendliness to workingmen.

Phillips extended Malone an "unqualified indorsement." In his letter he said:

"Because of your frank and sympathetic attitude toward organized labor, and the assistance you rendered to the members of the building trades unions in maintaining the prevailing union rates of wages as Secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Property and Supplies, we deem it a privilege to extend to you our unqualified indorsement.

"We feel sure that the citizens of Pittsburgh will want as a member of the City Council one who has so definitely stood for a square deal for labor in the past."

Kindness Need In Child Court, Schramm Says

The atmosphere of the new Juvenile Court must be designed to win the confidence of child offenders, Gustav L. Schramm, candidate for the Court, said in addresses last night. He stated:

"The judge himself can help this atmosphere along by sitting as a friendly advisor to delinquent children. Nothing is gained by trying to awe them with the majesty of the law. They must be shown the right path of behavior, not driven along it."

Schramm spoke before five meetings of the League of Women Voters, in Thornburg Community House, and the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust building, Forbes street.

Magistrates Back McBride Candidacy

The candidacy of Mrs. Lois McBride for Juvenile Court has been indorsed by aldermen and justices of the peace of the county, A. W. McMillen, president of the group, announced. The Missionary Society of the Mt. Washington A. M. E. Church and the Independent Republican organization of the Thirty-second Ward have made similar indorsements.

Mrs. McBride will speak in Amreican Legion Hall this afternoon.

Independent Republicans will hold a rally in Hillside Avenue public school Thursday night. Among speakers will be Judge Ralph H. Smith and Alexander P. Lindsay, candidates for Common Pleas Court; Judges Benjamin Lencher and Frank A. Piekarski, for County Court; H. C. Workmaster and local candidates.

JUDGE M. A. MUSMANNO

Regardless of your choice for other offices, don't forget to vote for Judge M. A. Musmanno, candidate for Court of Common Pleas. He has proven himself able, honest and faithful to his public trust. The Pittsburgh Press in an editorial on September 10, 1933, said of Judge Musmanno:

"M. A. Musmanno is an outstanding liberal and humanitarian."

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph editorially commended Judge Musmanno by saying:

BRIEF SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF M. A. MUSMANNO

Born in Stowe Township, Allegheny County, where he has always maintained his home. Graduate of local public schools. As a boy and young man sold newspapers, worked on a farm and in a steel plant to acquire funds with which to go to college. Secured his University education in Washington, D. C., where he acquired the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, Bachelor of Laws, Master of Laws, Master of Patent Laws, Doctor of Juristic Science and Doctor of Laws.

Served in the World War and now holds commission of Captain in the Judge Advocate General Department. Wrote a book, "Proposed Amendments to the Constitution," which was adopted by Congress as a national document and circulated in libraries and colleges throughout the nation. Because of this work, Musmanno was made a member of the American Association of Legal Authors. He has written articles for legal reviews and political science magazines. Member of the Allegheny County Bar Association, Pennsylvania Bar Association and American Bar Association. Member of the American Legion and Reserve Officers' Association.

Elected to Pennsylvania Legislature from the Twelfth District in 1928 and served in the 1929 session. Re-elected in 1930 by the largest vote ever given a member of that district. Served in the 1931 regular session and 1931 extra session. When John Barcoski, an Imperial, Pa., coal miner, was killed by coal and iron police, he conducted an investigation to get the facts. He assisted in the criminal prosecution which resulted in two coal and iron police being sent to prison, and he led the fight in the Legislature for the abolition of this "cossack" system of private police. As a state representative, he supported election reform laws, old-age pensions, measures for the relief of the unemployed, and sponsored and supported legislation which would place in the hands of the people the determination of controversial subjects of a local nature. Speaking of Musmanno's legislative activities, the Mt. Lebanon Times, an independent newspaper of a highly independent district, carried on the front page this editorial comment:

"Representative Musmanno has dared to have a mind of his own; he has dared to express it and his record in the Legislature of Pennsylvania has been honest, fearless and outstanding. He was a square shooter all the way and he tried to give every citizen a square deal—the poor man as well as the rich man."

On January 1, 1933, the Civil Liberties Union commended Judge Musmanno for his work on the bench. The Pittsburgh Press, commenting on this citation, said:

"We rejoice likewise that Judge M. A. Musmanno of County Court was listed on the honor roll for distinguished service in behalf of free speech, free press and free assembly in Pennsylvania. As an attorney and a member of the Legislature M. A. Musmanno established a bright record as a champion of civil liberties, and he has added to this record on the bench."

LOBBY PERILING NRA, LABOR WARNS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—An open threat to go before the country and demand shorter hours from industrial captains under NRA codes was made last night by President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor as he charged Washington was filled with "agents and lobbyists of great manufacturing enterprises."

Asserting in a statement that "re-employment has not been what it should have been," Green said:

"If we enter the coming winter with the seven or eight millions of unemployed now indicated, the labor movement cannot guarantee that stability necessary to orderly industrial recovery.

"Labor stated in the beginning, and even long before the Recovery Act became a law, that American industry required a 35-hour week if we were to recover from depression. Literally scores of modified re-employment agreements have established work weeks of 40 hours and more. Some have been as long as 50 hours.

"Let me ask industry, as it seeks these astoundingly long work weeks, how long can we be expected to refrain from going to the country on the issue thus laid down? Not long, let me assure you.

LOBBIES ASSAILED

"Today Washington is filled with the agents and lobbyists of great manufacturing enterprises and their Wall street financiers. Many of them have no conception, no idea, of the meaning of a new deal. They are trying again to restore the old deal. They are trying all of the old back doors and some new back doors and they find much help in these places. They have got too much there already."

Green asserted that the NRA's labor advisory board has been "compelled to fight one battle after another in behalf of the integrity of the law and its spirit, and in behalf of the ideals found in that law by the President and his administrator," Hugh S. Johnson.

Green issued his statement after a meeting of the executive council of the federation in preparation for the national convention October 2, at which he will stand for re-election. He said:

"Beyond any question the National Recovery Administration has reached a point where there must be a reviving of purpose toward the two main objectives, the creation of employment and the raising of purchasing power."

DECEPTION CHARGED

"While we contend that the language used in the automobile code, to the effect that employment, discharge and promotion is to be on the basis of merit does not modify or change the law, we know that in practice that extenuating language is being used by employers in such a manner as to constitute a modification in fact. They are extracting portions of the language for use on bulletin boards and in house organs in such a manner as to indicate to workers that the language inserted in the code is in fact the law, omitting entirely the concluding words which assert that the clause does not change or modify the law.

"One of the best ways to promote strikes and general discord will be to tamper with the law, either as to its interpretation or its application. The great masses of our people have faith that their economic delivery lies in the National Industrial Recovery Act and it will not be for the best interests of America if they are disappointed through quibbling and twisting and evading."

BEAUTY SHOPS RAP NRA

Attorney Walter M. Newman, counsel for the Pennsylvania Hairdressers' Association, criticized NRA officials today for not providing enforcible minimum price agreements to assure "healthy competition" for beauty shop owners.

He declared that if the administration permits price cutting below the point of bringing reasonable returns as well as costs, it is sure to confiscate the business of those not financially powerful by compelling them to increase their costs beyond their receipts. He said:

"The great majority of shop owners want to comply with the recovery program. To do so they adopted a minimum price agreement. But if they are unaided by the administration in compelling observance of the agreement, there will be an avalanche of destructive price competition that may preclude the possibility of further compliance with the program of higher wages."

He said it is difficult to find why minimum price agreements are recognized in the oil and other industries and not in the hairdressing industry.

10,000 Miners Strike, Protest Delay on Code

which had been closed by a strike for several days, resumed part operation today when the trouble was patched up. The men had walked out when one of their number was discharged, according to reports, for failure to clean up his place in the mine. The basis of settlement was not disclosed.

LOCKOUT DENIED

Thomas Moses, president of the Frick Coke Company, called this correspondent by telephone today to deny that the Colonial mines were closed in anticipation of a walkout tomorrow. He said:

"Our Colonial mines suspended operations today, but this is not unusual. We are working only part time in these mines and it just so happened there would have been no place to load the coal if we had worked. We do not anticipate any holiday or any strike. Our employes are not joining in any such movement."

Meanwhile insurgent mine leaders went ahead with plans for calling a general "holiday" throughout the district beginning at midnight tonight. The "holiday" would continue, leaders declared, as long as the deliberations in Washington over the NRA coal code.

The walkout has spread to parts of Westmoreland and Allegheny counties contrary to the pleas of the United Mine Workers leaders, who have sought to avert a strike at this time. More than a score of mines, including a number of Frick operations, are expected to join a sympathy strike by this time tomorrow if the code is not signed by this afternoon.

'HOLIDAY' ASSURED

Even if the code was signed today, tomorrow's "holiday" would be observed, leaders said. In this event the occasion would lend itself to joyful celebration. Today is payday at the mines.

Leadership in the present strike call is accredited to Martin Ryan, local president at Colonial No. 4. The insurgent leader, elected check-weighman at the Frick mine, wields the sceptre of authority over miners in these parts. Rumor has it that he has ambition to become a district leader, if not president.

William Feeney, president of District No. 4, has issued a statement urging the men to remain on the job and disregard the insurgent strike call.

Ryan's answer to that is:

"We will strike the entire district 100 per cent by this time tomorrow if the code is not signed. We'll take a holiday tomorrow anyway."

Feeney's statement, addressed to members of the United Mine Workers from Washington reads:

"The United Mine Workers of America are not authorizing any strike at this time. We intend to obey the regulations of the truce agreed to with the President of the United States through Hugh S. Johnson. We ask our membership to remain at work until the coal code is completed and signed by the President."

Everybody today was preparing for strike trouble. Sheriff Harry Hackney declared he was ready to assemble an extra force of deputies, even if he had to go out into the streets to draft able-bodied citizens. He said he would not ask for state police assistance and it was considered not unlikely that Gov. Gifford Pinchot would order the withdrawal of state police now in the district. The Governor and Sheriff Hackney still are at odds over the last outbreak, when martial law was declared to override the sheriff's proclamation against picketing.

Frick officials were watching developments with an eye to increasing the company deputies. Extra men were kept in reserve at Scottdale.

UNREST IN REGION

The entire district seethed with unrest. Even the accredited union organizers, although refusing to be quoted, described the rank and file as being "very restless." One of the union officials said:

"It's just four weeks since Deputy Labor Secretary McGrady promised the miners 'immediate relief.' He told them that President Roosevelt was going to take a hand in the coal situation and if the operators didn't come to time, the President would make them.

"Four weeks is a long time to these men and I'm afraid they're going to take matters into their own hands."

Already the strike has spread into scattered mines in Greene, Washington, Westmoreland and Allegheny counties. It was estimated today that upwards of 10,000 men already are on strike.

If all of Fayette County's mines join the walkout, the number of men will have been increased by at least 20,000.

UNION DEFIED

With 10,000 men already idle in the new protest walkout, leaders of the United Mine Workers were vainly attempting to stem the tide, pending a conference at Pricedale, Westmoreland County, tomorrow.

This parley to be participated in by union officials of Districts Nos. 3, 4 and 5 was expected to determine whether a general strike shall be called.

Without waiting for the result of the meeting, however, miners laid down their tolls.

Two more Westmoreland County mines closed today bringing the number shut down to 13. The John Carr mine at Edna No. 1 employing 450 men and the Hillman Coal Company pit at Edna No. 2 employing 450, closed when the men refused to enter.

Fourteen men, alleged to have beaten George Connelly, deputy sheriff at the Salemville mine, Keystone Coal and Coke Company, were held for court today in $2,000 bail each, following hearings before Alderman J. A. Walton, in Greensburg. They are charged with inciting to riot and felonious assault.

Connelly testified the 14 were part of a crowd of 200 striking miners that dragged him from his car Sunday night and beat him.

HAYS PLEDGES MORAL FILMS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Will H. Hays, motion picture czar, opening the motion picture code hearing today pledged the industry "to maintain right moral standards in the production of pictures."

To an audience of government representatives, producers, distributors, exhibitors and spokesmen for actors, he declared "no section of this code is more important from the standpoint of public interest and sound business" than the morality section.

Regarding the fair trade practice section of the code, which was presented by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America of which he is president, Hays said:

"We are not agreed as an industry on all of these points. But we hope and believe that in this hearing these differences will be composed."

Facing Deputy Recovery Administrator Morris Rosenblatt, Hays detailed the size of the industry, saying it employed 290,000 persons and paid more than $100,000,000 in taxes annually.

Taxicab Drivers Seek Wage Raise

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—One hundred and seventeen drivers for the Yellow Taxicab Company went on a strike today in a demand for higher wages.

Strike leaders said the drivers seek a minimum wage of $14.75 a week. The minimum now paid is "considerably less" than this figure, they said.

Cats Imprisoned By 'Bankruptcy' Released

A cat and her kitten had been liberated today from enforced imprisonment in a confectionery store at Eighth and Amity streets, Homestead, closed by creditor claims.

The imprisoned pair were accidentally shut in the store by a constable Saturday and attracted considerable attention during the week-end.

PINCHOT PLANS STATE POLICE FOR FAYETTE

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—State officials watched the Western Pennsylvania bituminous situation today, prepared to act quickly to preserve order in event of another strike.

From reliable sources, it was learned that state police and not militia will be called upon by Gov. Pinchot regardless of the attitude of sheriffs and other authorities in the soft coal counties.

During the recent strike, the Governor declared virtual martial law and sent 325 National Guardsmen into Fayette County. He acted after Sheriff Harry E. Hackney refused to sign a "Lansdale agreement" under which the state police take complete control of strike areas and local police withdraw.

Since his order which sent militia marching into Fayette County, Gov. Pinchot has obtained from Attorney General William A. Schnader an opinion which declares the Governor is the "highest civil as well as the military authority." The ruling holds all county officers, including the sheriff, to be "subordinate."

On the strength of this opinion, well informed officials assert Pinchot will issue immediate orders under which state police will take charge of strike areas, and there will be no necessity for calling out the National Guard.

In the early part of the recent Fayette County strike, Maj. Adams said, Sheriff Hackney refused to sign the "Lansdale agreement," but asked Gov. Pinchot for state police assistance.

Sheriff Hackney, Maj. Adams continued, "wanted things done the way he wanted them done," and the Governor refused to send state police on those terms.

The superintendent said Pinchot insisted on the right of striking miners to "picket peacefully" and that this assurance was not given by Sheriff Hackney.

BIG GAIN SHOWN IN ADVERTISING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Citing newspaper display advertising as "one of the most accurate business barometers," the Recovery Administration today disclosed the results of a survey showing "a definite and appreciable upturn."

The information came from 25 large cities and revealed a 16 per cent gain in advertising in August this year as compared with the same month of 1932. The total this year was 41,925,028 lines as compared with 36,608,728 in August of last year.

NRA officials expressed the belief that "the upturn is a definite reflection of renewed confidence on the part of the nation's business resulting in larger advertising budgets.

The 25 cities were New York City, St. Louis, Portland, Cleveland, Jacksonville, Pittsburgh, Atlanta, St. Paul, San Francisco, Dallas, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Louisville, Boston, Denver, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Chicago, Detroit, Omaha, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Kansas City, Dayton and Seattle.

Gain in Business Forces Opening of Watch Factory

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The NRA program was credited today by John H. Ballard, vice president of the Bulova Watch Company, with bringing a tremendous increase in its business. Ballard was here for a convention of credit jewelers. He said:

"Because of the NRA plan, we did as much business in August as in the entire first half of 1933. My firm will be forced to open a new factory in Waltham, Mass., about the first of October."

LOCAL BOARDS TO SUPERVISE NRA RULES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—NRA "compliance boards" are to be set up in every city and town to assure observance of the Blue Eagle agreements.

As outlined to reporters today by Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator, the duty of each board will be to investigate complaints of violations, hold hearings and seek to obtain voluntary compliance.

If this is not forthcoming, they will report to Washington for disciplinary action.

The local board will have no executive authority.

The compliance boards set up by today's order will be named by the NRA campaign committees in each community.

They shall consist of two employe representatives, one for industrial workers and the other for trade, two employers' spokesmen, one consumer representative, preferably a woman, and one lawyer.

These are to pick a chairman who shall be a citizen of unquestioned high standing and neutral as between the various interests.

Besides dealing with complains of agreement violation, the compliance boards will be charged with passing upon requests for exemptions presented by individual employers who claim great hardship would be caused them by NRA compliance; and also to consider applications for continuance of longer hour schedules now being worked by employes under union contracts.

By placing this new face on NRA, the administration will get the benefit of the enormous driving power of a nation of encouraged business men.

The good results will then flow freely to all branches of trade and employment.

THE PRESIDENT is not the President of any part of the American people. He is the President of all the people.

It is the party of the farmer, the industrialist, the workingman, the business man, the whole people.

Its concern and its activity should be for the welfare of the nation and of all the elements which constitute the nation.

It is only through the prosperity of all these elements that the nation can become soundly and permanently prosperous.

Cambria, Somerset Miners Back Truce

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 12.—(INS.)—Only a definite break in the bituminous coal code negotiations at Washington would precipitate a strike in the Cambria and Somerset counties coal field, it was indicated today as all active mines in the district were reported operating.

Miners Go Hatless After Strike Threat

CALIFORNIA, Pa., Sept. 12.—Five hundred men threatened to strike at the Vesta No. 4 mine of the Vesta Coal Company yesterday unless allowed to work without their "iron" hats. Officials said the miners entered the pit hatless, their demands satisfied.

A. F. OF L. HITS NEW UNION AT AMBRIDGE

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—With action on their application for a charter deferred, sponsors of an attempt to form a new union of American Bridge Company employes at Ambridge have two weeks to seek an agreement with organized labor, which opposes their efforts.

Describing the application as having "all the earmarks" of an attempt to form a "company union," representatives of the American Federation of Labor, the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor and the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers protested the granting of the charter at a hearing before Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, yesterday.

Beamish continued the hearing two weeks to permit Eugene Caputo, of Freedom, member of the State House of Representatives and counsel for the applicant, the Iron Workers' Local Union, to confer with organized labor unions.

NURSE AWAITS GRACE DEATH HEARING

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Police Judge Milton J. Coghlan has set Thursday for the preliminary hearing of Miss Frida Weltz, 43-year-old nurse, formerly of Connellsville, Pa., accused of slaying Francis Joseph Morgan Grace, Sr., 57, capitalist, on the lawn of his home last Saturday evening.

A coroner's inquest brought in a verdict thatt he nephew of the late W. R. Grace, founder of the exporting and importing concern and shipping line, had met his death "as the result of gunshot wounds in the chest."

During the inquest Miss Weltz sat with her head in her hands. She has refused to reveal the motive for the shooting. District Attorney Frank Murphy said she had admitted planning to kill Grave since she was discharged as his nurse 18 months ago.

DENIES ROMANCE

She told Murphy there was "no romance involved," and added:

"The real reason would probably seem trivial to you."

Miss Helene H. Robert, Grace's nurse at the time of his death, described the killing to the Coroner's jury. She said:

"I was seated on a swing talking to Mr. Grace, when Miss. Weltz appeared through the shrubbery and approached. Mr. Grace saw her, got up and walked over to her. They talked not more than a minute or two.

"I couldn't hear what they said. He came back to me and I asked him if he wanted her to go away. He said that he did.

REFUSES TO LEAVE

"I asked Miss Weltz why she didn't go and remonstrated with her, and when she wouldn't move I asked Mr. Grace if he didn't want to go into the house. He said he did.

"We got to the edge of the lawn and there was a shot. Mr. Grace plunged forward. I turned and saw the gun. I let go of Mr. Grace and struggled with her a moment trying to get the gun from her. I couldn't and called the butler, who got it. I ran to Mr. Grace, who was lying on the floor in the middle hall of the house. There were no blood stains showing then."

BUTLER'S STORY

The butler, Richard Frank, completed the story of the shooting. He explained:

"I heard an explosion. I stepped to the door of the hall and saw Mr. Grace entering the door of the house, staggering and reeling against the walls. I jumped to help him and tried to conduct him to bed. I saw no blood then. I heard shouts, 'Richard, Richard, she has a gun.'

"Mr. Grace was so heavy so I laid him down and went out the door. The two women were struggling. I tried to take the gun from Miss Weltz. She resisted me desperately and even when the gun was in my hand she tried to take it back. She wanted to shoot herself."

THE 1933 ADVENTURE IN CEREALS

Not like any other cereal

It's called Wheat Crackels. It's made by compressing the richest energy parts of wheat under 5000 pounds pressure to the square inch. This dextrinizes the starch granules. Increases ease and speed of digestibility.

Then we whirl the wheat in seething cyclones of 550° of heat. The tiny wheat hearts puff. Expand. Explode! Into delicious tissue walled tidbits. Toasted and flavored to the Queen's taste. New in appearance, taste and flavor.

Children and grown-ups alike prefer this cereal

Cleveland Carmen, Company Sign Pact

CLEVELAND, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—A working contract between the Cleveland Railway Company and the local carmen's union, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, was signed yesterday in the presence of Charles B. Barnes, NRA labor mediator.

The pact brought recognition to the union for the purpose of collective bargaining, the major demand of the workers in their threat to strike last week. They withdrew, however, a demand for a 25 per cent wage increase, leaving this matter for arbitration at a later date.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Have Male Specifications For Wives Changed?

This is for you—Pete, Sam, Johnny . . .

What are your specifications for a wife? Do you expect to play around, sow wild oats . . .

And then settle down with some spotless gal?

Or would you marry a miss who had played wild, too, provided she had sense and honesty, and loved you?

"Old Timer" barged into this column not long ago to tell us about the good old days, when, no matter how much of a heller a young man might have been, he "always expected to marry a good woman." And he thought the world was going to the dogs because Mister 1933 didn't seem so particular.

So we put the question up to the boys.

Answers? Listen...

We'll give "Young Buck" the first shot.

"My belief," says he, "is that if I run around and raise Cain I shouldn't kick if the girls do the same. I think that a woman's past is none of my business, provided it hasn't wrecked her health. I've kept mine, and so long as I'm capable of using even one of my senses, I intend to go on keeping it.

"This idea that a fellow can do as he pleases, and then marry some sweet young thing who will work herself to death while she listens to him tell about the fun he used to have, is the bunk.

"And my version of the 'Double Standard' is that it was a nice alibi, and a good chance for the average young buck to run around...to 'eat his cake, and have it, too'...

"And Old Timer should realize, too, that a lot of modern 'carousing' isn't as bad as it looks on the surface. Some is, of course, but a lot of it is just 'put on' to show off.

SPECIFICATIONS

"As for my specifications for a wife, maybe it sounds as if I wanted the moon, but I'll say—she doesn't have to be beautiful, but she must know how to keep herself nice looking. She must have a sense of humor. She must realize that men are human, and refrain from trying to make me over. She must like theaters, good music, bridge, good books. She must be a good sport and like to go camping now and then . . . and she must be honest and willing to give me a square deal."

Then there's Frank. He's strong for spotless ladies, because, he says—

"A man, no matter what he has been, should insist on marrying a good woman. Wifehood and motherhood are sacred. And no man should ever marry a woman whose past has any blot on it. He should never give his children a mother who is less than the best."

Grand idea, Frank! But are you willing to live by the same standards? And if children shouldn't have a mother who is "less than the best," how about them having a father who is second-hand goods?

BETTER UNDERSTANDING

Then there's Pat . . .

"What's the world coming to?" he asks.

And answers himself . . . "It's coming to a better moral understanding . . . an understanding that men and women are very little different, and both should expect a decent partner.

"Of course, I want to marry a girl with good morals," he assures us . . . "but I want one who knows her way around, too. In dad's day an 'innocent' (ignorant) girl may have had the big appeal, but today a man wants a wife who understands living and what life is about. We all need a certain amount of wild-cat background, in order to know our way around. But this idea of men running around wild and then expecting a girl to be better than they are, is all haywire.

"Personally, I don't expect any better wife than I am worthy of. And I think that men have no more rights than women, and they have no right to play around and expect the girls they expect to marry to sit around home every night and be contented with their sewing.

"So—we marry the girls we dance and dine with—if we have any sense of fairness . . . and if we want those girls good, it's up to us to stay good ourselves."

So there they are—which one gets your vote?

By FAY KING

Marriage is likened to a ship sailing forth upon the sea of matrimony. An apt allegory, for nothing is more admirable than a seaworthy vessel in shipshape order.

Too many couples hastily embark in fair weather boats. The first raindrop or wisp of unfavorable breeze sends them overboard, floating ashore with water wings of divorce.

Marriage should be a long voyage charted for the far port of contented old age together.

Captain and mate must know how to reef sails of selfishness in "storms," and in hard time willing to make a long tack, nosing that wind of hope that in time will bring them, round about, to a safe harbor.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Suspicions of Avis Arlen Are Confirmed

Hugh Grantland looked down at me gravely as I asked him how he could possibly know that I meant Avis Arlen in my reference to "an utterly worthless girl."

"In all my acquaintance with you, I never have known you to speak disparagingly of any save Miss Arlen, and then only under the compelling provocation of her atrocious behavior toward your husband's niece. I never have had occasion to tell you how completely I second the opinion you have just voiced, but I intended coming over to the farm today to warn you of her presence in the city. When you spoke in the fashion you did after you had telephoned the Veritzen offices, I knew that you must have learned she is there. Simple, isn't it?"

I forced a smile to my lips.

"'Elementary, my dear Watson,'" I quoted. "Yes, I spoke to her there."

I stopped, tentatively, and he took his cue.

"I saw her on the street, yesterday," he said, "and when she began to question me about Noel's marriage, I felt that she had some ulterior purpose in view, and that you should be warned of her presence in the city. She told me that she had but recently returned to New York."

"It's true then! She did steal that letter and read it!"

Characteristically, Hugh did not ask my meaning, but something in his eyes told me that he had no inkling of it, and I hastened to explain.

CONFIRMATION

"The letter which I wrote to Mr. Veritzen telling him of the date of Noel's marriage, was never received by him. As no one in the city outside our immediate family and your household knows of the marriage, the only way in which Avis Arlen could know of it was by reading that letter. Which I believe her perfectly capable of doing."

"You spoke just now of 'protecting' Miss Arlen. Do you mind telling me just what you have done? Forgive me if I am unduly inquisitive, but I know your infinite charity and kindness, and fear she may have imposed upon you."

"Not in this case," I assured him. "What I did was entirely of my own volition, and I acted upon a sudden impulse. Mr. Veritzen asked me to invite Mrs. Arlen and her daughter to the wedding, and, asked me to get the address from Miss Arlen. I had a queer little intuition that he meant to watch Avis as she telephoned to me, in order to learn from her possible confusion that she had tampered with the letter. So I pretended a sudden twinge of my ankle and asked permission to telephone him later.' I also pleaded nervousness as an excuse for asking him to let me talk to him instead of to anyone else."

"He would grant that request, I warrant," Hugh said quickly.

I ignored his manner, answered only his words.

"He did grant it, but now I am up against another problem. From what you have told me, I am certain Avis has that letter. Ought I to warn her, try to get it back—so that I—"

HUGH'S ADVICE

"So that you in some fashion can take the blame on your own shoulders, and shield what you yourself have called an "utterly worthless girl'!" Hugh exclaimed hotly. "If you're asking my advice, it is right here, ready. You ought not to do anything of the kind. Let Avis Arlen fight her own battles. From what I have seen of the young woman she is perfectly capable of protecting herself in any emergency."

"Not against Philip Veritzen's wrath, if he finds her out," I said stubbornly. "But I'll promise not to call her or speak to her about it unless she first speaks to me."

"It would be a bit awkward, wouldn't it?" he asked whimsically, "especially as you have no real proof of her action."

I nodded and reached for the telephone.

"I suppose I might as well call Mr. Veritzen again and ask him for Mrs. Arlen's address," I said. "Please don't go away—" as he rose abruptly from his chair. "I shall only be a minute."

He sat down again, and I called the number. When I secured the Veritzen offices, Helen Worthing's efficient voice held a suddenly apologetic note.

"Would you mind speaking to Miss Arlen before I call Mr. Veritzen? She says it is most important that she speak to you first."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Guest of Honor at Right

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our club is to give an informal luncheon at which there will be a guest of honor. Should the hostess sit at the head of the table? In relation to her, where should the guest of honor be seated? E.

Yes, the hostess should sit at the head of the table, and on her right would be the guest of honor.

Eating Fried Chicken

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—What is the proper way to eat fried chicken?

2—What is the proper way to eat a sandwich?

1—Eat fried chicken with the knife and fork. This is the only mannerly way, and certainly the only way pleasant for our eating companions to observe.

2—Whenever it is possible, and certainly for complicated kinds of sandwiches, choose to eat a sandwich with the knife and fork. For simpler kinds of sandwiches it is often convenient to use only a fork; for instance, for a small cheese sandwich. And very often, at tea parties, buffet parties, at soda fountains and so forth, we eat our sandwiches in our fingers.

3—No.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Nervous Exhaustion Is a Dangerous Condition

Dr. Copeland

We hear a great deal about nervous exhaustion and excessive fatigue. Yet few persons appreciate what a serious inroad on the health of the body this condition creates. I venture to say that everyone at some time or other has suffered from "nervous exhaustion." But it is the prolonged or continued state that is serious and becomes the cause of severe constitutional and nervous disorders.

Some persons are more liable to nervous disorders than others. Undoubtedly you are familiar with the person who has endless energy and rarely seems fatigued. Another person rapidly succumbs to any nervous or emotional strain. Suffice it to say that the nervous reactions of one individual differ markedly from those of another.

The human body can survive without food for a long period of time, but prolonged lack of rest is fatal. Nerve fatigue can often be overcome by short periods of rest in addition to regular sleep. Unfortunately, complete nervous exhaustion often requires an extensive rest period and continued medical supervision.

It may surprise you to learn that lack of rest or insufficient hours of sleep and relaxation may lead to serious constitutional disorders. Indigestion, diarrhea, colitis, constipation and insomnia are complications that can be traced to prolonged nerve fatigue. The sufferer is in a lowered state of health.

Too many men and women suffer from nervous exhaustion and associated nervous disorders, yet fail to consult with a physician. If you are always tired, sleep poorly, complain of headache and other chronic ailments, I would advise that you see your doctor.

Often the cure is brought about by regulations of hours of work and increase in the number of hours of rest. At times it is essential to change one's occupation and surroundings. This can only be determined after a complete physical examination has been made and an inventory taken of your health.

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Stopping on a Precipice

It is an interesting commentary upon the accuracy of the Four-Five Notrump Convention that users of other systems and those who use variations of the Culbertson System—such as Mr. George Reith—have abandoned their own methods of Slam bidding in order to make use of the wonderful precision of this new method. I frankly doubt if the convention can be successfully grafted upon any other but the Approach-Forcing System.

It seems to me that unless the foundation of precise Approach bidding is securely laid, the superstructure of Slam bidding is apt to become top-heavy and result disastrously for its users. This is so because the Four-Five Notrump Convention in the Culbertson System is a logical part of the bidding of the entire hand. However, regardless of whether or not the earlier bidding may have been faulty, the convention, no doubt, is better than any old-fashioned and complicated cue bid and must prove more satisfactory than former methods or else it would not receive such universal acceptance.

The convention is valuable not only in reaching Grand Slams that could not otherwise be safely bid, but also in avoiding Grand Slam declarations which cannot be made. An example of its use for the latter purpose occurred in the recent international match in which the American team stopped at six and made the Small Slam, while the British team, not using the convention, went to seven and lost a trick to an adversely held Ace.

The bidding, as shown above, shows strongly the difference in theoretical approach between the American and British players. Note that in Room 1 Mr. Culbertson opened the bidding with one club, showing the longer club suit in preference to the biddable spade suit, so that he would be in a position later to warn his partner that he held a maximum for four spades.

When Mr. Lightner responded with one heart there was not the slightest question in Mr. Culbertson's mind that the combined hands must contain a game and the strong probability of a Slam—hence the Forcing Rebid of two spades. When Mr. Lightner responded with three hearts, disclosing a six-card length, the four-notrump Forcing Bid, showing two Aces and the King of a bid suit, came as a matter of course.

Mr. Lightner could not respond with five notrump because he did not hold two Aces, but his bid of five spades denoted that his hand as a whole was of Slam strength; otherwise he would have signed off with five hearts. Mr. Culbertson now knew that there was an Ace off the hand and therefore correctly ended the bidding with six hearts.

The English players lacked these precise inferences, and with enormous cards quite naturally reached a contract of seven. Mr. Gottlieb was eminently correct in refusing to double, as it was possible that one hand or the other might hold a void in diamonds or that seven notrump or seven spades might be made if by any chance a diamond was not opened.

Wynn Finds No Fun in Network

By AIRCASTER

Back in the early days of the fire chief program, when Ed Wynn was skyrocketing to radio fame, I went to call on him. It was then that he confided to me that radio broadcasting, in his opinion, was going to the dogs for lack of theater.

"And I'll tell you this," he giggled, "I'm starting my own chain. I'm going to give the other executives a lesson in showmanship."

At the moment, Ed Wynn's ambition to head a chain that would actually broadcast, seems imminent of realization, for it has been announced officially that the Amalgamated Broadcasting System, which he organized will begin entertaining those of the American public who can tune in its six basic stations, stretching down as far as Baltimore on September 25.

Mr. Wynn

* * *

Personnel

I don't know, of course, just what departures from regular routine Ed Wynn originally had in mind. But one of the first things he did was to copy from the established chains by appointing one of those highly publicized figures known as a vice president.

Becoming the president of the ABS cost Wynn roughly $250,000 of his own money. That taught him a lesson, instead of competing executives a lesson, and so complete is Mr. Wynn's radio education at the moment that he is cheerfully, if secretly offering for sale any or all of his holdings in the ABS.

* * *

Sadder But Wiser

From what I can gather, it seems likely that Ed Wynn knew little at the time he first thought of heading his own chain and giving the boys a lesson, of the headaches attaching to the job. Later, when I met him, he admitted that "things were going too smoothly, so I had to get into this network business to make me sillier."

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Patricia Pitt, the society editor, chortles over the utterances of Gene, her 4-year-old nephew from the country.

Yesterday a neighbor's child invited him to ride his "pony," indicating to Gene a rocking horse. Gene looked the animal over and then declared: "That's no pony, that's a horse. I ought to know, I come from the country."

Martha Watkins, Homestead, complains that the operators at the radio stations are rather mean to signal me off the air when about to recite. I think so, too. But don't be hard with them. You don't know what they might have saved you from.

* * *

Edna E. Pearson—Your convincing and sincere letter has been referred to the editorial department. Shouldn't be surprised if they take the matter up. Thank you.

* * *

Harry Llewellyn — You have your answer by now. Appreciate your request.

Just received a call from one of the "lofty' minded who thinks good speaking English should consist of only high sounding words. Instead of household, say menage.

The pigeons are on the loose again. One paused in its flight at Langeloth, Pa. A. H. Duke gives 1391, AD 33, as its band number. The other at 1120 Kirkpatrick avenue, South Braddock, is banded with 329420 Pgh. 3206. See Mr. McConough.

HOW TO SAVE on your GAS BILL

THE dollar you spend for gas—for heating, cooking, water-heating and other purposes—buys more comfort, convenience, and downright utility than almost any other dollar you spend.

And this is true, even though, as in hundreds of homes, you may be using more gas—through inefficient burning or actual waste—than you really need.

Your Gas Company wants to sell all the gas it can, of course, but even more important (and this is simply a matter of good business) it wants you to get complete satisfaction from Natural Gas—the best and cheapest of all fuels when properly used.

To show you how to burn gas most efficiently and therefore to help you save money on your gas bills is the purpose of an interesting booklet just published by the Natural Gas Companies Serving the Greater Pittsburgh Area.

It's called "How to Save Money on Your Gas Bill" and it's full of helpful, money-saving suggestions that have a vital meaning to your pocketbook.

You can obtain a copy, free, at your Gas Company. Call, write, or telephone—or send in the coupon below.

STAR EVOLUTION LIMIT SET AT 100 MILLION

LEICESTER, England, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—In a discussion of the expanding universe, Sir Arthur Eddington, eminent British astronomer, told the British Association for the Advancement of Science today, that:

"We seem to be coming to the theory that the earth is older than the universe itself."

He estimated the age of the universe at two billion years and said the earth was at least as old as that. The limit of the evolution of the stars he put at 100,000,000 years.

Recalling that the late Lord Kelvin once gave 50,000,000 years as the limit of the age of the sun and the earth, Sir Arthur said:

"We laugh at that limit now and some future British association may laugh at the limits we have placed today.

"Speaking of the beginning of things, one feels one may as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb."

Asserting that astronomical observations indicate that the spiral nebulae are scattering apart, Sir Arthur said:

"Their distances from us and from one another become doubled in about 1,300,000,000 years."

Men May Control Evolution, He Says

The theory that the time is now at hand when natural selection can be replaced by human selection and men in a large measure be enabled to control evolution was expressed by Dr. C. C. Hurst, noted for his research work in genetics.

He said that experimental hybridization of genetical species and the bombardment of their germ cells by X-rays has already created numbers of new species and forms. Remarking on the rapid advance of the science of genetics in the last decade, he said:

"The mechanism of heredity and variation, which was unknown to Darwin, has been revealed to us by the microscope. The gene is the unit and basis of life and progressive evolution can be traced from the monogenic species of bacteriophage of molecular size to the polygenic species of the primate man."

Illness After Fall Fatal to Woman, 72

Pneumonia developing from a leg fracture suffered four months ago when she fell in her home caused the death last night of Elizabeth Engelman, 72, of 222 Fisk avenue, Avalon.

Wireless Waves Cured Patients, Doctor Claims

LONDON, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Cures for various ailments by the use of short wireless waves were claimed today by Dr. Erwin Schliephake, a German physician and scientist.

Writing in the British Medical Journal, he described how after long study and experimentation he succeeded in treating deep-seated abscesses in the human body by passing ultra-short wireless waves through the patient, who was not in immediate contact with any instrument.

Dr. Schliephake declared he has used waves to treat pulmonary abscesses after pneumonia, in pleural empyema, pneumonic tuberculosis, in certain forms of peritonitis, in migraine (where waves of 15 meters were reported most satisfactory) and acute tonsilitis.

U. S. ACCUSES 25 IN LIQUOR RING

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—With 25 persons in Lancaster and Berks counties named in a surprise indictment charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, the government plans to seek bench warrants.

Among those indicted yesterday is W. Hensel Brown, former commissioner and now city commissioner at Lancaster. An attorney for certain of the defendants, Brown is charged with intimidating a witness.

The indictments were returned by the same federal grand jury which last June indicted State Senator John J. McClure and 95 others after an investigation of liquor and vice conditions in Delaware County.

SPAIN FORMS NEW CABINET

MADRID, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Premier Alejandro Lerroux announced today the personnel of his cabinet to succeed that of Manuel Azana, whose resignation the new Premier demanded when two elections were unfavorable to it.

The new government, approved by President Alcala Zamora and all Republican minority groups, directly flaunts an old Spanish superstition in that it has 13 members.

MYSTERY MAN, BEATEN, DIES

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 12.—(AP.) His skull fractured, an unidentified man died in an Altoona hospital last night after having been found unconscious in an alley earlier in the day.

Police said the man, who was well dressed, may have been slain. The labels had been cut from his clothing. Besides the fracture there were cuts and lacerations on his face.

He died in the hospital without regaining consciousness.

GAS APPLIANCE SALES GAIN

A sales survey has shown that sales of all kinds of gas appliances for the home have greatly increased this year, according to an announcement today by E. E. McCormick, chairman of the joint sales committee of the Pennsylvania Natural Gas Men's Association.

Purchasers are again buying on a quality basis instead of price, the survey indicates. McCormick says:

Jap Lawyer Bases Death Defense On Shakespeare

TOKIO, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Shakespeare was appealed to across the centuries and the vast differences of Occidental and Oriental civilizations today to testify in behalf of 10 young naval officers on trial for killing Premier Suyoshi Inukai in May, 1932.

The defense attorney, Naoyoshi Tsuxasaki, dramatically declaimed passages from "Julius Caesar" to show that the assassination of Inukai was comparable to the slaying of Caesar.

POLICE SEEKING CRASH DRIVER

Thomas Gleason, of 586 Rosedale avenue, was injured when an automobile in which he was riding figured in a collision with a Brinks Express Company truck at Second and Hazelwood avenues late yesterday. Three occupants were pinned in the cab when the truck overturned, police said.

Gleason, suffering a scalp laceration, was treated at a nearby doctor's office. He said he did not know the name of the driver other than that of "Wilson," police reported. Police were searching for him.

RALLY TO MAP SEAL CAMPAIGN

The second of six sectional Christmas Seal conferences, at which plans will be laid for the twenty-seventh annual sale of Christmas Seals, will be held under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society at the William Penn Hotel tomorrow.

Speakers will be Miss Frances Brophy, of the National Tuberculosis Association, and Dr. C. Howard Marcy, president, and Arthur M. Dewees, secretary, of the state organization.

HOLD HOSTAGES FOR SAFETY OF EINSTEIN

PARIS, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—If Dr. Albert Einstein is touched, hostages designated in Paris will answer for his life, Bernard Lecache, general secretary of the International League Against Anti-Semitism, announced at a mass meeting here.

Lecache presided at the meeting which was called for presentation of alleged proof of the innocence of those charged with burning the Reichstag Building in Berlin last spring.

WIFE MAKES APPEAL

LE COQ-SUR-MER, Belgium, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—The wife of Dr. Albert Einstein in an interview at their villa here made an appeal in her husband's behalf.

(Dr. Einstein has gone to England, fleeing reported Nazi threats against his life.)

Frau Einstein said:

"A savant should be left in peace. Nobody knows what we have been through this last week."

She continued that her husband left because he did not want to be any bother, adding that they had not received any direct threats and that no attack had been made on the German scientist.

ASSAILS NAZI 'HYSTERIA'

Universal Service.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The London Daily Herald today quotes Prof. Albert Einstein, exiled German physicist, as stating that Germany today is in a state of "barbaric hysteria."

In an interview with a correspondent of the Herald, Einstein is quoted:

"I believe the Hitler regime will inevitably collapse on account of its own stupidity."

RECOVERING FROM TETANUS

BOY, 8, WINNING TETANUS FIGHT

Eight-year-old Stanley Zbikowski, Jr., of 3114 Brereton avenue, was reported recovering in West Penn Hospital today after a six-day battle with tetanus.

Taken to the hospital last Tuesday following an infection from a small splinter which his father had removed with a needle, physicians held little hope for his recovery. But after administering more than 272,000 units of tetanus serum they noted an improvement in the boy's condition.

When there is danger of infection, tetanus serum is usually administered immediately after an accident, and because the boy had been infected for four days without treatment his death was believed certain, physicians said.

DOLLFUSS HAILS 'CHRISTIAN ERA'

VIENNA, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—A broad political philosophy eschewing demagogy and party politics and demanding independence was in the hands of Austrian leaders today.

It came from Chancellor Dollfuss, who in a speech before a patriotic gathering asserted that Austria is opposed to materialism and "Godless Marxism" and is being reorganized on a corporative or guild basis under a forthcoming constitution. He said:

"The period of capitalism is over and we are determined to rebuild Austria on a Christian and corporative basis.

"The mission of Austria's leaders is to make good the mistakes of the last 150 years. We are always German even if the Great Brother seems to misunderstand us.

"Only this great German consciousness has prevented us from adopting measures we unhesitatingly would have employed against any one else."

Famed 'Mouthpiece' Commits Suicide

SAMADEN, Switzerland, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Prof. Max Alsberg, rated as one of the most prominent criminal attorneys in Germany, committed suicide here today.

Prof. Alsberg, of Jewish origin, was not permitted to practice law in Germany under the Hitler regime.

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR CO.

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

THE ROMANS had a phrase for it—

"CAVEAT EMPTOR," meaning "Let the buyer beware." This wasn't used as a bit of balm to ease the ancient conscience; nor, yet, was it placarded in the booths and stalls of the market-place. It was a piece of every-day knowledge, born of dear-bought experience.

A shopkeeper knew little about the source of his merchandise. This tunic he bought from a trader, who said it came from Byzantium. So he sold it as the latest Byzantian style. The trader told him the dye was pure Tyrian—it wouldn't fade. So he sold it as Tyrian dyed. But the buyer knew the responsibility was his own. If he guessed wrongly, or his judgment was poor, it was his hard luck.

Today, fortunately, there are safer guides than the blanket-warning to "let your eyes be your market."

These guides are the newspaper advertisements. In this newspaper, they are a daily catalog of the best values in town—signed by responsible firms. If the goods are not all that is claimed for them, their sponsors would need to "beware." For no business can thrive on a one-time sale, or on dissatisfied customers.

A signed advertisement is, in a way, like a promissory note. The advertiser has made a statement, and affixed his signature as a sign of good faith.

So, read the advertisements before you start out on a buying-trip. Make this a daily habit, and see how much you save . . . in time, in temper, in money, in shoe-leather.

'BUTTONS' PRIZE SURPRISE TO WOMAN

Once in awhile "Buttons," the Sun-Telegraph page boy, runs across somebody who hasn't heard that his or her name has been "paged" and published in this newspaper, indicating that they have been made a cash award, so that they can "Spend a Dollar . . . Make a Job . . . Buy in September and Save."

"Buttons"

One surprised woman yesterday could only exclaim:

"Well, Well How long has this been going on?"

The neatly uniformed page boy now popularly known as "Button," had called at this home and told the woman that she had been selected for one of the 11 cash prizes which this newspaper gives away every day. She said: "This settles one thing I'm going to read the Sun-Telegraph every day from now on. In fact, you can have it delivered right to my home and start it immediately."

When "Buttons" rings the doorbell these days it's an event for the family because it brings real cash—very often much needed. Eleven names are "paged" each day by "Buttons" and the 11 names are printed on the Want Ad pages of the Sun-Telegraph. One of the 11 gets $5.00, the other 10 gets $1.00 each. Turn to the Want Ad pages now. Your name may be in the list today. If not today, perhaps it will be there tomorrow. And what a thrill you'll get when "Buttons" draws up to your home, rings your doorbell and hands you the cash. Watch for your name every day! Watch for "Buttons!"

BOGGS & BUHL

Health is half of success

FEW men achieve their goal without vitality and drive. And so many are held back from their best by a common ailment: constipation. It dulls energy, often causes headaches, sleeplessness. It takes the vim out of your day's work.

Correct constipation by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Within the body, it becomes a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. How much better than using pills and drugs—so often harmful.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also has iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

CHARGES PLOT TO BALK VOTE MACHINES

Louis Wechsler, candidate for Council, accused the "Mellon-Grundy-Coyne machine" of panic-stricken efforts to prevent the use of voting machines, in an address at Frick Training School last night. He said:

"The Mellon-Coyne managers realize that with the voting machines it is impossible to stuff ballot boxes and make forged election returns.

"Despite lavish use of money, the power exerted by the public utilities, assements of phantoms, and fraudulent tax receipts, they are now desperately trying to stave off defeat by preventing the use of the machines."

Hails Democratic Aid To Social Legislation

A Democratic victory in the election would aid the cause of social legislation through its effect on the legislative contest next year, Dr. H. V. Walls, candidate for Council, declared in an address at Lemington School last night.

In his platform Walls is advocating a moratorium for delinquent taxes, reduction in taxes, free clinics for medical and dental service, city contribution toward maintenance of hospitals and liberal child welfare service.

Proposes Municipal Utilities Program

Recommendations that the city take over the operation of the street car system and install a municipal garbage plant and public utilities program were made by William McClafferty, councilmanic candidate, in an address at Livingston School last night.

Clark Asks Council Free From Politics

Former Safety Director James M. Clark, candidate for Council, stressed the necessity of a Council membership free of political entanglements, in an address in McCann's auditorium, East Liberty, yesterday.

Clark was to speak this afternoon at American Legion hall, Perrysville avenue, and tonight in Sterrett School, Fourteenth Ward.

Barr and Harris Endorse Tabor

Citing his efforts in previous independent campaigns, County Commissioner C. M. Barr and State Senator Frank J. Harris yesterday issued statements explaining their indorsements of Edward O. Tabor, candidate for Council.

Tabor, in his platform, is advocating a municipal audit, a survey to determine the needs of the city, strict accountability, and a free police force.

Fire Veteran Body Backs J. J. Allen

The Veteran Firemen's Association, composed of about 400 retired firemen, yesterday indorsed James J. Allen, candidate for City Council. Until eight years ago Allen was a captain in the city fire department.

Musmanno Flays Bar Association Poll as 'Poison'

A slashing attack on the Allegheny County Bar Association was made today by Judge M. A. Musmanno, candidate for re-election.

His attack was executed after the Bar Association had announce the results of its referendum among lawyers on the judicial candidates. In this poll 335 attorneys voted that Judge Musmanno should not be recommended to the voters, 289 believed that he should.

And the articulate jurist replied:

"The clique controlling the Bar Association is made up of hidebound reactionaries who look with horror upon any judge or lawyer who has a heart for humanity and will fight for the rights of the people. Because of my fight in the Legislature against the coal and iron police, I received only 353 votes out of 1,600 in the bar referendum of 1931, but when I went to the people I received over 200,000 votes, the highest vote, excepting only Judge Soffel, ever given to a judicial candidate. That shows how much the people cared about the opinion of the Bar Association. I appeal to the people not to be deceived this year by the recommendations of the Bar Association any more than they were deceived in 1931.

"If the lawyers who answered "no" to the questions had signed their names and cited instances upon which they based their replies, then the people might be concerned with the result of the bar vote. But when these character assassins cowardly hid behind the fence of anonymity and fired their poison shots, they forfeited whatever consideration they might otherwise have gotten from the people. I sincereely trust that the people who have given me their confidence in the past will not withhold that confidence merely because some cowardly lawyers under the cover of darkness have attempted to stab me in the back. I call upon the people to disregard the accusation of any one who refuses to reveal himself or to state the reason for the accusation. This inquisition is worse than any star chamber proceedings of the medieval ages, and should be condemned by every voter in Allegheny County."

DEAN THOMPSON URGES LOYALTY ON BENCH

Discussing the difficulty of obtaining a non-partisan judicial bench in Pennsylvania, Dean A. Marshall Thompson, of Pitt law school, candidate for Common Pleas Court, told a Glassport audience last night:

"Republicans have long claimed in local elections that Republican Presidents must be supported or their moral authority would be seriously impaired.

"If that is true, support for the Democratic candidates in this crucial year should be seriously considered."

Thompson said that out of 14 judges of appellate courts in the state, all were Republicans; and that the proportion of judges having jurisdiction in this county is in the ratio of 36 Republicans to one Democrat.

Barrickman Listed For Campaign Talks

Van A. Barrickman, candidate for Common Pleas Court, will speak tonight at Mount Olivet Baptist Church, Sharpsburg; American Legion Hall, North Side; the Italian and Hungarian Club, McKees Rocks; Cycler Park, McKeesport; Lincoln Park grove, Verona; Dollmans grove, Verona boulevard; Italian hall, Braddock, and Polish-American Citizens Club, Stowe Township.

Lindsay Indorsed By Women Voters

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, candidate for Common Pleas Court, has been indorsed by the Fifth Ward League of Women Voters. He was to speak today at the Exchange Club, Roosevelt Hotel, American Legion Hall, 2616 Perrysville avenue, and New Century Club Hall, Dormont.

Lindsay and Judge M. A. Musmanno, for Common Pleas Court, will address a meeting of Eleventh and Twelfth Ward voters in Larimer School, Larimer avenue, Thursday night. Other speakers are Joseph A. Rossi and Donald Mangone.

Piekarski, Harris, Lencher Address Rallies Tonight

DRY IN MAYOR RACE PLEDGES VICE WAR

A pledge to rid the city of disorderly houses, gambling dens and the numbers racket was made last night by G. D. Harger, Prohibition party candidate for Mayor.

Mr. Harger, along with other candidates, addressed a gathering of church women in the North Side Community Hall of the First United Presbyterian Church, Union avenue.

Harger, who is state chairman of the Prohibition Party, declared that prohibition has not met its Waterloo in the present situation, only its Valley Forge.

Deploring the toll taken by houses of ill repute, gambling and rackets, Harger declared:

"The hush money that these vicious interests have paid for protection and permission to continue, which of course finds its way clear up to the top, has had a demoralizing effect. It has degraded and killed self-respect and integrity on the part of those administering the city government and has resulted in a riot of graft on every side."

Harger urged that road improvements, benefiting autoists chiefly, be paid for out of auto revenue and that slums be replaced with wholesome and inexpensive dwellings with money obtained from the federal government.

If elected, the candidate asserted, he would "divorce every department, including the police, from politics."

Shields Gives Talk On Election Issues

Mark Shields, political writer and commentator for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, was the guest speaker at a citizens' meeting in the Allegheny Y. M. C. A. last night. Shield's address was "Issues of the Coming Election."

A COMMON SENSE MESSAGE

about prices to every man who must buy a new water heater in the next 3 YEARS

THAT man is now either the owner of an old automatic water heater or a hand-operated hot water boiler.

If you are the man, we say in all sincerity that you will be cash-in-the-pocket if you buy a RUUD Automatic Water Heater before the present low prices are advanced, as they surely must be.

If you have an old automatic water heater, replace it now even though it may still give you service for another year or two. The difference in prices now and what they will be will more than offset any saving that comes from keeping the present water heater in use.

If you have a hot water boiler, you know that it must be replaced within three years and that this replacement must be followed by others. By selecting RUUD, you can dismiss the hot water question for 20, 30 and has been done in many cases, for even 35 years. You will be saving gas, doing away with rusty water for all time and above all, you will be having a perfect hot water supply at the lowest possible cost per gallon and per year.

These are the things we would like to explain to you further. Come to our store if you can; if not, phone so that we can send a factory-trained man that knows his business.

'Lost' Balloonist Tells Of Perilous Flight, Trek to Safety

Editor's Note—The thrilling story of their battle with a storm while drifting over Canada at a height of 8,000 feet, was told to an International News Service representative today by Frank Trotter, who with Ward T. Van Orman, was rescued 60 miles north of Sudbury, Ont., yesterday after being missing for more than a week. The two intrepid balloonists who had started from Chicago in the Gordon Bennett Balloon Race, cut a telephone line in order to bring about their rescue.

By FRANK TROTTER
As Told to C. ROY GREENAWAY

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 12.—We took off from the Curtiss-Wright-Reynolds Airport at Chicago at 6 p. m. on Saturday, September 3. We made a north by northeast course over Lake Michigan all that night.

We were up above the clouds most of the night. The only way we could tell was the sound of the fog horns on the steamers below and at ports.

We got our bearings the next morning, Sunday, Sept. 4, when we drifted over Sault Ste. Marie. We knew we were over the Sault when we saw all the little islands. We were familiar with them, and knew where we were.

It was at the Sault that the wind changed. We began to move more easterly. The flight had been very uneventful up to that time. Then we hit the storm. We had been hoping that we would get another 24 hours flight the way we had been going. That would take us far over into Quebec, we figured. If we hadn't hit the storm, we should probably have made 1,000 miles or more instead of around 500 we actually did make. It was all very disappointing.

Blinded by Storm

We couldn't see anything after the storm came up. Everything was overcast. We were flying around 8,000 feet high and yet everything was black as ink.

It got worse and worse, suddenly the squall came with a roaring rush. It hit us while we were high. And we careened all over. It was terrific. We had never seen a balloon act like it. It bounced around all over, rushed up, and fell and was whirled around. And we were only on the outskirts of it. If we had not been, if we had been in the center of the disturbance, I am convinced that we would have been all washed up at the start. If we hadn't been on the outskirt, we would have been knocked out.

As it was, we figured that we were done for. We had to hang on for dear life. But somehow each of us got on our parachutes. Each took a little pocket compass and a flashlight to observe if possible, where we were going.

Periled by Lightning

Every minute the storm seemed to increase in violence. We had done everything possible. We had on our chutes, so that, if we struck we could jump. For the time being, we held on, as the basket bounced all over. In the meantime, we had lost about 15 bags of sand trying to stay up. When we saw we couldn't, we started to valve out the gas and started down. But we were afraid to valve out much because the lightning was flashing furiously all around us and had been for hours. We were afraid the lightning would set off the gas.

It was around 6 p. m. Sunday that we struck. We came down like a bat out of sixty. We came down, to tell the truth, like mad right out of the sky. We hit lots of trees.

It all happened so fast that you can hardly sort out the details.

The first thing we realized was that we were safe anyway. The basket was upright in a tree. But the bag was completely wrecked. It had draped itself over the gondola like a tent. That was fortunate because it was still raining. It was, in fact, still a rather good-sized storm raging outside. We were thankful we had the tent over us because we were completely wet as it was.

We ventured out gingerly, managing to let ourselves down a section of the net which hung down like a ladder and the auxiliary wires, which also aided us.

Shocked, Bruised

The first impact had been terrific and we were a little bit shocked and bruised.

We decided to sleep up in the basket all night. It continued to pour rain and our supply of matches, wrapped in a waterproof covering, had bounced out of the bag during the storm. We discovered a few matches left in our pockets, but they were wet and we couldn't have started a fire if we had wanted to on the ground.

The storm had cleared by morning. Monday was a fine day. We started salvaging everything we figured we should need for our trip through the bush to get out. We decided we would need a tent so we ripped the material out of the gas bag. It was also obvious right away that we should want knapsacks. So we started to make them. We ripped up pieces of the rope and canvas and used them as thread, making the holes with our knives. It took us most of Monday to get the stuff out of the basket.

We managed to have our first fire on Monday afternoon. We had got the matches dried out by then, although our clothes were still wet. We made a fire a little way from the wreck and proceeded to get something to eat.

As Gen. Sherman Said!

The first water we drank was the rain that had collected in the folds of the wrecked gas bag. It smelt and tasted of rubber, but I am certain there was no poisonous material in it from the waterproof stuff on the outer canvas.

After Wednesday it was hades. We figure we traveled about 15 miles altogether in the bush, but you know what it is like in the bush. You never can tell exactly. We certainly didn't make much distance after Wednesday. We began to become terribly ill at our stomachs. If we walked only a few steps, we began to vomit. We had to lay down to get some strength and try to stop the sickness. Then we would get up again and drag ourselves on a little bit further. We had our gun and ax with us. We were on the alert all the time to shoot any game that looked like eatable food, but we saw nothing except some small squirrels, and they hardly large enough to shoot. We ran across some red raspberries and ate them.

The nights were worst. We made beds of evergreen bows. But progress slowed down very fast. We certainly didn't make much distance. After Wednesday we didn't make 1,500 feet some days. We just lay there.

Kept on Hoping

We had set off to reach the railway. We knew the Transcontinental Lines were somewhere in the district. Instead of the railway, we struck the Abitibi power canyon power line of the hydro. It was almost as wonderful a sight to our eyes as the railway. If we could have chosen between uncovering a gold vein at that moment or the hydro line, we would have taken the hydro.

We bucked up, we had our compasses. We knew we had to go south. And we were certain that if we followed the wires and the cleared right-of-way we would come out somewhere to civilization. So, we walked south, but mighty slowly still. Just a little way at a time. Our feet were very sore and our leg muscles, and Van was still very sick.

We kept on but our hopes were greater than our exertion.

Sunday afternoon, September 10, about 3 p. m., we thought we had got there at last. We heard an airplane. It seemed to be right over our heads. We dashed out in the center of the power line clearing to try to attract the pilot's attention. But we couldn't see the plane.

Pretty Disappointing

It was pretty disappointing.

After the plane went by, we began to agree we had to do something drastic to get help quickly. We figured that if we could get a short circuit in the telephone line that was in plain view, we could likely bring somebody to discover the cause of the trouble. That was a good idea, we figured. Far better than to light a smoke, running the risk of starting a bush-fire, and, anyway, not very reliable. So I cut down the telephone post with the ax. And left a note explaining who we were, what had happened, and that we would continue southward down the hydro line. We went on, and only a couple of miles away, we struck the shelter hut. It seemed like the Drake or the Palmer House.

LIFE IS SHORT FOR FAT FOLKS

Fat May Be Fatal

Overweight is fatal not only to beauty, charm and popularity, but it's injurious to health as well. Insurance companies repeatedly warn against its dangers. It goes without saying how fat robs you of energy, how internal organs grow lax and slow down under the burden—how unnecessary strain is often put on the fat covered heart.

High blood pressure, rheumatism, acidity, indigestion and fatigue are more frequently found where obesity is present.

If you want to feel fine and physically fit all the time—look younger and live longer—start to-day and banish burdensome fat with this healthful "little daily drink" prescribed by physicians. Simply take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot or cold water first thing every morning. You'll probably feel better and more energetic than you have in years.

An inexpensive jar lasts 4 weeks and is sold by druggists throughout the world. If this first jar doesn't joyfully start you on the road to slenderness and better health—money back. For your health's sake—make sure you get Kruschen—it's the SAFE way to reduce.

HORNE'S DOWNSTAIRS

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

The most attractive wedding of this week took place this morning at 11 o'clock in St. Paul's Cathedral—that of pretty Patrice Kelly, the James B. Kellys' daughter, and Richard O'Brien English, son of the Charles H. Englishes, of Erie.

Stately St. Paul's was decorated for the ceremony with large pink Jersey beauty dahlias. And here's something unusual—just the flowers massed about the altar were used in decorating, no cibotium ferns or palms. White tapers in branched candelabra lighted the altar.

Creme net in quaint basque style over lustrous ivory satin was worn by the bride, given in marriage by her father. The gown had a long, flowing train, picturesque leg o'mutton sleeves, and a high cowl neckline. Fluting of the net finished the skirt and the only ornament was a pearl buckle fastening the belt.

Cap of Lace

Rare Limerick lace, brought to the bride 15 years ago when she was a small child, formed a cap from which cascaded her veil of creme net having a panel of the same lace centering the back and panels bordering the veil in front.

The lace was a gift from the bride's uncle and aunt, the Joseph F. O'Connells, of Boston. The bride carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Gowns of Pink

Similar gowns in salmon pink satin with jackets to match and brown velvet hats were worn by the bridesmaids, Patricia English and Aline Warfel, both sisters of the bridegroom. They carried bouquets of talisman roses and blue larkspur.

The little flower girl, Mary Martha Dalzell, daughter of the J. Willis Dalzells, wore a pastel-hued frock and carried similar flowers.

John William English, of Erie, was his brother's best man, and Martin Craig Warfel, another brother of the bridegroom; John J. Meade, Jr., and Charles Baumbach, all of Erie, and James B. Kelly, Jr., brother of the bride, J. Rogers Flannery, Jr., both of Pittsburgh, and Joseph Simon Lord, of Philadelphia, were ushers.

A reception and wedding breakfast in the University Club followed. After an eastern motor trip, Mr. English and his bride will be at home in a fortnight or so in Philadelphia.

* * *

The Robert Sloan Mebanes, of Blowing Rock, N. C., with their little daughter, Randy, who have been living at the Wardman-Park Hotel, Washington, for the past year, will make their home in the Schenley Apartments, East End.

* * *

Petite Gretchen Bickford will be an October bride. She's named October 3 as the date for her marriage to David McCargo, son of the Grant McCargos.

Bride of October

Gretchen will be married in the home of her parents, the W. I. Bickfords, Devon road, with only the families attending. And there'll be no attendants. The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of Shadyside Presbyterian Church, will officiate.

* * *

Still another wedding of note will be that of Lucia Manneschmidt, daughter of the junior Jacob Manneschmidts, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to John Head Coulter, son of the late Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Henry W. Coulter, of Greensburg, to take place November 4 in New York.

Irene W. Antal And C. T. Clark Marry

Miss Irene W. Antal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Antal, of Edgerton avenue, and Charles T. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Clark, of Dunmoyle street, are being married at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the Pittsburgh Country Club.

Mrs. James Lyle, is her sister's matron of honor, and the bridesmaids are Miss Margaret and Miss Kathryn Clark, sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Helen Perkins. Small Hester Worthington, of Uniontown, is the flower girl. Leonard Clark is his brother's best man.

The bride's gown is of white lace having a long train, and long sleeves puffed to the elbow, close fitting to the wrist, terminating in a point. Her veil is of tulle draped from a shirred cap of the tulle caught with orange blossoms. Her flowers are calla lilies, Talisman roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Lyle is wearing green taffeta; Miss Margaret Clark, yellow crepe; her sister, Kathryn, blue crepe; Miss Perkins, old rose crepe. Their gowns all have short swagger jackets, and their bouquets are roses. The flower girl's frock is white and she is carrying a basket of roses and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony there is to be a dinner for 100 guests and dancing.

Mr. Clark and his bride will leave by motor for Canada and New England, and after October 1 will be at home in Aylesboro avenue.

Visitors at the summer home in Cooperstown, N. Y., of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Alleyne C. Howell have found the rector, overall-clad, working in his garden.

Did you know that the new pavilion of the Allegheny Country Club, used first in late June when the W. C. Robinsons gave a dinner-dance for their niece, Madelaine Alexander, now Mrs. William A. Gordon III, has just been finished?

SCHOOL GIRLS GO IN FOR THAT SMART NOTE OF SIMPLICITY

COLLEGE GIRLS, filling their first going-away trunkful, had a large share of consideration this past month in order to minimize their clothes problems. But younger sisters, still in their earliest teens, need attention, too, and it is to them and their mothers that we address this brief story.

* * *

FOR a starter, it is safe to begin with the ubiquitous plaid. Like the model seen on the pretty young student on the left, in raspberry and bright blue on navy. Its only trimmings are the two enormous wooden-plate buttons—a novel idea that seems to accentuate the charming simplicity of the dress.

* * *

OFTEN YOU find that it is the fabric that MAKES the dress; as, for example, the youthful model worn by the young girl on the right. Fuzzy gray rabbit's hair worked in an all-over design on a black silk foundation reflects one of the newest fabric trends—that of wool embroidered on silk. It's a particularly applicable one for juniors, since the embroidery acts as the sole decoration on a superlatively simple dress. Little woolen caps are worn with dresses like these. Often they are hand-knit, made by mother or daughter, or else bought in accessory shops.

* * *

* * *

Other ideas young girls should watch for: The velveteen blouse, buttoned down the back by [illegible] mom's brass snappers . . . fur [illegible] sts, matching fur muffs, to be worn with tailored little suits . . . [illegible] eated, Pierrot-like ruffs worn [illegible] simple little woolen dresses . . . [illegible] afternoon dresses with short [illegible] trasting sleeves . . . hip-length [illegible] evening capes in velveteen [illegible] trasting with the dress, often [illegible] ndarin-inspired.

SPEND A DOLLAR AND MAKE A JOB

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

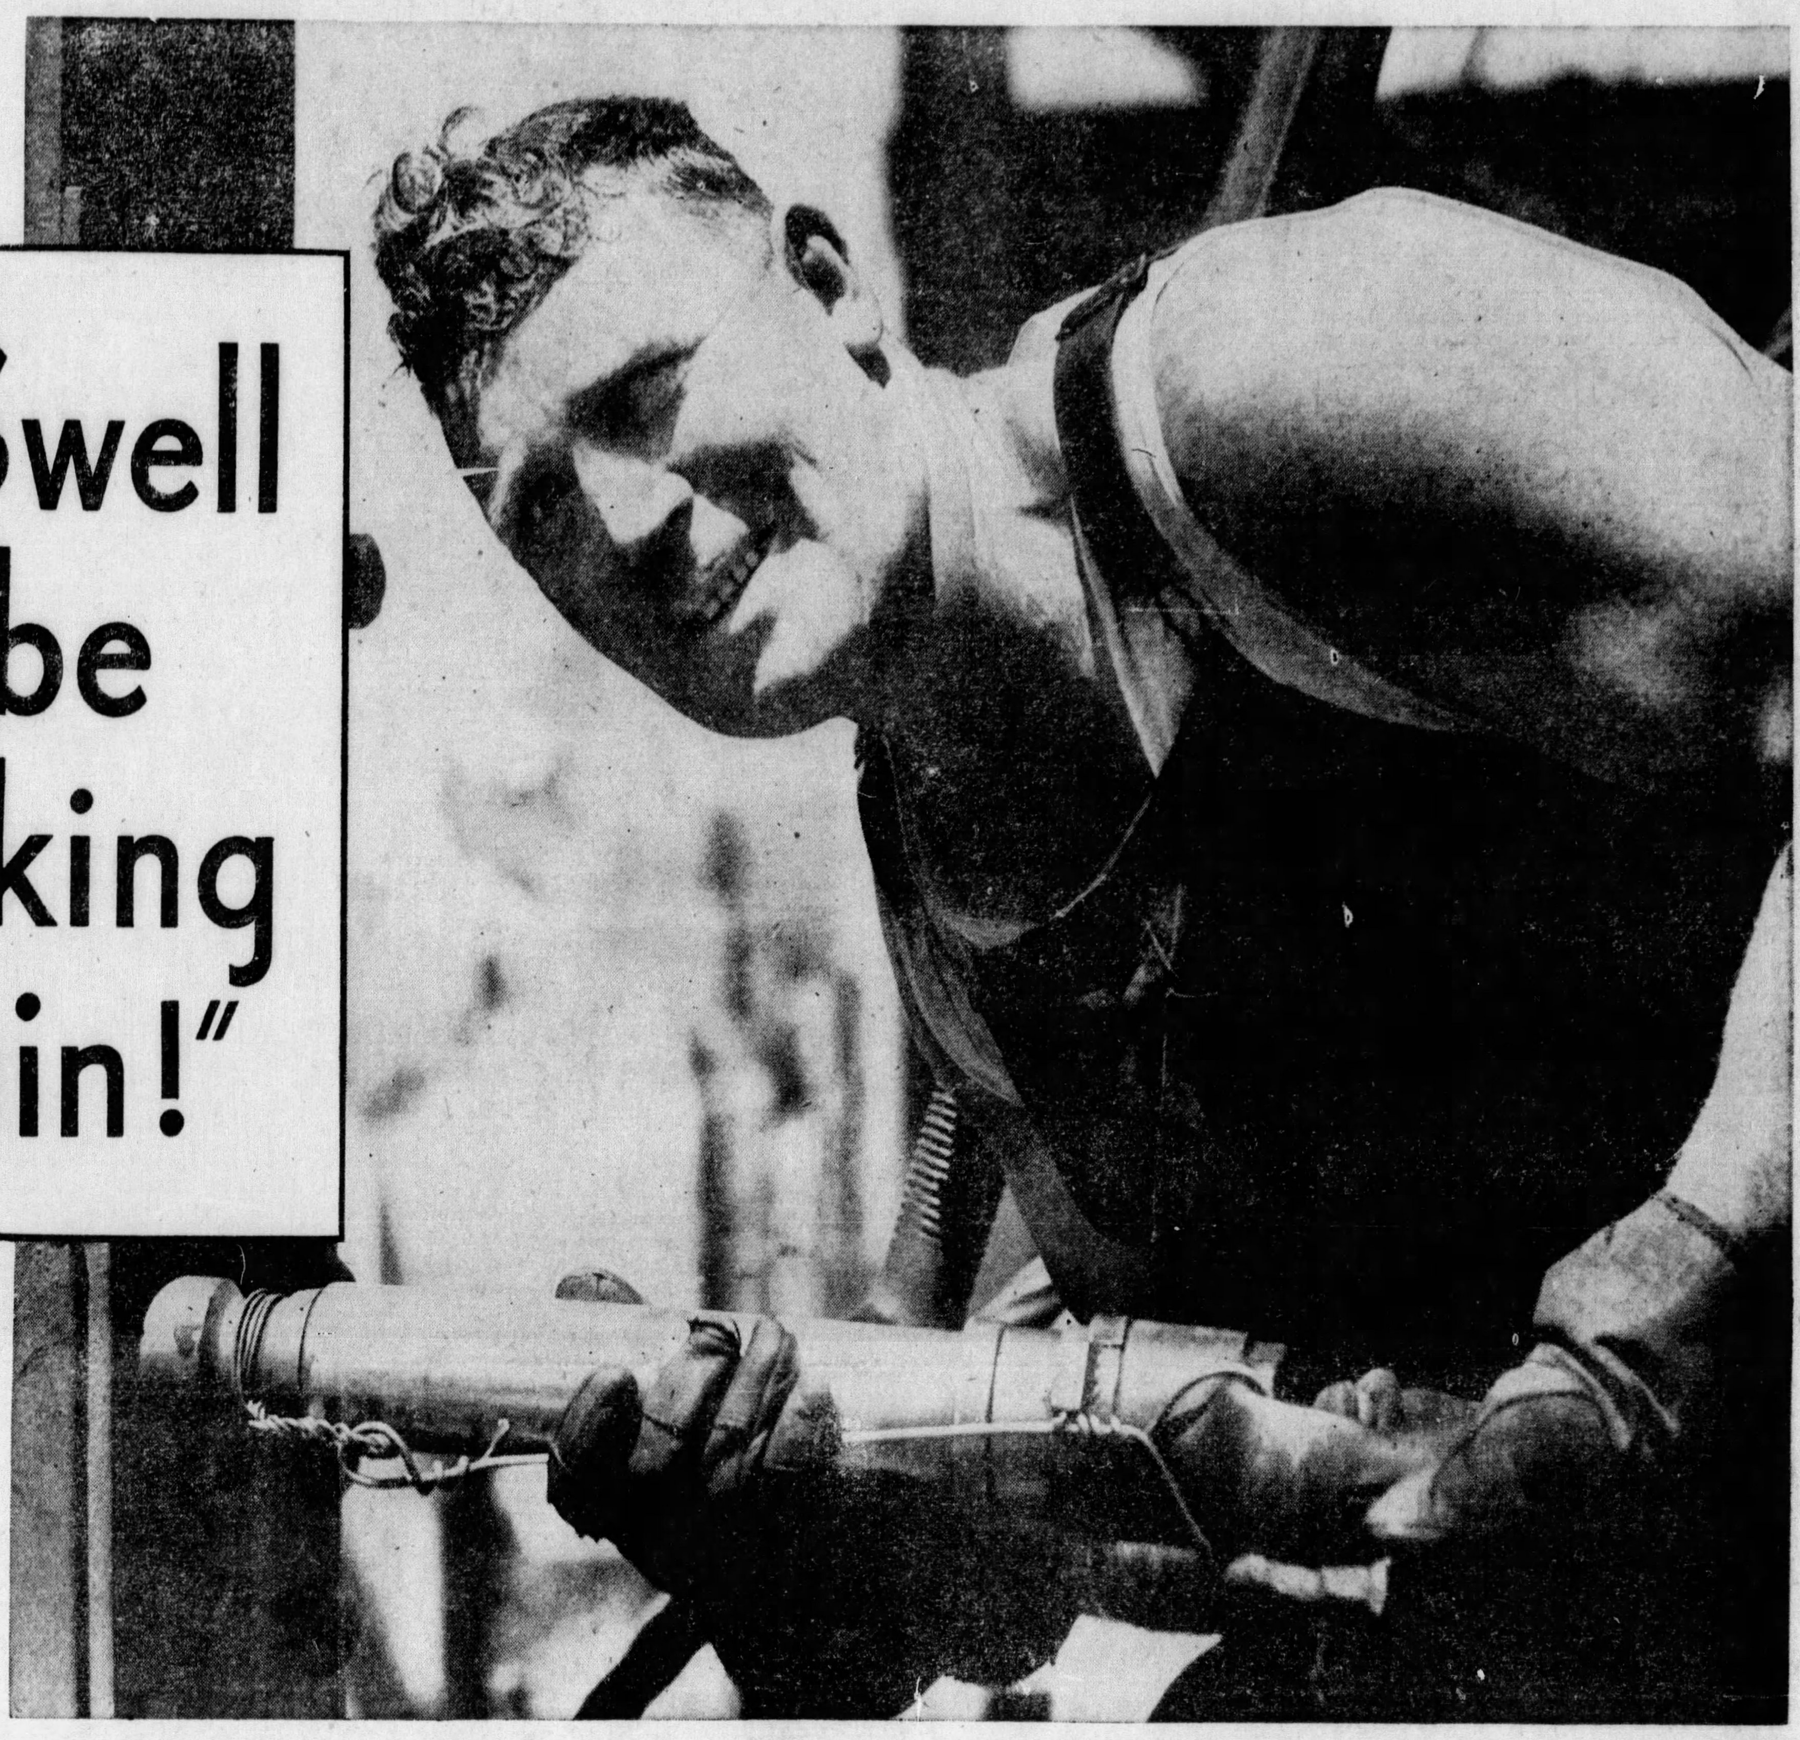
BUY IN SEPTEMBER AND BUY AMERICAN

"It's Swell to be Working again!"



This is the third illustrated editorial—of a series now appearing in the Hearst Newspapers—on the importance of the Buy Now movement as a contribution to National Recovery.

THE WORK WHISTLE HAS BLOWN! And industry has picked up its tools. The steel worker is back in his skyscraper. The miner is down in his pit! The farmer at his plow . . . the stenographer at her typewriter . . . in every community, smiles have appeared on brave faces. Willing hands have taken up their accustomed toil.

"It's swell to be working again!"

How pleasant to hear that cheerful phrase. Listen to it! Men are going back to work! Every day . . . America "gets down to business!" To fight it's way out of the red!

• • •

Not all of you who read this will have a job. But most of you will! And you are the ones who must not forget the "other fellow." For at this stretch of the road we must stand shoulder to shoulder. With that spirit, National Recovery cannot fail.

It's up to you! Today we must face facts squarely—think things through. It is your duty to see clearly your part in this nation-wide purpose to provide men with jobs, merchants with customers, manufacturers with buyers for their goods.

Manufacturers have done their part. Hours have been shortened. Men have been called back to work. And wages have been fixed at a minimum scale.

Your downtown stores and your neighborhood merchants have taken their places in line. Every day new jobs are being created. Salaries are in line for advance.

Now . . . it's up to you! It's your dollars that must ring the retail till. Food, drugs, clothing, furnishings, automobiles . . . necessities and "American luxuries" of all kinds must be sold.

You must do the spending. Your dollars must do the work. There is no middle course. No time for dallying. Buy what you need. Spend your money sensibly and success is directly ahead.

This is not just an appeal to your generosity. It is a simple pointing out of your clear line of duty. Your heart must feel the weight of this human problem. Every hand must follow the dictates of that wisdom which resides within a man.

Buy in September! It's your duty! Your neighbor's! Everyone with money in his pocket . . . with money in the bank. You must see the wisdom of buying now the things you need.

ALREADY AN AROUSED population has gone into buying ACTION! The Family has gone into a huddle. America is taking inventory . . . checking up. The kitchen pantry; the coal bin in the cellar; the clothes closet in the hall—all are open for inspection. What do we need? What can we sensibly buy? We'll buy it now—TODAY! We want to do our share, too!

A man comes home with a new golf club. He's wanted that mashie for two years. A woman happily wears her new hat. She looks prettier. The whole family notices it . . . and joins in her joy.

A daughter buys "that dress she saw in the window." Her older brother comes home dressed up in a new suit to wear to business. He's been wanting it . . . in fact, needing it...for months. Now they're buying.

A new radio set appears in the living room! A new car is parked in the family garage. America is buying! For today. And tomorrow!

What do you need? What will make your home more comfortable? Your wife happier? What will add to your family's well-being? Every man is interested in these questions, whether he lives in the tiniest flat or the millionaire's mansion.

It's up to every one of you. Do your sensible share!

Buy in September. Now is the time to start. Let every family hold a "business conference" in their home. Decide on the things you want and can sensibly afford. Buy everything you need—NOW! That's the way to help speed Recovery.

Gangster Durant Saved From Chair Agrees to Aid Him

Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan Production made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

CHAPTER V.

"Have an alibi; I might not be able to save you another time," grinned Durant.

"I didn't have any alibi last time, but you saved me," laughed Gazotti.

Because you were innocent—that time, my friend," said Durant.

"Hell, you'd have got me off if I'd been guilty," said the gangster confidently.

"Better get that idea out of your head, Tony," said Durant evenly. "If you're ever guilty I'll not defend you. I don't like murder, Tony. If you ever commit one, get another lawyer."

"You're a funy guy," said Gazotti. "What the hell do you care if I'm guilty or not?"

"I care a lot. I have a conscience, Tony. I also have an absorbing curiosity. It was that curiosity that made me take your case. I wondered what could be done with it in the face of all the evidence. But I was interested only because I knew you were not guilty."

"I almost believe you'd let me fry if the cops had the goods on me," said the gangster.

"I certainly should, and I'd probably give three cheers if you got what you deserved. You're a damn bad citizen, Tony, and the public welfare would be improved if you were rubbed out."

Gazotti grinned. "But with all that, I'm a nice guy, ain't I?"

Durant smiled. "You're an engaging little scoundrel, Tony," he admitted.

"I don't know any other man in this town that would talk to me the way you do," said Gazotti, shaking his head in bewilderment. "I think I'm hard and my boys think they're hard, but you make us all look like powder puffs. To my face you say that I ought to be rubbed out, that I'm bad for the city. I don't know why I take it from you. Except that if I lost you I wouldn't know anyone who was honest, and a man ought to know something of the other side, shouldn't he? What's all this about Crelliman?"

Synopsis

Jackson Durant, young lawyer who has alienated the Park avenue set through his spectacular success as "an underworld mouthpiece," has been asked by Sue Leonard, society girl who jilted him, to "save" Thomas Siddall, youthful broker, to whom Sue is now engaged. Siddall, held on a murder charge, had been arrested, gun in hand, when his former sweetheart, Mimi Montagne, a Broadway night club singer, was shot dead on the terrace of a penthouse where Jim Crelliman was "throwing a party." Durant starts his own investigation. He interviews Tony Gazotti whom he saved from the "hot seat" a short time before.

Now Go On

Asks for Information

"Can you get me some dope on him?"

"I can give him to you from the cradle to the grave," replied Gazotti. "What do you want to know?"

"I want to know every single thing he did yesterday."

"Why?" The gangster's eyes were hard.

"I'm interested in the Siddall case," answered Durant.

"Friend of his?"

"Yes; not an intimate, but I know him."

"He grabbed your cutie, didn't he?"

"I suppose you know what kind of toothpaste I use," said Durant.

Durant stared at him. "You boys certainly go into matters, don't you?"

"Why wouldn't we? You come to me, a big-shot gangster, and you're a big-shot swell. You say you know I'm innocent and can prove it to a jury. What the hell? It may be a new kind of a frame, for all I know. Maybe you think my lads didn't comb you over. My life was at stake. Why, I even know what mark you got for algebra in your second year at St. John's School. Now you tell me what the hell algebra is."

"I've forgotten," smiled Durant. "How soon can you give me the dope on Crelliman?"

"In a couple of hours," the gangster replied. "What do you think it is—a frame?"

Mimi's Girl Friend

"I don't know what it is; Siddall may be guilty as hell. But I want to find out. And the women, the Dusselman girl, Fi Dollard and Gertie Waxted. I want to know everything they did yesterday. The McCanns, too. And I'd like to know who Montagne saw yesterday, and what Ike Dolan did outside of attending church."

"Would you like to question some of them yourself?" asked Gazotti. "I can put a finger on a couple of the women the minute the police let them go. As a matter of fact, I'm all ready to pull a habeas for the Waxted wench any minute."

Durant whistled. "But wouldn't Crelliman attend to that?" he asked.

"I meant I was all ready, but

STUDENT HOME FROM GERMANY

Home after a year attending the University of Munich, Germany, Miss Dorothy Odenheimer, 18, of 708 Hastings street, Squirrel Hill, is glad that she can get American coffee again.

She went to Germany to study the history of art—determining, she explained, to get the European point of view first. Looking over some of the etchings in her art portfolio at her home today, she said:

"German people seem so much more interested in art than people here, and are more interested in becoming strong and healthy; but the cooking is pretty bad, and the coffee is terrible.

The Nazi movement, she said, placed the students and not the professors in charge of the university.

Miss Odenheimer intends to enter the University of Pittsburgh this month to continue her art studies.

Postmen to Walk With Music on Their Holiday

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Three thousand letter carriers will March in New York's NRA parade.

We asked our postman about it. He said:

"It's an ankle excursion all right. But we're going to have eleven bands to cheer up our faltering footprints. We march close formation so we can lean on each other."

There will be 250,000 people in the parade which will skip gaily along for seven hours. They will keep stepping until the blue eagle turns purple.

There will be two hundred bands, fifty airplanes and two thousand police out for the stroll up Fifth avenue tomorrow. They are betting ten to one that the writer will finish with his shoes under his arm.

CAFE OWNER GETS THREAT

They're no sissies—these letter writers in McKeesport.

Early this morning, when Miss Marie Haralam, 21, came into the living room of their home at 333 Olive street, McKeesport, she found a note warning her father, Alex Haralam, restaurant owner, to raise the price of beer.

The note was attached to a brick and the brick had crashed through a big front window.

The note, the first written, but the third warning, said:

"Warning: Raise your beer price to 15 cents a bottle. There shall be no other warning. We shall use violent methods if you do not comply."

It was signed "NRA Upholders."

Intricate Sewerage Laid Three Floors Below Street

Huge "glass" sewer pipes are just one of the thousands of construction improvements which scientists have devised for the new building of the Mellon Institute, now under construction in Oakland.

Workmen today were sealing the last joints of the elaborate sewer system for the building three floors below street level. The "glass" pipes, engineers explain, are new kind of glass and iron alloy, practically proof against acids and strong chemicals.

But the "glass" pipes, although powerful chemicals will not "burn" them out, are actually as fragile as delicate crystal, and almost as expensive. A joint a foot long costs $7.50.

The Mellon Institute plumbing system, according to John McNaugher, superintendent on the job, is one of the most intricate and elaborate in the world. Nine systems of pipes reach every room of the 11-story building which houses more than 235 laboratories. There is a special set of pipes to carry a new kind of fire extinguishing liquid, although there isn't a piece of wood used in the building.

This piping, according to McNaugher, is put together without a right angle so that there will be no danger of clogging. There is a special system of drainage pipes to carry away the spring water which bubbles from beneath the foundations of the structure, cut out of the solid rock.

McInerney's police service, beginning in 1911, was interrupted by war duty in France, where he was wounded. Later, rejoining the force, he became a lieutenant, and subsequently was assigned to the automobile detective squad.

MISSING MAN, KILLING LINKED

LAWRENCE, Mass., Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Lawrence police, searching for Harry Cahill, of this city, who has been missing since his abandoned automobile was found near Silver Lake, Wilmington, yesterday, were told today that Cahill was an acquaintance of Margaret McCarthy, slain Somerville child.

POLITICS

Council Battle Grows More Bitter

By MARK SHIELDS

Increasing bitterness is being engendered in the battle for City Council in the Republican primary. Candidates running on the slate with Mayor John S. Herron have become extremely irritable over the criticism being heaped on them by men running on the tickets with Councilman P. J. McArdle and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell.

Mr. Shields

They have become particularly incensed at speeches by Attorney Edward O. Tabor, and so mild a man as Clifford B. Connelley, speaking yesterday at Regular Republican headquarters, threatened to retaliate with attacks on Mr. Tabor. The burden of the complaint against Mr. Tabor revolves about his political and legal associates before he came to Pittsburgh.

But so far none of the candidates opposed to him has said a specific thing which is convincing.

Councilman W. Y. English has written an open letter to Mr. Tabor which he asks newspapers to print. It won't be printed here, for Mr. English uses the question method of attack. In other words, he asks a rival candidate "did you do so and so?" and himself makes no accusations.

This is a pretty method, when it avails. It plants suspicion in the public mind, a wonder if there is substance for the questions, while the propounder of the queries can later say that he made no charges, but simply asked some questions.

* * *

Direct Charges Are Different

Mr. English has done this before, notably in the case of Councilman Robert Garland. If Mr. Garland has acted with impropriety, then the time for Mr. English to have noted the events was prior to the campaign. Both were members of Council and Mr. English had a plain course of action if he felt the public was being bilked.

If Mr. English wishes to make direct charges in the case of Mr. Tabor—or any one else—that will be a horse of another color. But until and unless he does he cannot expect persons to attach much importance to innuendo which takes on the aspect of timidity.

As another indication of the asperity which is surrounding the campaign, there is the invitation of Senator James J. Coyne to Mr. McArdle for the two to sit down in a room with newspapermen, each to say what he thought of the other, and to tell the reasons for the utterances.

The Senator has been angered by the charges heaped upon him in the campaign, and in the case of Mr. McArdle believes particularly that he has been dealt with more harshly than history warrants.

Mr. McArdle has declined the invitation.

The Senator says he will not make public in any other way the reasons for his belief that Mr. McArdle should not be elected Mayor, wishing to meet the Citizens League candidate face to face.

It would be a great show, and perhaps a great story—but it isn't going to happen.

* * *

Mackrell Opponents Watch Charges' Effect

The size of the meetings addressed by Mr. Mackrell last night, tonight and tomorrow night is being eagerly watched by scouts for Mayor Herron and Councilman McArdle. They wish to see what effect the Engelsberg charges have had upon his candidacy. If the meetings are big, they will feel that he still is a factor. If they are small, the supposition is that he has been halted as a hurdle for either of his rivals.

In yesterday's noonday speech Mayor Herron continued to attack the Register of Wills, apparently figuring that a few more blows need be piled on top of the assault by the Citizens League. The Citizens League second reply to Mr. Mackrell was necessitated as a rejoinder to his charges that it was attempting to aid Mayor Herron. In some respects it was an even stouter blow than the first, bearing the authority of people more reputable than Joe Engelsberg or John Douglas.

The manner in which the episode is being treated where politicians gather is intensely interesting. The consensus, except among the immediate supporters of Mr. McArdle, is that the situation has redounded more to the benefit of Mayor Herron than Councilman McArdle. That may be strange reasoning, but it is general.

Independent leaders—not the present campaign group associated as the "Independent Republicans," but men who were in the county fight of 1931 and the state primary of 1932—will tell you that their friends are bewildered and are not certain where to turn. They will add that many of them intend to turn nowhere, and are little concerned about the mayoralty primary, though actively engaged in the councilman, judgeship and sheriff contests.

Parenthetically, the size of the Mackrell meetings is not necessarily conclusive. There may be many who attend to see how the candidate acts under fire.

VOTE MACHINES UNDER EXTRA GUARD

County Enlists 'Army' Of 924 Soldiers for Election Duty

Believing that an attempt already may have been made to tamper with one of the completed vote machines, the County Commissioners have reinforced their employes guarding the machines. Two additional watchmen will be on duty at all times in addition to the regular building police.

Yesterday morning it was discovered that the rear cover on one of the machines had been bent and loosened. Director William T. Rees, of the Elections Bureau, notified the County Commissioners, and a special meeting was called. County Police Chief William E. Rucker, his three men who were on duty since Sunday night, Property and Supplies Director Ray Sprigle and the Commissioners attended the meeting.

CALL EXTRA GUARD!

It was stated that one of the machines put into a basement corridor yesterday morning had been bent and loosened. This, Rees said, could have been done by someone trying to pry loose the rear cover and that also it might have been caused accidently when one heavy machine was shoved against another.

To prevent any tampering the Commissioners immediately engaged additional watchmen to guard the machines.

Beginning Saturday morning, the County Elections Department will begin shipping the set-up machines to the various polling places for the election Tuesday. Nine hundred and twenty-four men, all unemployed National Guardsmen and ex-service men, will guard the machines from the time of delivery until they are turned over to the election board Tuesday morning.

ENLIST SOLDIERS

The guards are hired after being recommended by the commanders of the various National Guard units and their post commanders of the service orders. While they are keeping watch on the machines in the polling places, county police on motorcycles will make continual rounds to check on their alertness. The guards and police will work under Chief Rucker.

On election day a new group of guards, the 464 machine inspectors who really are members of the election boards, will be on hand throughout the election to watch for any attempt to tamper with the machines. These machine inspectors also will remain on duty after the polls close and watch the machines until they are collected by the county.

McNair Calls City's Transit System Obsolete, Pledges Municipal Economy, Reduced Taxes

Democrat Candidate Hits 'Trolley Trust' Power Rates

(Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of five articles in which each of the five mayoralty candidates has been invited by the Sun-Telegraph to write under his own signature his answer to this question: "Why do you think you should be elected Mayor of Pittsburgh?")

By WILLIAM N. M'NAIR

As mayor of Pittsburgh I would first of all appoint department heads who would be chosen because of their special abilities to head the various divisions of government and not because of their social, sartorial or scenic qualifications.

I would require these department heads to immediately undertake exhaustive surveys of their offices to determine the justification for each bureau, each division, each employe. Those found to be unnecessary, I would eliminate.

Particular attention would be given to the bureau of police with a view to improving its personnel, and efficiency, and to eliminate political influence in the matter of appointments, and promotions—which would be made on merit only.

Slum Eradication

I would at all times stand ready to lend the influence of the Mayor's office to co-operate in all movements having for their purpose the advancement of Pittsburgh as a center of industry, commerce, recreation and culture.

Particularly am I interested in sponsoring a program of slum eradication.

The City of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County have spent some $100,000,000 druing the past 15 years to build bridges, tunnels and boulevards which have resulted in great savings in time, great conveniences and great reductions in the cost of transportation for those who own or operate automobiles.

Not a penny has been expended to reduce the time that must be spent in travel for those who use the trolley. The cost of street car transportation has been increased four times since 1918, from five cents to eight and one-third cents.

In addition to this increase in car fare, Pittsburgh's trolley rideds are called upon either as taxpayers or renters to pay part of the cost of construction and maintenance of this hundred million dollars worth of bridges, roads and tunnels, built exclusively for motor traffic.

I would insist upon the modernization of our transit system, such as might be brought about by the introduction of trackless trolley busses of the type used in Dayton and other cities where a five-cent fare is charged—three cents for children—so that our 200,000 street car riders be permitted to reap some benefit from the millions spent for new boulevards and bridges.

Pledges Economy

Pittsburgh's transit system is obsolete and out-of-date and must be modernized. If the trolley trust will not give the people of Pittsburgh rapid transit at a reasonable figure, then the responsibility becomes one for the municipality just as the municipality, the county and state assumed the responsibility for improving highways and building bridges for the convenience of the automobile owner.

I would demand and force a showdown with the local utility corporations, particularly the Duquesne Light Company, in the matter of rates and service. Records of a Senate investigating committee show that the Duquesne Light Company has been earning twice its legal income—a matter of some $6,000,000 annually, taken from the pocketbooks of local consumers of electric light and power.

I would endeavor to have placed on the city's tax books the $32,000,000 of public utility property in the city of Pittsburgh now on the "exempt" list in the assessor's office.

I would also endeavor to have the city's graded tax law extended to include taxes collected for school purposes and thus reduce the tax burden of the owners of improved property.

In short, I would do everything possible at all times to reduce municipal operating costs and taxes, to increase governmental efficiency and to cut the charges and improve the service rendered by the local utility corporations.

100,000 MORE PLEDGES, AIM OF DRIVE

Beechview Maps Out 'Buy Now' Campaign; 'Pariotic Duty'

More than 200,000 housewives in the Pittsburgh district have added their support to the Sun-Telegraph's "Buy In September" campaign.

Indications that this number have signed consumers' pledges agreeing to back merchants flying the Blue Eagle were given at the Women's Auxiliary NRA headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building. The auxiliary has exhausted its supply of 200,000 pledge cards and has applied for 100,000 additional cards at Washington.

The volunteer army of 5,000 women making the house-to-house canvass under the chairmanship of Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, are urging the women to buy now.

BEECHVIEW CANVASS

A meeting of NRA workers of the Beechview district was held last night in the community center, Fallowfield and Sebring avenues, to complete plans for their independent canvass. C. V. Rooper was chairman of the meeting, and Mrs. Frank Beach spoke.

Byron K. Elliott, president of the B. K. Elliott Company, commenting on the "Buy in September" campaign today said:

"I think the hour has arrived when we should all get behind the NRA program, when we should get behind the wheel and push wholeheartedly. It won't go over unless we all do our part, and if it doesn't go over all our business and all our industry will be on its back for perhaps a quarter of a century. We can't let it fail just because we are not back of it. Certainly it is worthy of our support.

PATRIOTIC DUTY!

"We are spending a lot of money in order to help the movement as much as we can. We feel that the people are showing a better spirit, getting along better and beginning to buy a few of the things that they have been wanting for a long time. I want to make it clear that we should all help the 'Buy in September' movement and develop it into a patriotic measure. Our company feels that it has the right spirit even if we don't get everything back in dollars."

Edward Flaccus, president of the William Flaccus Oak Leather Company, said:

"I'm in favor of the movement if we don't buy too much now and not enough later on. We don't want a boom now and a business slump later. We want regular spending by those who can afford it. Those persons who have been hanging on to their money should spend as much of it at this time as they possibly can."

AVALON COUPLE WED 50 YEARS

Today's a big day for Mr. and Mrs. Louis Muth, of 617 Taylor avenue, Avalon—it's their golden wedding anniversary.

Reminiscent of their marriage at St. Peter's Church, Ohio street and Sherman avenue, 50 years ago, the couple will re-enact the ceremony as a high spot of an all-day celebration. Climaxing the festivities tonight will be a dinner for 80 guests, while first on the day's schedule is an anniversary mass at the Church of the Assumption, Bellevue. Miss Rose Campbell, one of Mrs. Muth's bridesmaids, is to be a guest of honor.

Mr. Muth was born in 1860 at Union and Fourth street road (Graeme street and Fifth avenue), at present the site of the Diamond Bank Building, and Mrs. Muth, in 1859 at Avery street, Allegheny.

They have three children—Margaret and John Muth and Mrs. Charles Schneider, of Bellevue—and 13 grandchildren.

Jailed for Backing McArdle, Charge In 'Strip'

Voters in the Strip are being sent to jail on charges of supporting P. J. McArdle for mayor, Attorney O. Hicks Friedman charged today in a petition prepared for Common Pleas Court.

And they are being sent to jail by Mayor Herron's new magistrate, George Metzier, Friedman contended.

Friedman charged that one William West, Negro, was sent to the workhouse for 30 days last week simply because he is a political admirer of P. J. Sullivan, who is supporting McArdle for mayor.

Friedman wants the court to release his client.

CAVANAUGH HITS LAW INACTIVITY

Thomas J. Cavanaugh, candidate for sheriff, in a series of speeches last night promised that if elected he would use the power of the sheriff's office for active law enforcement, making an especial drive against rackets and bombings.

Sheriffs, he said, no longer can sit back and passively operate their offices, but must co-operate with national and local officers for the extermination of the gangster.

Cavanaugh pointed to his record as a police officer and prohibition administrator to demonstrate his experience in law-enforcement work. Cavanaugh is a World War veteran.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 12.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Talking to Oscar Lawlor yesterday, California's most capable and common sense lawyer. He says that the NRA is nothing but a code of fair ethics of people doing business with each other. And thinks it was rather a slam against a nation that we have to be forced by government control, and patriotic persuasion, to do what's right.

Will Rogers

I never had thought of it in that light, but that's all it is. It looks like they are trying to get a little more conscience on the market, and a little less preferred stock. It's just decency by government control.

Yours,
WILL.

Alderman Candidate Cites War Record

Harry H. Wall, candidate for alderman in the Fourteenth Ward, today denied a reported claim by an opponent, James J. Laffey, that Laffey was the only ward aldermanic candidate to have seen war service.

Wall said he had served as a sergeant in Company E, 305th Motor Supply Train, Eightieth Division, and had been at the front at St. Mihiel, the Meuse and Argonne.

VOTING MACHINE OPERATION DESCRIBED

Citizens Informed Of Step-by-Step Process

(Editor's Note—This is the second of a series of three articles detailing step-by-step the necessary procedure for each individual voter using the voting machines.)

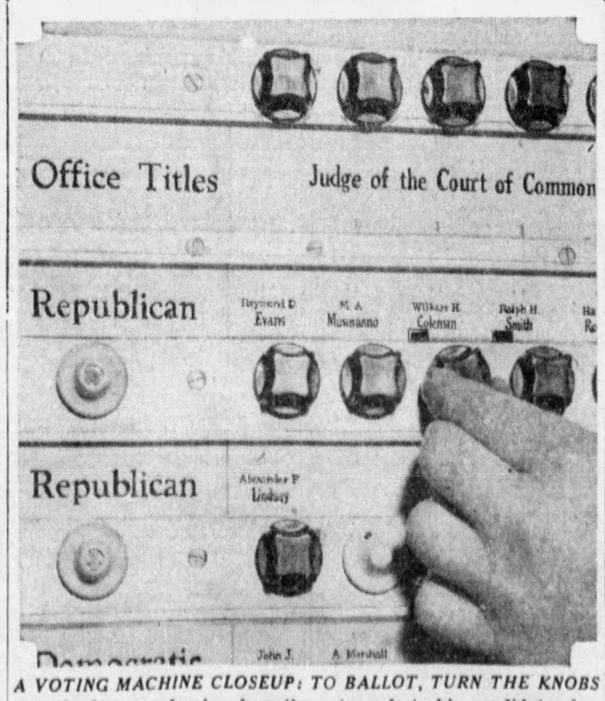
Heading the list will be the Republican party. The remaining six in their order reading down the party column will be: Democratic, Socialist, Prohibition, Independent, Liberal and Square Deal. The candidates' names on each party read left to right across the machine.

The voter is warned not to confuse the Independent party with candidates seeking office as Independent Republicans on their campaign advertisements. The latter candidates are on the Republican party ticket.

The preliminary steps for a citizen to cast on a machine were detailed in yesterday's story of this series. The voter today is ready to begin the actual voting process. The photographs illustrate a closeup of the machine.



A VOTING MACHINE CLOSEUP: TO BALLOT, TURN THE KNOBS

A close-up showing how the voter selects his candidates by turning the black knob over which the name of his choice appears. The tiny black marker indicating the names of Coleman and Smith appear when the knobs or keys are turned. To change one's mind, one turns back the knob, the marker vanishes and the machine makes no record of that vote. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Only the black buttons are used for voting. The white buttons are blanks for ballot places not carrying a candidate.

Mechanical Ballot Lists Candidates Of 7 Parties

Under each office there is stipulated the number to be voted. As an example, three are to be nominated for judge of Common Pleas Court. The voter in making the three selections, turns three candidates' buttons of his or her choice. At the turn of a button, a red marker bearing a crossmark arises. If a voter wants to change a selection already made, the candidate's button is simply turned back. The marker then drops. A new candidate then can be selected.

No more buttons than are stipulated as the number to be voted for in any particular office can be turned. The machine automatically prevents the selection of more names than are to be nominated.

(To Be Concluded Tomorrow.)

Alpern Addresses 14th Ward Voters

Louis Alpern, campaigning for the Republican nomination for Jury Commissioner spoke last night at a meeting at the Sterrett School, Fourteenth Ward, and also at a rally at the Second Avenue School, Second and Greenfield avenues. He will speak tonight at Taylor Allderdice High School, Fourteenth Ward and at Morningside School, 1802 Jancey street.

Judge Smith Marks Anniversary in Court Work

When Judge Ralph H. Smith heard his first case in Criminal Court yesterday, it was in the same court room and before the same court attaches who heard him try his first criminal case nine years ago, when he became an assistant district attorney.

The court room was No. 3 and the staff included Howard Crobin, clerk, and John Titz and Maj. Harry Fowler, tipstaffs. Judge Smith has been hearing cases in Common Pleas Court since his elevation to the bench nearly a year ago, and began service in Criminal Court this week.

'Forgotten' Ward Leader Defies Herron

Charging Mayor John S. Herron with making political propaganda of "forgotten district" residents seeking improvements, E. J. Holland, president of the Sixteenth Ward Improvement Association, today challenged the executive to debate before a public meeting. He said:

"We resent your attitude towards our civic pride. The 'forgotten district' is our community; we are interested in it but we are not interested in having to go to the political ward chairman to get sewers cleaned out, to get streets fixed, or to get ample fire protection."

'Catch-as-Catch-Can' Sleeper Goes to Jail

Mrs. Pearl Wolf, who conducts a rooming house at 400 Penn avenue, walked into an empty room at 4 o'clock this morning and found Edward Cleary.

Twice, within a few weeks, she had visited what she thought was an empty room—and founr him fast asleep, she told Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Moral Court. She said:

"Twice is too much."

So Cleary, 50, of 279 Ashland avenue, Mt. Lebanon, was fined $20 or 20 days to jail.

He explained he occasionally, over a period of years, when downtown late and "under the weather" dropped into the rooming house; and in the morning paid for his room and left. But recently, he explained, ownership must have changed. A week or so ago, when he said he awakened there he offered to pay the new owners but they refused.

Marie Denies Marriage Claim

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 12.—All the bad luck in the world to that racing man in Cleveland who is giving out interviews that he is an ex-husband of Marie Dressler!

Nearly every star in the business has been victimized by such phonies, but it's a shame to bother Marie, who needs every ounce of strength to complete "The Late Christopher Bean."

How swell she was about it, too! A suspicious Cleveland newspaper telegraphed:

Miss Dressler

"Racing man here (giving name) says in interview that he was married to you at Weatherford, Tex., and divorced six years later."

With that forgiving nature and saving sense of humor of hers, Marie wired back:

"Statement untrue in every respect, but I am very tired and need a long rest, so if his horses are running well, and he has $2,000,000 or so, I might consider his proposition at this time."

As Mannie Seff tells it, the producer went to the writer and suggested:

"Why don't you do us a song like 'The Shadow Waltz'?"

Whereupon, in a squelch elegant, the writer came back:

"Listen, you're writing 'Forty-Second Street', not "The Gold-Diggers. Stick to it."

Here's a hot one. The eastern antics of Huey Long are keeping Warner Brothers writers at top speed adding sequences to "The Kingfish." On the day after it happened, that fisticuff episode was in the script. Now, the loud Louisianan's plan to rent Madison Square Gardens has joined it.

What with Carole Lombard going places with Gary Cooper, the gossips got quite a thrill . . . Stay on the May West set and sooner or later you'll see the whole cinema world. Harold Lloyd was the latest to succumb to curiosity.

Mary Carlisle Given Ingenue Role

Mary Carlisle, blonde actress, has been signed for the ingenue role in Columbia's "East of Fifth Avenue" (temporary title), in which Dorothy Tree and Wallace Ford have the principal parts. It is based on Lew Levenson's play, "Brownstone Front." Miss Carlisle's initial step towards picture fame was made two years ago when she made her debut in a short subject entitled "Devil's Cabaret." Since then she has been seen in features including "Madam Satan," "Night Court," "Men Must Fight" and "College Humor."

Gas Payment To Tourist

"Oh, I know it's a picture set," replied the tourist. "That's why I came here. I'll pay you double the price for the gasoline if you'll let me be in a scene."

He got his wish, and the five gallons of gasoline free as pay for being an extra.

BUCS, DODGERS TIED IN FIRST GAME OF DUAL BILL

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

PLAID BACKFIELD MAY HAVE BROTHER ACT

It is not beyond the realm of possibility that the Carnegie Tech football team will present a brother act in its backfield this fall. Bill Spisak, flashy running halfback of Midland, Pa., earned his spurs as a varsity regular last year. He was just starting to hit his stride when a painful elbow injury cut him down in the Xavier game at Cincinnati, and he didn't play any more until he got into the final game of the season against Georgetown for a few minutes.

Bill Spisak

Now comes Charley Spisak, a younger brother, who played quarterback for the Plebes last year and has an ambitious urge to do the same job for the varsity of 1933. Bill's running and defensive play are his strongest points. Charley is a fair runner, a good open-field tackler, and in addition can pass and punt in creditable fashion. Despite the presence of several sophomores of ability and speed on the squad, Bill's experience is expected to give him the call at the left halfback post. The older brother is in fine shape and appears to be headed for a big season.

BEVEVINO NOT TO BE DISPLACED EASILY

Charley has a harder task confronting him, however, for the veteran Angelo Bevevino, with two years of varsity service under fire behind him, is determined to be the regular quarterback and will not be displaced easily.

Still no one expects a team in modern collegiate football to go through an entire season with only one quarterback, and undoubtedly the day will come when Carnegie will have a pair of brothers in the lineup and the scorecard will show: Quarterback, C. Spisak; left halfback, W. Spisak.

PIRATES MAY GAIN WHILE RIVALS FIGHT

The Pirates will have a chance to improve their chances for holding second place at the season's end if they can put on a winning spurt while the Giants and Cubs are tearing at each other's throats in the six-game series at Chicago. Should the teams of Bill Terry and Charley Grimm break even in the set, the Bucs could pick up some ground with a winning dash.

But it won't be easy, considering the opposition. For the Boston Braves will be here tomorrow for their farewell four-game series at Forbes Field, and they're certain to be fighting hard with a view to grabbing off a first-division money position at the finish and winning that $5,000 for Bill McKechnie.

MUNGO CREDITS IMPROVEMENT TO LOPEZ

Early in the season Van Mungo just couldn't win for the Dodgers. He was a steadily losing pitcher. But during the last two months he has been the only consistent winner on the Brooklyn staff and has boosted his total number of victories to 13. For the improvement in his pitching he gives all the credit to Catcher Al Lopez, admitting that it was the coaching and personal influence of the Spanish backstop that enabled him to control his temper as well as the ball.

Al Lopez

A speed-testing machine is said to have disclosed that Mungo throws a faster ball than even Lefty Grove or Lefty Gomez. Van assured Harold Parrott that he is no faster now than when he was hurling for Hartford, but that the better results he is getting are due to the fact that he knows what to do with his stuff because Lopez taught him. Mungo declares that when Lopez is catching it is like taking three innings off the pitcher's work in a ball game; that Al will field all the bunts and pop flies, and that with a man on first the hurler can wind up a little more because Lopez will throw the stealer out anyhow.

NO SCORE ALLOWED WHEN BALL HITS RUNNER

This query comes from W. L. M., of Latrobe: Two men out, runners on third and second. Batter hits a slow roller which third baseman lets go, on the chance that it will roll foul, but it stays in fair territory. Man on third goes home, and man on second goes to third, but the ball hits the latter runner while he is standing on third base. Does the run count, and is the runner out, though he was standing on third when hit?

A runner is out when hit by a fairly batted ball before a fielder has touched it, whether the runner is standing on a base or not. No run can be scored on such an out, and no bases can be run unless necessitated by the batter's becoming a base-runner; that is, previous runners being forced to move up. In this case, it retired the side and the run did not count. If there had been less than two out, the runner hit by the ball would have been out, the man who ran home would have been sent back to third, and the batter would have been allowed to take first base, getting credit for a single.

BRASSIE GETS PLAY IN NATIONAL AMATEUR

The brassie has become a neglected club in golf, but it's getting a strong play in the national amateur championship tournament in Cincinnati this week, having been forced out of the bag by those three par fives on the Kenwood course, which measure 564, 594 and 573 yards.

Few of the stars have implicit faith in their brassie skill. Tommy Armour is the best since Bobby Jones withdrew from competition. Walter Hagen won't trust the club, and instead has fixed a brass plate to the sole of his favorite driver. Jess Sweetser says a brassie shot out of clover grass is the most difficult shot in golf, as clover leaves exude an oily, gummy juice which causes the club head to slip off the face of the ball.

CHANCES FAVOR ROSS TO REPEAT TONIGHT

Both principals in the world lightweight championship fight in New York tonight will be facing hoodoos. Tony Canzoneri, the challenger, has against him the tradition that no dethroned champion in that class ever has regained the title. Barney Ross, the reigning king, is bucking a year that has been a jinx to fistic champs as well as to crown-wearers in many other branches of sport, a year that has seen the downfall of Jack Sharkey, Jackie Fields, Young Corbett, Ben Jeby and Canzoneri.

Barney Ross

When Ross won the title from Canzoneri in Chicago early in the summer the distance was 10 rounds. Tonight it will be 15. Canzoneri, though he may have lost some of his old greatness, still is so good a money fighter that he must be conceded a chance. But that longer route appears to favor Ross because he is younger, less ring-worn, and still coming, whereas Canzoneri is going. It ought to be a good fight, with Canzoneri not to be counted as beaten before he is actually licked, but youth and stamina should win for Ross.

BARNEY, TONY ON EDGE FOR TITLE BOUT

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.) Tony Canzoneri, who meets Champion Barney Ross tonight at the Polo Grounds in an attempt to regain the world lightweight boxing title, tipped the scales at 133¼ pounds when he weighed in for the 15-round engagement today.

A fair, but cool night is predicted by the weather man, who said the temperature should be around 65 degrees at 10 p. m., daylight saving time, when the men will enter the ring.

CANZONERI CONFIDENT

Canzoneri, his flashing smile denoting confidence in the outcome of the battle, which is expected to draw a crowd of 40,000, stepped on the scales before Ross appeared for the weighing ceremonies at the State Athletic Commission's office.

The little Italian's weight was only a quarter of a pound more than when he lost the title to Ross in Chicago less than three months ago.

DEPART FOR HOTELS

Dr. Joseph M. Sheridan, commission physician, examined the two warriors and pronounced both in perfect physical condition.

WISCONSIN 'UNKNOWN' LEADS IN AMATEUR

MILWARD BIDS FOR MEDAL WITH 144

By DAVID J. WALSH
International News Service.

KENWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, Cincinati, Sept. 12.—A frail, 20-year-old architect's assistant, James Wilward, of the Nakoma Country Club, Madison, Wis., shot a sparkling 35-34—69 in the second half of the National Amateur golf championships qualifying round here today to take a temporary lead. His 69, two under par and one srtoke above the amateur course record, added to his 75 of yesterday, gave him a total of 144 strokes. This put him two full shots ahead of Ernest L. Caldwell, another obscure juvenile from Baltimore.

SON OF PROFESSOR

Milward, son of a professor of horticulture at the University of Wisconsin, weighs about 135 pounds. He admitted on the home green when he blew a 2½-foot putt that would have given him a 68 that he is "playing the golf of his life." This is his first major tournament.

Milward's putter was responsible for his great spurt. He has yet to take three putts on any of Kenwood's carpets. His card:

Out	435	435	344—35

Denmar Miller, Des Moines, Ia., came in with a 73, which, added to his 74 of yesterday, put him in third place with 147. He was followed immediately by Eugene Homans, Englewood, N. J., with a 75, which, with his 73 yesterday, placed him fourth with 148.

LEADERS LATE STARTERS

Johnny Goodman, of Omaha; Charley Seaver, of Los Angeles, and George T. Dunlap, Jr., of New York, were doing as well or better than yesterday. The prospects were strengthened that 151 would be on the borderline.

PITT WEIGHT 'PAR' HIGH

By JESS CARVER

Weight par for the Pitt varsity football squad this year apparently is 195, which is pretty stiff par, when you consider that seldom do any of our district college elevens ever boast an oversupply of big fellows.

The Panthers reported for their initial drills of the season yesterday and were not disappointed. A week late in getting his squad together, Coach Sutherland gave the boys two stiff workouts. The men reported fine physical condition, with Hogan, Walton, Skladany, Hoel, Love, Onder, Rooker, Weinstock, Munjas, Matesie, Meredith, Gelini, Greene and Stan Olejnissak coming out at 190 pounds or better.

The squad is being quartered at Webster Hall for the duration of the training camp period. It's the first time in 20 years a Pitt team has made ready for the campaign at home.

The Tipoff

The Dukes have made up their minds to get along minus the services of a set of halfbacks in the opening game with Waynesburg Friday night. It is doubtful if either Jim McDonald, regular right half, will be able to play, and more so that Dick Nussbaum, or DeLuca's sub at left half, can get into the action.

As a result, Coach Elmer Layden has shifted Art Strutt, a reserve fullback, who has played a half at times to McDonald's post, and will depend on Sil Zaninelli and Jim Campbell for the fullbacking.

Ohio State, still anxious to arrange a permanent series with Pitt, has offered the Panthers the November 24 date for 1934, for a game in Columbus. This, the Panthers are likely to do.

FIGHT RESULTS

NEW RULE IN FOOTBALL . . . BALL AUTOMATICALLY GOES IN 10 YDS. FROM SIDELINE Demonstration of one of the new rules in football for the season which gets under way this week. A ball, dead near the sideline, is put in play 10 yards inside. Here we see a player fumbling and another player, standing over the sideline, downing the ball. There'll be no lineup at that point this year, according to the new rules, but 10 yards inside. It's a break for the offense. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

NATE KAUFMAN ENTERS SWIM

By STEVE HEALEY
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Nathan H. Kaufman, of Pittsburgh, was the first to enter the William Randolph Hearst-Chicago Herald and Examiner 15-mile marathon swim that is to be staged here October 1.

The first woman to enter was Jean Charvat, of Chicago.

There were many other entries received over the week-end, but these were the first of each sex to hit the desk.

AMBRIDGE OUT FOR TENTH STRAIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

The Ambridge High School football team, class A champion in the W. P. I. A. L. last season, will be striving for its tenth straight victory Saturday afternoon when Moe Rubenstein sends his rebuilt eleven against Monaca High in the opening battle of the campaign.

Ambridge went through a tough nine-game schedule in 1932 without suffering a setback to rule supreme among the class A schools. The Bridgers were the only school to hold undisputed possession of the gridiron throne in their division, the races in class B and class AA resulting in deadlocks.

New Brighton, California and Ellwood City were the only schools to score on Ambridge in 1932.

Coach Rubenstein has been forced to rebuild his eleven this fall owing to the loss of stars through graduation, but he has sufficient replacements and should present a strong contender for the class A crown against Monaca. Monaca and Ambridge did not meet last season.

School Notes

Jimmy McDonald, a graduate of Ohio State University, is coaching at Verona High School this fall, replacing Coach Schropp, who is teaching in Sandusky, O.

Scott High, fresh from its opening victory of the season at the expense of Uniontown, is hard at work preparing for its second encounter with the Canonsburg Gunners. Canonsburg is a newcomer on the Scott program, but the Gunners are capable of giving the best of them a tough argument. Canonsburg is the second successive class A school to be met by Johnny Reed's gridders.

The fact that Braddock held the Erie Strong Vincent eleven to a 6-6 draw in their opening game means that New Castle, co-champion in class AA last fall, will have its hands full Friday night at New Castle. It's the opening battle of the season for Phil Bridenbaugh's eleven.

Pitcairn makes its bow in the classA race by engaging Turtle Creek Union at Turtle Creek Friday. Turtle Creek is a double A school, playing under a new coach this season, Ben Haldy having replaced Foxy Miller. Turtle Creek defeated Pitcairn in 1932, 20 to 0.

Lacking a first-class quarterback, Jeannette High, co-champion in the double A race last season, kicks off the lid on its schedule Saturday at Jeannette by engaging Sewickley Township. Sewickley Township surprised the critics last season by scoring on Jeannette and Markley Barnes, coach at the latter school, has the utmost respect for the visitors. Jeannette won in 1932, 21-6.

Wilkinsburg faces an old rival in its opening battle of the season at Graham Field, Wilkinsburg, Saturday when Avalon is met. The Carroll-coached team scored a 33-0 victory over Avalon.

Homestead will present a green eleven in its opening clash of the season Friday night when Brentwood is met at West Homesteady Field. Bill Campbell lost 10 out of his 11 first-string players last fall. Homestead Field. Bill Campbell lost 10 of the W. P. I. A. L.

On Sunday in the first game Wheeling's Bud Thomas held Zanesville to three hits and the Stogies triumphed 4 to 0.

Last night Al Milnar, of the Grays, reversed Matters, limiting Wheeling to three hits, while his mates were gaining a 1-to-0 victory and evening the series. The score:

Names in the Sports News

HAYNARD CALLEN, of Perry High School, defeated BILL LOWE, also of Perry, in a third-round, city senior and junior high school tennis tournament match yesterday on the North Side, 3-6, 6-3, 6-0.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The Nobel Prize this year will go to the gent who can explain what happened to the Boston Braves . . . And right after a group of Manager Bill McKechnie's Wilkinsburg friends, fellow-members of Dr. Flint's Bible Class in the Mifflin Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, sent him congratulations on the great fight he was making for the pennant.

Eddie Hazel, former local boxer, with a lot of natural ability, now is located in California . . . He writes from San Diego, where he has settled down . . . Eddie was in the Army for a time . . . Frank Jerry and Tony Mazzei, of the Keystone A. C.; Bill Greig, of Jeannette, and A. W. Snyder, of New Castle, are in the A. M. A. 25 kilometers run in Erie this evening.

Pop Warner thinks that new rule bringing the ball inside 10 yards any time it is declared dead within 10 yards of the sideline is a fine step forward for football . . . It helps the offense in that it eliminates the old out-of-bounds play for the loss of a down and enables the quarterback to push his drive, and Pop's always been strong for stressing the attack as against the defense.

Former local college stars will be scattered around considerably in the professional football ranks this fall . . . Jess Quatse, all-America tackle at Pitt, will be with Green Bay and in his first game will play against Rip Collins and Jim MacMurdo, former teammates, who are with Boston . . . Paul Cuba, of Pitt, will play for Philadelphia, along with Demas, of W. & J., and Flenniken, of Geneva, and Joe Morbito, of Tech, has just signed with Bridgeport, which is not in the league, but will play league teams . . . Other district stars will be with the Pittsburgh and other National League teams.

Jack Sharkey is getting $25,000 for his 10-round return bout with Tommy Loughran at the Phillies' Park, in Philadelphia, on September 27 . . . Some years ago, when Jack was in the Navy, a Philadelphia manager of boxers called up Johnny Burns, promoter of a small club, and told him he had a good Polish heavyweight at the Navy Yard who went by the name of Battling Ski and would like to get a fight . . . Burns couldn't use him even for $50 . . . Imagine Johnny's embarrassment when Ski went away with his ship and later turned up in Boston on his way to fame and the heavyweight championship as Jack Sharkey. . . . And now, after all of these years, Philadelphia is glad to welcome him for his first bout there at a fancy guarantee.

WOMEN'S GOLF FAVORITE BOWS

By TOM BIRKS

Miss Barbara Warmcastle, Pittsburgh Field Club women's champion, was defeated by Mrs. L. K. Friedman, Westmoreland women's titleholder, in a startling upset in the first round of match play in the annual Western Pennsylvania women's golf championship at the Allegheny Country Club today.

Miss Warmcastle, beaten by Mrs. Sara Fownes Wadsworth in the final last year, not only lost to the Westmoreland star, but was put out by the lop-sided margin of 5 and 4. Illness prevented Mrs. Wadsworth from defending her title this year.

Favorites came through as expected in other first round duels in the title fight, Miss Betty Abernethy, of Oakmont, the medalist, eliminating Mrs. L. G. Riley, of Edgewood, 8 and 7; and Mrs. J. Bernd Rose, of Allegheny, winning over Mrs. M. K. Garber, of Oakmont, 6 and 4.

Stoneham Denies Sale of Giants

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants, today indignantly denied a report that he had sold his controlling interest in the New York Giants of the National Baseball League to A. C. Blumenthal, real estate and theatrical promoter. He said:

"You can make that as emphatic as you wish. There is absolutely nothing to it. The Giants are not for sale."

The report had it that Blumenthal had paid $1,750,000 for the club and his friend, Jimmy Walker, former Mayor of New York, would act as president of the organization. The news of the sale was to be kept secret until after the World Series, it was said, but had "leaked out."

Pro Tournament Carded at Oakmont

Announcement was made today that the Tri-State Professional Golfers' Association tournament, a four-day affair, will be staged at the Oakmont Country Club beginning October 2. This means a new date will have to be selected for the Schenley Park Open one-day 36-hole tournament, which has been set for October 2.

A mixed foursome invitation tournament has been arranged for the Highland Country Club, Thursday.

International Loop Swat Lead Goes To Solters

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—(AP.)—Julius Solters, of Pittsburgh, Baltimore's slugging outfielder recently sold to the Boston Red Sox, has captured the batting championship of the International League, according to unofficial averages.

Playing in 147 games, Solters batted .361 to finish three points in front of Ike Boone, of Toronto, who pounded the ball at a .358 clip in 157 contests.

Harry Smythe, also of Baltimore, topped the pitching records with 21 victories as compared to eight defeats.

MARCUM STARS FOR MACKS

Associated Press.

Connie Mack's problem of finding a right-handed pitcher to fit into the mound staff he is building for 1934 apparently has been solved by John Marcum, from Louisville, of the American Association.

While the Giants were strengthening their lead in the National League and the Senators were adding to their advantage in the American circuit yesterday, Marcum, making his second major league start, pitched his second shutout as the Athletics trimmed the White Sox twice.

After Lefty Grove turned in his twenty-first victory of the season with a 5-to-3 decision in the first game, young Marcum ran his big-league record to 18 scoreless innings with an 8-to-0 triumph.

In the National League the Giants, with their nearest rivals, the Cubs and Pirates, rained out, increased their lead over Chicago to eight games and over Pittsburgh to eight and a half by beating the lowly Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 1.

The Boston Braves retained ir mathematical chance of winning the National League pennant defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 3 to 0 behind the six-hit pitching of Ed Brandt.

McBride Tourney In Second Round

Second round singles matches are slated for the McBride courts today in the McBride Park women's tennis championship tourney. Mayor John S. Herron and C. J. McBride are donating cups to the victors. Yesterday's summary:

First round—Catherine Boravich defaulted to Mrs. Hallam; Helen Wright defeated Elizabeth Jones, 6-0, 6-3; Clare Neff defeated Frances Elwell, 6-3, 6-1; Mae Buergin defeated Loretta Johnson, 6-2, 2-6, 6-0; Alice McCormick defeated Helen Hartleff, 6-0, 6-0; Hilda Johnson defeated Emma Barazich, 6-0, 6-1; Jean Murdock defeated Geneva Mort, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2.

STAR WINS MEDAL

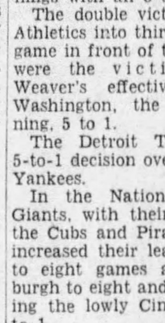
BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK



Nick Altrock

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Right now in the American League race our Washington club has such a margin we practically own the pennant outright — and no brokers are going to call us up for more margin. But, believe it or call me a liar, the boys aren't even thinking about the world series. The other day when I mentioned the autumn classic they thought I meant Whittier's great poem about the leaves falling down.

It is Manager Joe Cronin's system to only think about tomorrow's game when today's game is played. Personally, I am even more cautious than that. When today's work is done I don't even think ahead as far as tomorrow's pastime. I got my mind on this evening's beer.

But, anyway, we have sewed up the pennant just attending to our knitting. And we won't even think of crocheting ourselves a world series till about October first.

NEW GRIDIRON PLAYS LIKELY --ALEXANDER

By W. A. (BILL) ALEXANDER
Georgia Tech Coach, Member of All-America Board of Football.

The effects of the new sideline rule are going to be more noticeable than many football fans imagine, and at the risk of commenting on a subject which has been covered by other coaches, I am anxious to go on record, before the playing season gets under way.

Bill Alexander

This sideline rule is the most radical change that has been made in years, and it will completely revolutionize strategy on the field and necessitate the development of new plays to take advantage of it, not to mention a defense for the new plays.

Formerly when a ball or a player with the ball hit the sideline the ball was ruled out of bounds and it was then brought in 15 yards from the sideline to be put in play. If the ball was killed or the player carrying the ball was tackled within a yard of the sideline, the ball was dead at that point. It then was necessary either to run a play out of bounds or try a sweeping end run in the opposite direction to position the ball in midfield.

THREE COACHING AXIOMS

Furthermore, there was the deadly "coffin corner," that is, the space bounded by the goal line, the sideline, the 10-yard line and the 15-yard line check marks on the inner side. When the ball was in that area the team in possession was at a disadvantage, for it was necessary to run a play out of bounds, or to position the ball in the middle of the field. It meant the loss of a down, in any event, when trying to score.

So there developed three coaching axioms that every coach first taught his quarterback. These axioms were:

3—The team in the "coffin corner" will not score.

Under the new rule the first axiom still holds good. It still is desirable to keep the ball in the center strip so that plays may be run to either flank, thereby making the offense more varied and keeping the defense guessing.

NEW PLAYS LIKELY

But no longer is it necessary to get out of bounds when near the sidelines. Now if a player is tackled a yard from the boundary the ball is brought in to the check marks (which are now 10 yards in instead of 15, an unimportant difference). Thus a down does not have to be wasted to go out of bounds, and it is not necessary to run a positioning play toward the center of the field.

With that 10-yard zone near the sideline open at all times, coaches can develop plays back to that side. This will require ingenuity and coaching. But before the season is over most teams will be found using that 10 yard zone in which to gain ground. If the runner is tackled near the sidelines the ball is brought right back to the check marks. It may be some time before coaches learn a good defensive set for this emergency.

The new rule eliminates the axiom concerning the "coffin corner." You might say the "coffin corner" has been wiped out.

FAIRLY STEADY TONE SHOWN BY STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Traders in the financial markets were cheerful but cautious today and the speculative ardor of yesterday apparently had cooled perceptibly overnight.

Stoks moved quite briskly at the start in the wake of the previous sharp rally. Profit taking in the alcohols and other buoyant gainers of Monday soon sobered the list and the ticker tape dropped back to a featureless jog. While some early gains were cancelled, there was no especial pressure on any group and a fairly steady tone was maintained. Grains, cotton and other commodities held to a rather narrow groove. The dollar was heavy in foreign exchange dealings, sterling getting up around 4 cents at one time and European gold currencies recovering substantially.

The oils probably made the best showing of the more active shares. Amerada got up about 2 points, and Atlantic Refining, Seaboard, Ohio, Houston and Standard of New Jersey advanced fractionally to around a point. Small gains were shown by American Telephone, General Motors, International Harvester, du Pont, Nash, National Biscuit, Kelvinator and Woolworth. Chrysler crossed 50 for another new year's high, but later recorded a minor loss. Santa Fe and Pennsylvania were firm. Losers of a point or more included Johns-Manville, United States Smelting, United States Industrial Alcohol and Columbian Carbon.

While hopes or fears of the inflationary needle continued as important factors in the movement of the general stock list, most market observers were watching closely the trends of business and industry and their reflections of the National Recovery program.

Followers of rail equities were highly encouraged by the progress of freight car loadings, which have exceeded the expectations of the more optimistic. With aggregate freight shipments some 15,000 cars in excess of the 1932 high mark, estimates of gains over 1931 are already being made in some quarters. It was pointed out, however, that in order to contest the 1931 level, there must be a sustained business rise this fall.

Not only is the carrier situation viewed as promising, and as a reliable indicator of basic progress, but improved sentiment in the oil industry has brought hopes of a return of prosperity to this sector. Leading petroleum companies, it is pointed out, can show substantial profits with crude around $1 a barrell. Top quotations for midcontinent crude are about 97 cents a barrel and East Texas oil, which sold as low as 10 cents a barrel last summer, is now back to about 90 cents. Best grade California crude has been selling for more than $1. At the same time gasoline prices have been stiffening and consumption for the current half year is expected to be well ahead of the corresponding period of 1932.

COTTON STEADY AND HIGHER

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Cotton futures opened very steady, 11@13 higher on commission house and trade buying in response to higher Liverpool cables and the advance in foreign exchange. October, 8.98; December, 9.20; January, 9.29; March, 9.46; May, 9.62; July, 9.80.

After selling up to 9.22 December eased to 9.15 with the general list showing net advances of 6 to 10 points at the end of the first half hour. The New York Cotton Exchange estimates domestic consumption for August at 607,000 bales, compared with 601,000 for July and 403,000 in August last year.

After selling off some 6 to 7 points from opening prices, cotton firmed toward midday. December advanced from 9.14 to 9.22 or back to the early high, and the midday market showed net gains of 12 to 14 points.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 12.—Cotton, no receipts. Spot moderate business done; prices 8 points higher. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 6 11; good middling, 5.81; strict middling, 5.51; middling, 5.36; strict low middling, 5.21; low middling, 5.01; strict good ordinary, 4.81; good ordinary, 4.51. Futures closed quiet and steady. October, 5.21; December, 5.23; January, 5.26; March, 5.30; May, 5.34; July, 5.38.

TRADE WANTS NRA TO CLEAR LABOR RULE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 12.—Business men all over the country are waiting for clarification of the attitude of the NRA on the question of the open versus the closed shop.

Some employers who believe in higher wages than the minimum fixed in codes insist that it will be necessary to have a free hand to heighten the productivity of workers in order to absorb the added cost of higher wages, rates and shorter hours.

Mr. Rukeyser

Although the collective bargaining section of the National Industrial Recovery Act has given a marked impetus to unionization, some farseeing industrialists regard the NRA as a moral equivalent for the unions, holding that by voluntary agreement employers are consenting to new social standards which the unions have traditionally battled for. In view of the rapidity of change, it would be reckless to assume that unions have become unnecessary, but it is obvious that the time has come for them to shift their objectives and technique.

CO-OPERATION GOAL

In connection with the reported determination of the NRA to stress co-operation rather than coercion henceforth, Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, author of the act, in a recent presentation pointed out:

"The National Industrial Recovery act provides an administrative board to serve as a friendly and suggestive co-ordinator of the activities of business men who previously worked in the dark and at cross-purposes."

Before Machado was ousted, Mr. Roosevelt, in a message to the Cuban people indicated that the United States would extend economic concessions provided they established political peace.

President Roosevelt recognizes that the Cuban situation is regarded in Latin-America as a barometer of the broader policy of the United States towards all its southern neighbors, with whom the President hopes to establish better reciprocal trade relations.

After the prolonged sugar depression, Cuba has been denuded of industrial supplies. The shelves of merchants are literally empty.

Given political peace and economic concessions from the United States, the snapback there could be rapid.

The famous Vanderbilt "public be damned" utterance really consisted mainly of a statement that the only way the public could show it wanted a service was to patronize it.

In announcing that it would test out improved service for 90 days the Pacific Electric Company indicated that the proof of the pudding would be in consumer patronage.

CONSUMER IS BOSS

Beginning by the first of next month the company will adopt suggestions of the state railroad commission in California for faster rail and bus service at lower rates.

O. A. Smith, general manager, in his announcement, said:

"Some of the recommended improvements in service will be started before October 1 next, but on that date the company will have in operation all changes proposed in the engineer's report. To make the changes the company will spend upwards of $23,000 for new bus equipment, and increase its operating costs $32,000 annually. The improved service is to be tried for a 90-day period, to determine whether increased patronage will warrant its continuation."

This incident is of national interest, because it points a moral in connection with the NRA drive. All the codes are contingent on ultimate acceptance of the new conditions by consumers. Unless the latter express assent promptly through buying necessities and luxuries in sufficient quantities, the agreements will be of no practical importance.

In Memoriam 1-B

IN MEMORY of Pauline Ivanek Greenawalt, who died one year ago today, September 12, 1932. More and more each day we miss her. Friends may think the wound is healed, but they little know the sorrow lies within our hearts, concealed. One we love, could not save her. She bade no one a last farewell. She said goodby to none. Sadly missed by her mother, sisters, brothers and husband.

they let her go twenty minutes ago."

"She wasn't his friend so much as she was a running mate for Mimi Montagne. And once in a while—this is on the quiet—she spills me a little of what's on Crelliman's mind."

"Well, you gotta know if a guy is writing your name on a bullet," chuckled Gazotti. "And if you don't take care of your friends when they're in trouble they're apt to turn on you."

"What sort of a trick is the Waxted girl?" asked Durant.

"She does the best she can. She was in the chorus at Montagne's club. The kind of a girl that you can take out to dinner and no hard feelings if you don't ask her to stay for breakfast. And no hard feelings, either, if you do ask her to stay for breakfast."

And does she sometimes stay for breakfast?" pursued Durant.

Gazotti grinned. "You ain't so hard up for company that you're thinking of blind dates for coffee and bacon, are you?"

"She was Montagne's friend, eh?" Durant was thoughtful. "Is she pretty?"

"Plenty peachy," said Gazotti. "You could do worse, and so could she. What do you want? An introduction?"

"She really was close to Montagne, was she?" asked Durant.

Puzzled by Tony

Gazotti held up his hand; the middle and forefinger were pressed tightly together. "Like that," he replied. "But I can make her spill what she knows."

"I believe you, Tony. But it's the things she doesn't know she knows that I might want to find out. She has no beau at the moment?"

Gazotti shook his head. "She's on the loose. Her latest sweetie took a run-out powder to Mexico, until some things could be fixed up. Gee, I couldn't think of a better break for the little gal than teaming up with you for awhile. A swell kid, and there'll be no holdup later on. What I mean, no shake-down. If you want to make her a little present, that'll be swell. If you don't want to give her anything but the fresh air, that'll be swell. I'm giving you both a break."

"I am hard to figure," said Gazotti gravely. "But if I were you and started betting, I'd play your second hunch." He stared at Durant admiringly. "I never met a guy like you. You can put the burn-up on me and not only make me admit it's true, but make me like it. Gee, I wish you'd turn crooked and be my partner."

"I'll think it over," laughed Durant. "Will you get busy on Crelliman?"

"You meet me tonight—about 10—at the Pinnacle. I'm trying out a new number there tonight. And that reminds me, you don't think so much of that sextet in 'Ladies Must Love,' do you?"

Durant Watched

Durant colored. "Who told you that?"

"Two of the dancers. This afternoon. They said you went out like a light. They also said you're a grand lad, and it was a damn shame you had to get plastered every night. They all say that you're one of the few lads of the upper crust that doesn't think every dame that works for a living is on the make and can be made. Plenty of those little girls would go a long way for you and with you, Mr. Durant but they say you're a straight shooter. I think it's a damn shame, too, that you've had to get cockeyed. The trouble with you is that you're not over the toss Miss Leonard gave you."

His eyes grew round and he whistled softly. "Say, you ain't trying to put the rope tighter around this Siddall boy? But hell, you wouldn't do that. I suppose it's another case of those cases where you think the man's innocent. Or maybe you don't think he's innocent, but Miss Leonard persuaded you that he was when she called today."

"For God's sake, Tony, what does this one mean? How do you know she called on me?"

Gazotti smiled. "Maybe you think the crowd that framed me got fond of you when you cleared me. Don't be silly! Since the day you came to me in the Tombs I've had you watched. And I'll keep on having you watched for a long time to come. Nobody's ever going to do you damage because you saved my neck."

"Tony, I'm beginning to believe you're a good friend," said Durant.

"I'm as good a friend as I am an enemy, and I couldn't brag more about myself," said the gangster. "Now, you meet me tonight: I'll have everything about Crelliman for you. And the Waxted gal will be there. And if she don't fall for you, I don't know brunettes. And if you can't make her talk, I don't know who can. Only it's a bum steer, Mr. Durant. Siddall is guilty as hell."

Calls on Sue

Gazotti's last words rang in Durant's ears as he left the restaurant. They were still ringing in his ears as he turned up Fifth Avenue, and no amount of reasoning could still their clamor as he entered the apartment house where Sue Leonard lived with her father. If only Ted Brewster wasn't such a damn fool. Public psychology be hanged! The public wouldn't try Siddall; 12 jurymen and a judge would do that, and he'd make those 13 men forget that he had ever cleared Public Enemy Number One; he'd make them realize only that an able attorney was presenting an able defense.

That is—or would be—if he could persuade himself of Siddall's innocence. He would never defend a man of whose guilt he was convinced. Murder was the most heinous of all crimes and deserved punishment.

But if he could talk with Siddall he might be able to explore that young man's mind and bring to light facts of whose existence the young man was unaware, or of which he had no recollection. A casual word might conclusively establish the broker's innocence. But Durant had to be with the accused man to hear that casual word.

He hid a smile as, having announced himself to the telephone operator, he was told to enter the elevator. It was months since he had called upon Sue. It seemed strange to be calling upon her now. He wondered how she had felt when she came to his apartment that afternoon.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Just the other day we read a fine editorial by the editor of a great magazine. He recalled his own school days—and remembered that when he was a kid he always pretended to dislike school because it was good "style" to dislike it then. But down in his heart, he says, he really liked it a lot. If he hadn't been able to go, he would have felt very badly indeed.

We're pretty sure that Junior Patrol members are more modern these days—it's a fine thing now to like school and tell everyone that you do.

Today we have a fine long letter from Mrs. Marie Forsythe, mother of Rose Anna, Marie and Bobby Forsythe, of Box 86, Laurel Gardens, Ross Township. Here's part of her letter:

"The club here meets every first and third Saturday in each month. Dues are five cents, but not compulsory. That is best, I think, because there are quite a few children who are faithful members but are not able financially to pay dues.

"The Laurel Gardens Improvement Society has given the patrol here the use of its building which is large enough to seat 150 or more comfortably. At the meetings, every question is brought before the members, all are consulted. The members have decided to give all members with perfect attendance at the meetings a gift in December.

"The girl members are making bean bags and plan to use these for playing games after meetings. The girls also plan to meet twice a week for sewing class to make fancy pot holders, twine holders, etc. These can be sold for money for the club. The meeting hall has a stage with electric lighting and later on we are going to have a play. Any money the club earns will be for parties to which the members will invite children who have less fun than they. Our club plans to be helpful and progressive. The hall is equipped for basketball and gym work and this fall if there is enough boys they can have a team."

What a wonderful patrol you must be having, Mrs. Forsythe! We'll be looking for Capt. Helen Tinnemeyer's letter so that we can send her an armband. We'll be looking for more letters from the sponsor of the Laurel Gardens Junior Patrol.

CROMWELL DISSOLVING THE ENGLISH PARLIAMENT (1653)

When civil war raged in England between Parliament and King Charles I, Oliver Cromwell with his "Ironsides" (armored cavalry) defeated the Royal Army. The king was captured and executed (1649) as "cruel necessity" with the approval of Cromwell, who had risen to leadership.

Cromwell dissolved the Parliament, summoned another one, which invested him as "Lord Protector" with supreme power. He ruled with iron fist, courage, ability and conscienciousness to his death (1658), making Great Britain united and flourishing, respected and feared by other powers. (World History.)

GEN. ANDREW JACKSON REPELLING THE BRITISH AT NEW ORLEANS (1815)

The frequent searches and seizures of American ships by the British (during the Napoleonic wars) caused the outbreak of war between United States and England in 1812. Great Britain had established a base in Florida by Spanish permission. Jackson, American commander in the south, advanced victoriously to New Orleans, fortified the city and defeated the British decisively, thus becoming the hero of his time, paving the way toward his presidency in 1828. His stormy administration was marked by the theory, "To the victors belong the spoils" (approval of political patronage). Ellis: The story of the Greatest Nations.) (U. S. History.)

LINES FROM BEOWULF

This greatest Anglo-Saxon epic was written during the seventh or eighth century and preserved in a manuscript of the tenth century. It deals with the deeds of the young hero Beowulf, glorifying his fights with supernatural beings, showing the ideals of the Anglo-Saxon race: Love of liberty and law, courage, readiness to fight for any good cause. DIRECTION AND DURATION OF SUNLIGHT

Sunshine is necessary for health. To gain the most benefit from it in the house, the less-used rooms and hallways should be placed on the north; living and working rooms should have their windows toward the south. (General Science.) (Whitman: Household Physics.)

DIVISIONS OF BIOLOGY

Biology is the study of living things. It deals with plants (Botany), animals (Zoology) and the principles underlying both with regard to form (morphological) and function (physiological). (Woodruff: Foundation of Biology.)

WHERE OUR ORIGINAL FORESTS WENT (General Science)

This is how 800 million forest acres have been utilized. Almost half has been cut for farms and the forest policy concerns itself with the other half. (Pack & Gill: Forests and Mankind.)

BITUMINOUS COAL MINE, ITS SURFACE VIEW AND CROSS-SECTION (CHEMISTRY)

Vegetable matter decomposing in absence of air forms in succession: Peat, lignite (brown coal), bituminous coal, anthracite coal and graphite; the last three changes require high temperature and pressure. Coal in the mines contains 2 to 10% moisture, 6 to 12% ash, 3 to 40% volatile matter, 89 to 38% fixed carbon. Only the fixed carbon and part of the volatile matter burns and gives heat. The fuel ratio (ratio between fixed carbon and volatile matter) is basis for classification of coal. It is above 10 for anthr. 2.5-6 for bitum.

SUCH A BUSINESS! OH GEORGE I WAS SIMPLY STUNNED WHEN I FOUND OUT PEGGY HAD BLUNTLY ASKED THAT IMPORTANT MONTGOMERY EL DORADO TO GET HIMSELF EXCITED ABOUT OAKDALE'S STORY OF SWIMMING EIGHT OR TEN MILES WHEN HE WAS ONE YEAR OLD.
EIGHT OR TEN MILES? YOU MEAN ABOUT FIVE EIGHTHS OF A MILE, JO.
ALSO, HARTFORD WAS OVER A YEAR OLD. TO BE EXACT HE WAS....
OH WHO CARES ABOUT THAT? WHAT MAKES MY BLOOD RUN COLD IS THE VERY THOUGHT OF PEGGY GOING SO FAR OUT OF HER WAY TO START AN ARGUMENT WITH A MAN WHO I KNOW CAME HERE TO TALK SENSE.
I'M POSITIVE FROM THE SOLEMN WAY HE LOOKED THAT HE INTENDED TO PROPOSE TO PEGGY. IMAGINE THAT. AND THEN SHE SAT IN FRONT OF HIM FOR TWO HOURS WITH HER FACE A SALMON COLOR, SQUEALING ABOUT OAKDALE.
WELL JO, MY FRANK OPINION OF THE WHOLE AFFAIR IS JUST THIS...
WE ALL ADMIT OLD HARTFORD'S STORY OF BEING HEIR TO THOSE EL DORADO MILLIONS SOUNDED PECULIAR BUT....
PECULIAR? HA! EVEN YOU ADMIT THAT, EH? IMAGINE WHAT A REALLY SENSIBLE MAN LIKE MR. EL DORADO MUST THINK OF IT, AND OF PEGGY FOR WASTING HIS TIME BY ASKING HIM TO EVEN TALK ABOUT IT.

Our Pugilistic Tourists

Now that our tourist season is back to sub-mumble, we can speak freely.

Our belligerent sightseers didn't do so well in their happy little wars. That lady who smacked one of the guarda civile on the Island of Majoka discovered that on the Island of Majoka the guarda civile smacks back.

She did a short stretch of six weeks in the la hoose gow while appealing to the American ambassador of low tides, sending frantic cablegrams to Washington and screaming for complaint blanks.

It seems that on Majoka they revere your memory by forgetting you. She might have stayed on the stone pile for the rest of her smacking life if the ambassador hadn't apologized to the guarda and compelled her to sign a paper promising never to lead with her right on a pleasure trip.

Seems that Americans would learn they cannot slap the European, Asian and African police around like they do at home. You must respect the uniform even though you have little respect for the man inside, who is probably married anyway.

Our returning college boys like to relate over their saucers how they clipped a London bobby on his chinstrap or swiveled a Paris gendarme loose from his authoritative moorings.

Pay no attention to those boasts. The bobbies and the gendarmes can step some in a pinch. The writer has been defeated on both sides of the channel. On one informal card he saw a lone Paris copper meet and defeat an all-America flying wedge consisting of Jack Kearns, Mickey Walker, Floyd Gibbons, Teddy Hayes, Ben Lyons, Bill Frawley and the writer, who picked himself from the floor and joined those intrepid couriers who are stopped neither by hail, rail, wind nor snow. Incidentally, he passed through all those changes of climate before he stopped to call the roll and count his money.

So you can see that the lady tourist overmatched herself on the Island of Majoka. Her case made right interesting reading for a while. Eventually, she was released and returned home quietly and sedately.

Of Doubtful Value

The Bar Association's Judiciary Referendum Is Open to the Suspicion of Unfairness.

The Allegheny County Bar Association is reported to have completed the questioning of its members on the fitness of the candidates for the judiciary to sit on the bench.

Citizens will suffer no great loss in failing to read the report, for there is reason to believe the canvass was unfair and would be an unsafe guide.

An honest expression of opinion from the lawyers of the county as to the qualifications of the judiciary candidates would be helpful. But in the present referendum there is too much opportunity to vent personal spite by slandering candidates under the protection of anonymity.

The members of the bar have been asked, for example, to say if they have confidence in the personal and intellectual honesty of the candidates. It would be too easy for an attorney aggrieved at a judge, say, for an adverse decision, to take revenge by unjustly questioning his honesty. Or similarly he might blast the reputation of a fellow attorney aspiring to the bench to whom for any reason he might be hostile.

If the personal honesty of a candidate is to be challenged, the challenge, to command attention, should be made in the open, and specific facts adduced.

Because of the danger that lies in the publication of anonymous communications of all kinds it is the intention of the Sun-Telegraph not to print the results of the referendum.

We understand that hundreds of attorneys have refused to answer the Bar Association's questionnaire. The report, in consequence of these things, will be of doubtful value.

Liquor Regulation

To Avoid a Long and Expensive Wrangle in the Legislature the Subject Should Be Studied Now.

In anticipation of the repeal of prohibition the Philadelphia Liquor Dealers' Association has let it be known it favors a return of the old saloon and the sale of alcoholic beverages of all kinds at retail over the bar.

Gov. Pinchot, on the other hand, an ardent prohibitionist, is reported to favor the Ontario plan of liquor regulation. Under this plan the state would sell and distribute all alcoholic beverages, including beer; and the sale at retail, over the bar, for immediate consumption would be forbidden.

When the Legislature is called in special session to consider the matter there probably will be a long and expensive wrangle. The question should be studied now and recommendations made by civic bodies and fair-minded individuals that the wrangle may be avoided and that public opinion may have an opportunity to crystallize in favor of a plan which will at the same time promote temperance and restrain fanaticism.

Not Convincing

Candidate Mackrell's Reply to the Engelsberg Charges Fails to Satisfy.

The reply of Joseph N. Mackrell, Progressive Republican candidate for Mayor, to the charge of Joseph Engelsberg, ex-racketeer, that they were formerly associated in business is disappointing.

While Mackrell denies there was anything unlawful in their relations he admits that he and Engelsberg were on terms of such intimacy that in 1921 he borrowed money from the racketeer to help pay for his home.

"I will not say," the Mackrell statement sets forth, "that in 1921 when I purchased my home he did not lend me some money for the down payment."

Engelsberg was in the bootlegging business in that year; in fact he was arrested in May of 1921 for violation of the prohibition law, and subsequently served a prison sentence as a bootlegger.

Mackrell tries to muddy the waters by holding "the Mellon-Grundy-Coyne machine" responsible for the Engelsberg charges. But that is no defense.

The reply, in short, is not convincing; and it is doubtful, while this thing hangs over him, if Mackrell can ever again be elected to any office in Allegheny County.

How to Make Money

Spend Money, and Spend It NOW.

You may be a patriot or you may not, but whatever you are you want to make money.

The surest way of making money now is to SPEND money now.

They will continue to go up.

Your September dollar will buy more than your October dollar.

To get full value out of it turn it into goods this month—and the sooner the better.

That is not extravagance—it is economy.

Of course, by spending your dollar now you will help others beside yourself.

You will help make jobs.

You will help to put people on payrolls instead of leaving them to charity.

You will help to reduce the need for city and state and national relief, thus easing up on tax burdens.

You will help to speed up the wheels of industry, thus helping everybody.

But, regardless of that, the person you will help most is YOU, and unless you are different from most of the human race you must think first of yourself and your dependents.

For that reason buy in September. It's not only patriotic, it's prudent, and prudence is the best kind of patriotism in these days.

Which Step Will Be the Last?

By Nelson Harding

The footing is no longer sure,
As in the days of old,
When Dry fanatics boasted that
They knew each firm foothold.

Their steps are very splashy now,
And they are stepping fast,
Uncertain, in that rising flood,
Which step may be the last!

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Woman Pays—Alimony

The chief effort of life, nowadays, is trying not to look down on "the Joneses," when they rattle past in that old car which you envied them so much in 1929.

* * *

There are many times when the wife of a tightwad feels that she would cheerfully exchange him for a nice, generous-hearted, extravagant racketeer.

* * *

Now that two Chicago women have been ordered to pay alimony to their husbands, the only masculine "privilege" that women haven't managed to attain is the luxury of being bald-headed.

A girl used to feel that her life struggles were over when she landed her first husband; but now she doesn't feel actually "settled" until she has divorced her last husband.

* * *

Nothing makes a man so happy or a woman so miserable as to be loved "mildly and sensibly."

* * *

A pre-view of the new fall hats almost convinces one that women are determined to kill love, if it takes the ingenuity of all the eccentrics in Paris.

* * *

All those old jokes about martyred husbands waiting for a woman to finish dressing are deader than technocracy. Any up-to-the-minute woman can get into her clothes in five minutes—which leaves her nearly an hour to put on her complexion, while her husband is fastening his evening tie and trying to find his dancing pumps.

To watch some men concentrating on a jig-saw puzzle, you just know that they are using up all the mental powers the Lord gave them, in one supreme effort!

* * *

Almost time for the girl, who has been going about clad chiefly in suntan and an air of studied unconsciousness, to put on something a little warmer.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The Algonquin Round Table is only a metaphor of literary log-rolling and backscratching. Actually it does not exist. Many of the original members still lunch at Frank Case's 44th street hotel, but there is no special table for bouquet tossing any more.

Originally there used to collect at one table Robert E. Sherwood, Alexander Woollcott, Franklin P. Adams, Heywood Broun, George S. Kaufman, Robert C. Benchley and a number of lesser fry. Someone—Frank Ward O'Malley as I recall — referred to them as knights of the round table.

And the legend grew. There was a specious theory they made or unmade literary figures of the day. All of which was nippingly humorous. The truth is they were merely a bantering crowd of writing folk expressing the usual cynicism of the guild for the newcomer. Plus a dash of showoffery.

The hotel benefited largely by the exploitation. Timid writing fledgelings were attracted there for luncheon to gape. Or cup an ear for a Dorothy Parker mot. Now and then the Algonquin front was weakened by schism and this one and that one drifted away. Eventually it just ceased to exist.

* * *

But literary talent can never be stagnated by cliques. Any writer of merit without effort defends himself from psychological difficulties, because the trade is primarily psychological. Hooters never caused a good writer's downfall. They jeered Oscar Wilde. They jeered Theodore Dreiser and James Branch Cabell. The list is long.

* * *

There are sundry luncheon crowds far more interesting than the Algonquin ever was. Chiefly I think of those ordinary young lovers who sit out in Bryant park and other squares at noon. They are the office workers, she with an index finger purpled by typewriter ribbon and he clerkly correct in his walk-up-and-save-$10 suit. They divide a box lunch. And this is significant. They are saving for one of those little dream cottages.

* * *

Slate gray shirts with snow white four-in-hands have hit the town sartorially. I counted five so adorned in a midtown block. And any number of haberdashery windows display all sorts of white ties from 50 cent washables to those marked $6. I don't know who thought up the idea, but the first I saw wearing the combination was Russell Patterson.

* * *

Artistic circles were not surprised, by the way, when Joseph Urban's scenic work and studios were turned over to young Patterson. He has for some time shown a flair for effects in the theater, turning out the scenery for several musical revues. Patterson himself has the languor of beauty, a classical profile, wavy powdered gray hair and slight arriere pensee. He's in early 30's.

It is always interesting to watch Patterson at teas or dinner parties. No one I ever saw—outside of James M. Barrie—gives forth such a sense of impermanence. After he joins a group, he seems to disappear suddenly, as though dropped through a pavement grating. He listens gravely but rarely talks and all of a sudden is gone.

* * *

Howard Acton and I wagered recently we would spend a night in a cheap Bowery lodging house. Each ran out of excuses and so the other evening, donning rather unpresentable clothes, subwayed to Brooklyn Bridge and walked northward to find an upstairs hotel that might be interesting. One more brilliantly lit than the others struck our mutual fancy. We registered as "G. K. Chesterton" and "Daniel McGraw," paid our 40 cents each and were given keys on a wooden block. It may have been imagination, but outside of a tiger's amber eye I have never seen such contempt for mankind as the clerk expressed. He was the sort who wore a horse shoe nail ring. We sat in the office chairs awhile, looking down on the Bowery's muggy flow. Finally I said: "I'm ready." Acton said: "I, too." and taking a taxicab we scooted home.

* * *

Also I made a sucker out of a proverb today. It reads: "He that riseth late shall trot all day." I got up at 11 o'clock this morning and have been squatting at this typewriter until right now. And it's dusk.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The French Revolution! You may not know much about history, but you shudder at that name.

That insane mob of howling peasants, wrecking their bloody revenge for the cruel years of abuse! Their beautiful queen's head falling, with a thump, into a bloody puddle.

You wonder about that queen, Marie Antoinette. How deliberately heartless she must have been to have played all those years in the face of their agony, squandering the tax money of her starving subjects to gratify her selfish whimsies.

"Surely," you say, "she must have been an unnatural monster. Thank God, people like that don't live today!"

But you're wrong. She wasn't an unnatural monster. And people like that do live today—live right on your block, in your office, perhaps right in your own house.

There's a book you should read. It's the biography of Marie Antoinette by Stefan Zweig. Most biographies of the great make indifferent reading, because their characters are so far outside our daily life that they seem unreal as fairy tales. But Stefan Zweig gives you Marie Antoinette just as she was—a gay, lazy, aimless, warm-hearted, empty-headed little creature, whose like you meet every day in the beauty shop or across the bridge table.

Poor butterfly! Never in all her silly days did she have one really cruel desire. Suffering shocked her exactly as much as it would you or me.

Yet she let her people live in abject misery?

Yes, but she didn't want them to be miserable. She just didn't see their misery; that was all.

SHE SAW ONLY THAT WHICH SHE WISHED TO SEE; BELIEVED ONLY THAT WHICH SHE WISHED TO BELIEVE. AND SHE DID NOT WISH TO SEE OR BELIEVE ANYTHING WHICH WOULD MAKE HER FEEL PERSONALLY UNCOMFORTABLE OR RESPONSIBLE. Says Stefan Zweig:

"The world that lay beyond the narrow circle within which the nobility moved was for her practically non-existent. Not a notion had she that round the opera house of Paris there stretched a gigantic town, filled with poverty and discontent; that beyond the ponds of Trianon, well-stocked with mandarin ducks and overfed swans, beyond the lawns on which the peacocks flaunted their plumes—the peasants' houses were falling into ruins and the barns were empty. She never knew that millions upon millions of the French people toiled and hungered, alternating between hope and despair."

Why was pretty, playful Marie Antoinette's life so shameful; her death so dreadful? That was why. She was not a monster, yet her record was monstrous, because SHE WOULD NOT FACE THE REALITY OF 1793. And so—they punished her.

So, presently, many excellent, law-abiding, "harmless" citizens of these United States may be punished—unless they get busy and face the grim reality of 1933. They may not lose their heads—but they may have their smugness and feelings considerably shaken.

THERE ARE STARVING PEOPLE IN AMERICA TODAY.

They are hungry, diseased and desperate for exactly the same reason. Those who should realize their plight and help them refuse to see it, or admit that it exists.

"All this talk about a revolution—it's absurd!" they laugh, shuffling the cards, lighting their cigars, with fat, jeweled fingers. "Of course times have been hard. Look at all we lost in the market crash! But these horrors you hear about—they're just talk."

That's what these excellent, law-abiding "harmless" American citizens are saying, and honestly believing, these days. That's what Marie Antoinette said, and honestly believed, 150 years ago.

The Human Side of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

WAY down under, at the end of the earth, is a continent still in the ice age, a place probably uninhabited by man or beast, one great frozen plateau called Antarctica. This great barrier, with its surrounding ice fields and polar seas, has New Zealand and Australia as the nearest lands to it on the Pacific side, and the extremities of South America and Africa on the Atlantic side.

The eyes of two gallant adventurers are turned in its direction. About the time next December that you and I are worrying about our Christmas shopping, this intrepid pair will be winging out on the last great adventure of South Polar exploration. Of the two the leader is he whose purpose holds

"To sail beyond the sunset and the paths
"Of all the western stars until I die."

For the spirit of adventure and exploration is in the blood of Lincoln Ellsworth. It has ruled him for nearly all of his 48 years and is ever urging him on. He says himself:

"My desire is to get beyond the known barriers of the world, to find out things that are not known about the world we live in."

Of a wealthy Chicago family, Ellsworth first heard the call when a child of 11. Scarcely more than a boy, he was roughing in the wilds of our Northwest. He worked as an axman in the Canadian forests, hunted big game, led expeditions in South America, served as an aviator with the American Expeditionary Forces, flew over the North Pole with Amundsen and spent 125 days on an ice floe with the same intrepid explorer after their plane had been forced down.

* * *

Bernt Balchen
A Kindred Spirit

ELLSWORTH will have with him a kindred spirit, Bernt Balchen, true son of Eric the Red, who knows no peer in the handling of an airplane. This blond young man of 33 was born in Norway and lives now in staid old Brooklyn as an American citizen. It was he who brought down Byrd's trans-Atlantic plane safely in the waters off the coast of France when fog forced them to land just short of their goal, Le Bourget. The same Balchen was the pilot of the plane which carried Byrd to the South Pole and back, and it was he who flew to the relief of Ellsworth and Amundsen in the Arctic and to the German-Irish fliers when they came down on an island off Newfoundland on the first successful westward crossing of the Atlantic by air.

It will be a miracle if Ellsworth, Balchen and Sir Hubert Wilkins see anything more than mountains of ice, on their 2,900-mile flight from Ross Sea, to the Wendell Sea. For it is pretty well established that, compared to the Arctic, the Antarctic is the abomination of desolation itself. Up north we have inhabitants, about a million of them, Eskimos and Lapps. Animals and fish are not unplentiful, and trees abound in the northern polar circle. But the south polar area knows neither man, fish or beast.

Amundsen, it was, who discovered the South Pole in an epical race against Capt. Robert Scott's ill-fated English expedition. Amundsen, of course, did not know where Scott was, and the Englishman had no idea that the Norwegians were even trying to reach the pole, for this was in the pre-radio days. It is not difficult, therefore, to imagine the terrible disappointment which was Scott's when on January 18, 1912, he arrived at the pole with four companions, only to come upon Amundsen's tent, the evidence that he had been there three weeks before.

Scott and his men had planned for years their elaborate expedition. They had set out on this last journey with motor sledges, ponies and dogs, but the sledges broke down and the ponies had to be killed. For 69 days they had pushed on—Capt. Scott, Capt. Oates, Petty Officer Evans and two others, Wilson and Bowers—to reach their goal, only to find another had been there before them.

* * *

The Self-Sacrifice Of Capt. Oates

THEY started back, these five dispirited men. Evans took sick and died. Oates, a captain in the Inniskillen Dragoons, who had earned for himself the nickname "Never Surrender Oates" in the Boer War, was horribly frostbitten. He felt himself a drag on the others, an incumbrance who threatened their chances of getting back alive to their companions. As Scott was to write, Oates went to sleep each night hoping that he would not awaken.

But death would not come to him, so he went to death. Against their pleadings he walked out of the tent into the raging blizzard so that the words might be fulfilled, "Greater love hath no man shown than to lay down his life for his friends." A raging blizzard encompassed the others and they had nothing to do but wait the end.

A year later their frozen bodies were found. Under Scott's head was his diary and his message to the public, a few hundred words which stand alone in history and literature. Here is his last testament, set down in the rude shelter with the banshee of death howling on all sides:

"I do not think," it ran, "human beings ever came through such months as we have come through. For four days we have been unable to leave the tent, and a gale has been blowing about us. We are weak. Writing is difficult. We have no cause for complaint but bow to the will of Providence, determined still to do our best to the last.

"But if we have been willing to give our lives to this enterprise which is for the honor of our country, I appeal to our countrymen to see that those who depend upon us are properly cared for.

"Had we lived I should have a tale to tell of the hardihood, endurance and courage of my companions which would have stirred the hearts of all Englishmen. These rough notes on our dead bodies must tell the tale; but surely a great, rich country like ours will see that those who depend upon us are properly provided for."

The signature was there, "R. Scott," and the date, March 25, 1912. A brave man, a great man. He could not conquer the elements—but death could not conquer him.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Do you allow the weather to control your spirits?

How foolish to permit yourself to be wafted about in a way that detracts from your enjoyment of life just because the sun is under a cloud.

When disappointment comes which might have been avoided, there may be some excuse for complaining.

But who can change the weather?

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?
